A FATAL QUARREL.

A Young Farmer Shoots His Neighbor at a Dance.

The Latter Dying From His Wounds To-Day.
Coroner Jacobs Will Hold an Inquest.

About 7 o'clock Saturday Justice Bencke was called to his office by Constable Chris. Kaebler, of Millard station, who had with him a prisoner whose hands were bound with a piece of common clothes-line in lieu of handcuffs.

The constable informed the justice that the prisoner had shot a man and that the victim was in a dying condition. The proper affidavit was then filed charging F. Mitchell with an assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill, upon the person of James Lyon. A commitment was made out and the prisoner sent to the county jail without bail, on the expectation that the wounded man might die at any hour.

Shortly after a reporter called at the jail and interviewed the accused who somewhat reluctantly made a brief statement of his case. He seemed to be overwhelmed with the trouble he had brought upon himself, but told a plain, straightforward story, admitting the deed but claiming that it was done in self-defense. Mitchell has been working on the farm of Mr. John Hollenbeck, near Millard, while Lyon worked in a similar capacity for Mr. Hollenbeck's son, a male or two away.

Last night Mitchell says he and Lyon went to Millard, where a dance was held at Henry Karsten's place. There were several of the boys together and all had been drinking when Lyon, it appears, grew quarrelsome and began to abuse a young boy, whose part Mitchell took up. Lyon then transferred the object of his wrath to Mitchell and making snidey uncomplimentary remarks about his intended that he would settle with him after awhile. Mitchell left him and went upstairs, he says to avoid trouble, but others say to get a revolver. In a few minutes, he came down again and found Lyon still charging around and talking about him." Lyon asked Mitchell if he had anything against him and the latter replied that he had not. He then said if he wanted anything out of him he could get it.

To this Mitchell replied that he only wanted him (Lyon) to go away. The latter then drew his revolver, but the bystanders interfered and "crowded him around awhile and got him out of the room."

Presently he returned in the same fashion, swinging his revolver and swearing he would shoot Mitchell, who began to think it was about time to defend himself. He says that Lyon held the revolver in his hand behind him, about half way out of his pocket, and attempted to get throd on him, but after trying in vain to make the man throw up his hands Mitchell fired at him, the ball entering his breast and bringing him down to the floor, when a second shot took effect in the forehead of the fallen man.

This occurred between 12 and 1 o'clock. There was great excitement when the unfortunate result of the quarrel became known. Dr. Link was sent for, but was sick, and a physician whose name we could not learn, was called in, who after examination of the wounds pronounced them of a fatal character and such as to render medical assistance but an addition to the man's suffering.

Mitchell surrendered himself immediately after the shooting and came to town without any attempt at resistance or escape. It was deemed advisable to postpone any examination of the prisoner until the result of the wounds given should become known, and he was therefore committed to appear for examination on Monday at 11 o'clock. Should the man die the duty of investigating the matter will fall to Coroner Jacobs, and upon his finding the prisoner may be held to appear before the next grand jury.

According to the statement of Mitchell, it would appear that the shooting was done in self-defense, though he would not seem justified in shooting the man a second time, after he had fallen to the ground. Both the deadly weapons were left with Judge Bencke, the one with which the shooting was done being a "Pioneer," 32 calibre, with two chambers empty, and the others full. Lyon's weapon was much smaller, and every chamber was loaded.

Mitchell is a tall, slender fellow, apparently not over 30 years of age, of swarthy complexion, and without any appearance indicating a bloodthirsty nature. Lyon is, we understand, of about the same age.

DEATH OF LYON.
A dispatch was received Saturday from Millard to the effect that Lyon was dead. Coroner Jacobs has gone down to hold an inquest over the remains. Parties from Millard blame Mitchell for shooting, and think he is in a serious fix, now that his victim is dead.

Is What Fletcher Mitchell has got Himself Into.

The Killing of James Lyon as Viewed by the Jury.
Coroner Jacobs returned yesterday from Millard, where a post mortem was held on the body of James Lyon, who was shot by Fletcher Mitchell, Saturday morning, and from him we learn some additional particulars concerning the tragedy and obtain the verdict of the coroner's jury.

The evidence adduced was somewhat different from the statement made by Mitchell on Saturday to a reporter, and to some extent weakens his plea of self-defense. Although the affair occurred in the saloon and in the presence of a large crowd, it was not deemed necessary to examine but two witnesses, viz: Frank J. Crawford and John H. Pederson, in addition to taking the testimony of Dr. F. Ebenor, who made the post mortem. The testimony showed that a dispute had arisen between the two men at the dance at Karsten's place Friday night, in the course of which Lyon had drawn his revolver. Frank Crawford took him aside and told him to put the weapon up and he did so. Crawford and Lyon then stood by the ice box taking a few moments, Mitchell being at the end of the counter, when the former said he was going outside and turned to leave the room.

As he did so he saw Mitchell spring forward directly in front of Lyon, and with the exclamation, "You—of a—b—, I've got you now," he fired, the ball entering the left temple of his victim and passing through the head until it lodged under the skin a couple of inches back of the right ear. Lyon dropped to the floor without a word, while his assailant, with the words, "You—of a—b—, I don't want to kill you, but I'll give you some more," fired again, the ball entering the right breast of the fallen man. Up to this time a' had supposed that the trouble was ended, and that Mitchell must have armed himself after the first words. The latter, after he had fired the second shot, stepped back and flourishing his revolver, said: "Gentlemen, I know what I am doing; don't come near me." The crowd, however, closed up about him and the constable took him in charge without any resistance.

Lyon was insensible from the time he fell until he died, at 10 o'clock Saturday morning, and did not speak a word during the time. He was attended by Dr. Ebenor, who said in his evidence that the first wound was fatal in itself, though the second was not necessarily so.

Feeling is said to run very strong against Mitchell, who is considered, as one man stated it, to be guilty of willful murder.

The following jury was impaneled, Henry Kelsey, Henry Heilhoth, Julius Schroeder, Frederick Schultz, Arunah Gage, Henry Goodheart—and after due deliberation returned a verdict to the effect "That the death of the said James Lyon was caused on the night of the 2nd day of July A. D., 1880, by a leaden ball fired from a revolver in the hands of one Fletcher Mitchell, and that the said shooting and the consequent killing of the said James Lyon, was done by the said Fletcher Mitchell with felonious intent."

Upon this finding there is no doubt but the prisoner will be held without bail to await the action of the grand jury.

OUT FOR A SHOT.

An Altercation Over a Game of Pool and Its Result.
About 10 o'clock yesterday morning a serious cutting affray took place in the Brunswick billiard hall, on Douglas street.

Two men, Alfred Squires, living on Davenport and Twentieth streets, and Hugh Shields, living on Cuming street, were engaged in a game of pool when a quarrel arose over a shot one of them had made. The quarrel does not seem to have lasted long, nor words to have run high, for the bartender, who was waiting on a couple of customers at the time, did not hear anything of it, and he was but a few feet from the men. Words led to more serious consequences, however, and at length Shields drew a knife and struck Squires across the forehead with it, inflicting a wound two and a half inches in length, just above the eyes, and penetrating to the bone.

The wounded man immediately left the saloon and crossed the street to Kennard & Forsythe's drug store, when some one took him to Dr. Joseph Neville's office, up stairs, and had his head dressed. It was a terrible cut, and left a hideous and gapping wound, which the doctor sowed up. Squires was able to walk home after the operation, and his injuries were pronounced not of a very serious nature.

A warrant was issued for Shields, but he was not found last evening up to a late hour.

DEATH OF AN OLD CITIZEN.

At 5 o'clock p. m. Friday, Jas. D. Brown, Esq., one of the pioneers of our city, passed away to another world, after a long and intensely painful illness, in the 69th year of his age.

The deceased was born July 31, 1811, at Stephentown, Rensselaer county, New York. He lived at Canton, Stark county, Ohio, for many years, and came to Omaha in the year 1863. In a seventeen year residence among our citizens he became well known—a man of character, independent and liberal in his views, and an honest, Christian gentleman. His death brings a heavy weight of sadness upon a large circle of relatives and friends, among the former being Mrs. C. F. Manderson, his daughter, Walter S. Brown, of Salt Lake City, his son, and Mr. Chas. H. Brown, his nephew. The funeral services took place at 2 p. m. Saturday, from his late residence, on Twentieth and Cuming streets, and his remains were taken east on the afternoon express, to his old home at Canton, O., for interment.

The excursion to Plattsmouth, on the 5th of July at the moderate price of 75 cents for adults, and 25 cents for children under twelve years of age, affords our citizens a fine opportunity for spending the day in the country, and enjoying a pleasant ride of forty-two miles.

The general public are invited to go as it is a basket picnic and there is nothing in the way of such a party to do so, making up their own parties and picnicking by themselves on reaching Plattsmouth. t-m-s

HARD ON HANDS.

Two Contraband from Handling the Dangerous Toy Pistols.

From time to time we are called upon to record accidents more or less serious resulting from careless handling of dangerous and deadly weapons in the hands of mere boys. It is a remarkable fact that the law will allow mothers to sell to boys not yet in their teens, and still more so that mothers will allow their children to possess such dangerous playthings. Among articles of the nature alluded to is a small pistol sold by some dealers, which retails for a dollar, and shoots a genuine though diminutive cartridge. John Keller, a boy 13 years of age, was the possessor of one of these deadly toys, and came to grief therefrom. He resides on Sixteenth and Davenport streets, and about two o'clock yesterday was in company with several companions on his own way, amusing himself in testing its qualities in a neighbor's yard. Charlie White, one of the number, requested the privilege of shooting of the pistol just once, and was allowed to do so. He took the weapon, and after snapping it twice and failing to make it go off, was asked by young Keller to give it back. The latter took hold of the toy with his left hand, and as he did so the hammer fell for the third time, and the weapon was discharged, the ball, the size of a very small currant, entering his hand in the tender spot between the second and third fingers. Keller fell to the ground, but called to a playfellow to pick up his pistol, thinking less of his wound than of the valued toy.

He was taken to the office of Dr. Wood & Hart, where his injuries were attended to, although the ball could not be found. Dr. Wood does not think the wound will prove serious although it will be quite painful for a while.

NUMBER TWO.
On Saturday afternoon a boy 13 years of age came down from Irvington to Dr. J. C. Leisinger to have a wound in his right hand dressed. This boy, whose name was L. R. Bingham, had been fooling with a pretty good-sized pistol in which he had placed a blank cartridge. He then proceeded to cock the pistol, placing the muzzle against the palm of his right hand. True to the nature of the festive weapon, the pistol off, and the wad entering the boy's hand, lacerated it terribly. He was in the city again yesterday to see Dr. Leisinger, and his hand and arm were then both much swollen.

DOMESTIC DIFFICULTIES.

Mr. Richard Morgan, who resides on Sixteenth street near North Omaha creek, was arrested Saturday, at the instance of his wife, charged with willfully maltreating her. It appears that he has been in the habit of abusing her for several months past, and her brother has frequently expostulated with him for his conduct. On the evening of the first, while the brother was attending the democratic ratification meeting, he pounded her and abused her shamefully, which fact coming to the ears of the brother on his return from the meeting, he again remonstrated, and was answered by Morgan with torrents of abuse.

Friday evening Morgan came to the house where the brother lives, and threatened to "kill him," "cut his heart out," etc.—so the neighbors say.

He was brought up before Judge Hayes Saturday, and bound over to keep the peace, and a trial of the case set for July 7.

Mrs. Morgan states that it is her intention to sue for a divorce on the ground of long-continued cruelty and abuse.
