Judge Kinney, of Nebraska City, who came to Omaha to investigate the death of Indian Joe, could ascertain no facts to show that he died from other than natural causes. The judge seemed to manifest, at first, a great interest in Joe, whom he had nursed from childhood, but when he was about to return home he changed his tune somewhat, at least he should judge so from the fact that he told Glad to take the county (of Douglas) bury him.

CLOAK AND SUIT MANUFACTURE.

A Visit to the Establishment of Well & McDonald.

It would be a question difficult to decide whether the male or female portion of the community give the greater support to trade in the matter of wearing apparel, in a financial point of view; but certainly in the number and variety of their requirements, the ladies undoubtedly lead the palm, especially since ready-made articles of apparel have become so generally popular. It is now only a few years since that milliners, dress and mantua makers maintained a monopoly as universal in extent as it was productive of extravagance amongst the wealthy, especially for the advantage of being well and stylishly dressed could only be attained through the hands of these professionals, and those who could not afford the luxury, being compelled to rely upon their own skill and ingenuity in cutting, fitting and finishing, necessarily presented a very "downy" sort of appearance. Now, however, a change has come over the scene, and ninety-five per cent. of the best town ladies of the most fastidious tastes and plethoric purses, purchase their clothing ready made, and certainly no city in the world possesses more beautifully dressed women than those of Omaha and the West; for the facilities attained and the perfection reached in the manufacture of ready-made garments place them within the means of the humbler as well as the wealthier classes.

The rapid growth of the cloak and suit manufacturing business is a criterion of its general popularity and increasing patronage, and certainly the productions of many leading houses are equal in design and workmanship to the finest imported goods, and indeed in many instances possess a delicacy, richness and beauty of finish far exceeding them. This is particularly the case with specialties introduced by the house of Well & McDonald, 250 Farnham street, who manufacture and import these goods exclusively, and whose goods were yesterday carefully inspected by a representative of the BEE.

The reputation of this house for producing the finest lines of cloaks and suits of any other establishment in the west, is due to the fact that Messrs. Well & McDonald thoroughly understand every detail of their business. It is a peculiar business and can only be conducted by gentlemen who have been trained and educated to it from youth up, as Messrs. Well & McDonald have been.

The styles are all original with the house, and this season present unusual features of attraction to buyers, the combinations being exceedingly varied, elegant and unique.

Another fine load of STONEWARE, just received and for sale to the trade at J. B. FRENCH & CO'S.

Dr. Don has removed his office from Fourteenth street to 610 Thirteenth street, up stairs.

RACEME. FLOUR. Another car load of ST. LOUIS WINTER WHEAT FLOUR just received at J. B. FRENCH & CO'S.

Business Cards, Snow Cards, Visiting Cards, Ball Programmes, Ball Tickets, Circulars, Posters, etc., at the BEE Job Printing, 138 Farnham street.

RACEME. In this city are places enough where we can get something to eat and drink, but every time we wish an extra good meal and a splendid cup of coffee, tea, or chocolate, we have to go to the French Coffee House, 252 Farnham street.

RACEME. The Matelasse overdress and jackets, trimmed with gros grain silks in all shades, are very handsome garments. The new style of diagonal cloth, with Talma to match, cannot be excelled for richness. The Dolman "Antoinette," in silk and also Matelasse, and the Imperial Dolman, are very elegant. The French Foulard suits, in Matelasse effects, in all shades, are very stylish and attractive for street wear, while the linen suits are very graceful, and are the finest ever gotten up. These suits Well & McDonald are able to sell at prices fifty per cent. lower than anybody else.

Their stock of ladies' neckwear comprises all the latest novelties; and their line of underwear is very extensive.

Their children's department embraces every variety of garment of overwear and underwear.

In fact we could go on and list several columns in enumerating the many beautiful articles of ladies' wearing apparel now on exhibition at Well & McDonald's; but we must conclude by advising all the ladies to call at their temple of fashion during their opening days, and inspect the goods for themselves.

FORGERY.

A Couple of Soldiers Try an Unsuccessful Game on a Paymaster.

A couple of soldiers attempted to raise the wind, in a financial sense, yesterday, by a little sharp practice better known as forgery, but they were nipped in the bud.

It appears that they made out their own discharge papers, final statements, etc., and presented the documents to Maj. Thornberg, paymaster, at government headquarters. Maj. Thornberg was busy, and told them to call again in a little while, and then sign the receipt for the money due them, between two and three hundred dollars each.

After they had done the forgery was discovered, and Lt. Rockafellow, of the 9th Infantry, who had command of their company, was informed of the affair. He immediately sent out and had the men arrested, before they had a chance to return, even if they had intended to do so. It is thought that they had suspected that their scheme had miscarried, and were not going to return. They will be asked to rise and explain before a court martial.

THE GRAND MILLINERY OPENING.

Of the season will take place on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, April 5th, 6th and 7th, at Mrs. Atkinson's elegant establishment, on Douglas, corner of 13th street. No tickets of admission required, but the public generally are most cordially invited to see, compare and criticize.

It appears that they made out their own discharge papers, final statements, etc., and presented the documents to Maj. Thornberg, paymaster, at government headquarters. Maj. Thornberg was busy, and told them to call again in a little while, and then sign the receipt for the money due them, between two and three hundred dollars each.
