AN OUTRAGEOUS ASSAULT.

Three Roughs Pound Three Peaceable Citizens Without the Least Provocation.

Saturday night, at a late hour, three men called at the room of Lillie Stevens, a woman of the town, living in the vicinity of Fourteenth and Howard streets. The rear portion of the house, as well as the upstairs part, was occupied by one Alfred Ozier and his wife. The visitors on Lilly Stevens were somewhat intoxicated, and two of them expressed their determination of entering the apartments of Mr. and Mrs. Ozier, as they wanted to visit "the canary bird," as they called the latter person, and they were going to burst in the door, when Miss Stevens told them to go to the back door. They did so, and knocked for admittance, which was denied them. They went away for a short time, and then came back and broke in the door. Mr. Ozier jumped out of bed, and ran upstairs with a club in his hand. The two men said that they were officers of the law, and followed him up stairs, notwithstanding that he had a club in his hand. They knocked him down, and one said to the other, "Kill the fellow!" While they were pounding him, his wife made her escape from the house clad only in her night-dress and stockings. She ran along Fourteenth street in her stocking feet, yelling, "Murder! Help! Police!" Arriving at the Grand Central hotel, she rushed down into the beer hall on the corner, and informed the gentlemen present in an excited manner, that her husband was being murdered in his own house, by two or three men, and she wanted assistance. Several gentlemen at once started for the scene of the supposed tragedy, among the number being Dr. Charles, the dentist, and Fred. Wirth, the proprietor of the Omaha House. When they arrived at the house all was still, the roughs having taken their departure. On their way back, Dr. Charles and Mr. Wirth were assaulted near the intersection of Fourteenth and Harvey streets, by the same roughs, without the least provocation. Dr. Charles was knocked down without a word of warning, and brutally kicked several times. Mr. Wirth was struck in the face and on the top of the head, blood being brought at each blow, showing that he was struck with some weapon, probably brass knuckles.

Policeman Gorman finally put in an appearance and arrested Daniel Smith, the watchman at the omnibus barn, who he found at the house of Lilly Stevens. He locked him up in jail, and then arrested Alton George. The third man, John Nugent, also an employe at the omnibus barn, made his escape, and was fired at twice by policeman Gorman as he disappeared; but Sunday morning Nugent was arrested by policemen Ryan and Gorman.

Dr. Charles is badly used up, although able to be around; he has a fearful black eye, and his body is black and blue in several places which he was kicked.

Ozier also has a black eye, and several bruises; while Wirth retains the marks of the assault.

The three men, Smith, Nugent, and George, pleaded not guilty at the Police Court yesterday and their examination was set for this afternoon. They are a hard crowd, and this is only one of several recent unprovoked assaults that they have engaged in. The omnibus barn crowd is too tough for the safety of peaceable citizens, and the proprietor should make it a point to employ a different class of men. We understand that those who were engaged in the Saturday night business have been discharged, and their places filled by others.

When the case was called up this afternoon, it was further postponed till Wednesday.

NEW FRINGES at WELF & McDONALD'S, 250 Farnham st.

A SHAVER SLOPES.

His Departure is Regretted by Numerous Slopers.

Fritz Wolf, a barber by trade, who has for some time past been employed at the barber shop of Henry Dillmann, made the biggest shave of the season Sunday, by leaving for parts unknown without waiting to bid adieu to his numerous creditors.

About a week ago he damaged one of James Stephenson's buggies to the extent of about $100, which account he forgot to settle.

Yesterday he imposed upon the confidence of Kahn & Wedell, and obtained $17 worth of clothes.

He also visited Hengen, the best and shrewdest man, to the amount of $20; Goldenberg, $5.00; Mr. Steiner, room rent, $15 or $20; and numerous other parties "got left" for various amounts. Besides, he walked off with his employer's overcoat. He is a dead-beat and the public are warned to look out for him. All the papers in America and Europe are requested by the creditors to give him a good notice.

Remember the grand opening to-night, "THE DELMONICO," at 240 Farnham (late Dixon & Floyd's). The most elegant resort in OMAHA. "Al" and "Fred" will be glad to see you.
