BLACK HILLS.

A General Awakening Among the Denizens Preparatory to Spring Work.

The Importance of the New Territory, and the Necessity of Governmental Protection.

Special Correspondence Chicago Times.

Deadwood, Black Hills, March 17.—We are just emerging from a winter season, as it were, and as a community we are little behind the animal creation which hibernates.

We have been having no little trouble lately in business circles relative to the question of our circulating medium (money) and its value.

A TROUBLESOME DECISION.

The entire population of the Hills has been greatly agitated for the last two days in relation to the decision of the Secretary of the Interior regarding our titles here to property.

LIVELY TIMES COMING.

There is little doubt that as a rule the people of the Hills are law abiding, and despite the crude condition of our local district laws relative to mines, both placer and quartz, they will be recognized by our people, and the rights therefore enforced by the popular will.

THE INDIAN QUESTION.

The chief hindrance to the development of every interest we have here now lies in the adjustment, speedy and final, of the Indian question, and we are all looking anxiously to see what may come of the late military expedition to Crazy Horse and his band, which has for its purpose the disarming and bringing into the agencies of this troublesome custom and his followers.

One thing is certain, that unless the government does something to secure protection to the emigration hither the coming summer, our interests will be materially injured for this reason if for none other.

We are new yet, and as compared with our needs and natural difficulties besetting all pioneers to a gold country, even are poor.

Chamberlain says that if there is a determination to remove the troops from the Columbia state house, it ends the struggle and makes Gen. Hampton governor.

School Exhibition and Dance at the Saratoga school house.

On Friday evening of last week terminated a most successful term of school in Saratoga, under the management of Jerard Smith, in a manner only as the people of that neighborhood seem to know how to do such things.

The exercises commenced with a splendid exhibition of declamations, songs, dialogues, &c., aided by the military band, after which an adjournment was had to the room below, which had been suitably prepared for the "light fantastic toe," by old and young, parents and children alike, after the style of the good old days of yore.

Strange talks, those of the Saratogians! They boast of the finest schools, and best school management of any district in the State; the best conducted and most able literary societies; the most pleasant social gatherings and dances, and the largest attendance at public worship on Sundays. They seem to mix fun, science and religion in "glorious confusion." Perhaps this accounts for their success. It may be better to take it "mixed" than "straight."

OMAHA AND COUNCIL BLUFFS.

A Sensible Article.

From the St. Joe Herald.

The feeling of jealousy between Council Bluffs and Omaha is as idle as it is foolish.

Both towns control a large trade which is constantly increasing with the growth of Iowa and Nebraska; both have customers that cannot be taken away from them, and neither Council Bluffs nor Omaha is in any danger of losing its trade.

St. Louis and Chicago are still talking about each other, but in a cheerful way. New York and Philadelphia and Baltimore have their jibes and their fun, but each city is as secure and stable as the other; as comfortable and as well off as the other; and as ready to make a fortune in the West, as any other city in the Union.
