MORNING FOR MAY. Heart-Rending and Fatal Accident to a Little Girl.

The Patience of the Little Sufferer.

One of the saddest accidents we were ever obliged to record, was that which occurred about 1 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in the family of Mr. John M. Rice, a carpenter in the employ of the U. P. railroad company, who resides on 17th street, between Webster and Burt. The victim was his bright and beautiful little daughter, May, a winning child of five years of age.

The little girl had been playing in the yard with one or two little companions of about her own age, the trio indulging in the favorite past-time of having a play tea-party. In the course of their innocent amusement May left the others to get a lemon for one of her guests and this generous hospitality cost her her life. A woman had been engaged in doing the washing and had taken off from the kitchen stove a boiler full of clothes, from which she had just lifted the clothes, leaving the boiler with its scalding contents sitting upon the floor. As the child ran in at the door she tripped, and before she could recover her balance fell, in a half backward manner, into the boiler. In falling she threw up her arms, which caught on the edges of the vessel, but her whole body, with the exception of her head, arms and shoulders and the lower part of her limbs were immersed in the fatal bath. She gave one scream of agonized terror which brought her mother, who was near at hand to her rescue and she was instantly rescued from her position, but not until she had been terribly burned. The neighbors ran to the assistance of the horrified mother, every means was resorted to, to assuage the suffering of the child. The clothes were torn off and liberal applications of flour and lard rolled upon the burned portion of the body. A physician was summoned and remained in close attendance but human aid was beyond avail. The shock to the nervous system was so great that the child passed into spasms, which continued at intervals during the night, until at 5 o'clock yesterday morning little May passed from earth to the kingdom which is made of such as she.

During her suffering the child exhibited the utmost fortitude, uttering no word or complaint beyond an occasional groan. She submitted heroically to every measure resorted to for her relief, and was perfectly conscious to the last. The funeral will take place to-day at 2 o'clock. The accident has fallen with crushing weight upon the bereaved and devoted parents, who have the sympathy of all in their sad affliction.

TERRIBLE ACCIDENT.

An Unfortunate Young Lady Has Her Hand Crushed.

The Murderous "Mangle."

It seems that within the past few days the succession of accidents has hardly given one breathing time, and the chapter of horrors is apparently one without an end. About nine o'clock yesterday morning a young lady engaged in the ironing department of the City Laundry, met with a mishap which will forever disfigure her left hand, if indeed amputation should not become necessary. Miss Probst has worked in the laundry for two or three months and her department was in the second story of the building, on 12th street. Here is a machine called the "gas mangle," in which hotel clothes and other heavy articles are ironed. The mangle consists of three revolving cylinders in an upright frame, the center one being of steel, heated by jets of gas covered with the other two of wood, within and with heavy felt and muslin. This machine is fed from both sides, the clothes being passed first between the two lower cylinders and back under the one above. Miss Probst was feeling and being familiar with the machine probably was a little careless. It is supposed that she was passing aside, and at that moment, in glancing in a sheet, her left hand was caught between the hot steel roller and the lower one. She uttered piercing cries, but before the power could be shut off her entire hand and wrist had been passed through the thin aperture, crushing and burning it at the same time. She was released as quickly as possible by one of the assistants, and in a terrible agony was taken to the room below and Dr. Van Camp summoned. The physician assured her that she would not lose her hand, but such was her terror and pain that it was necessary to administer chloroform before he could dress her wounded hand and wrist.

The force of the establishment, consisting principally of women, the scene subsequent to the accident may be imagined but not described. The proprietor informed us that this was the first accident which had ever occurred in his establishment.

Yesterday the doctor thought that the injuries would not prove so severe as stated. The nail of the first finger was removed and a small portion of the tip of the second finger taken off, and so far as could be discovered, the bones were not broken. Mr. G. T. Wilkins, the gentlemanly proprietor of the laundry, took the young lady to his own home on 9th street, where she will be well cared for, and for this he deserves commendation. Dr. Van Camp thinks that the wounds will heal up in a couple of weeks.

ZERGA'S DEATH. The Victim of the Shooting Affray No More.

Since our last issue a few additional particulars concerning the murder committed on Tuesday afternoon have been obtained. It is learned that an Italian, supposed to be Gozzolo, had purchased a revolver at Collins & Petty's in the afternoon and at the same time tried to steal another. There is no doubt that this ugly weapon, which is known as the "Bull-Dog" was the one purchased and for the purpose of shooting Zerga. In addition to the description of the man Gozzolo, it is stated that he had a scar on his cheek, near the eye, and a bullet mark on the chin. About 6 o'clock Tuesday evening a man answering this description was seen going into a home on 14th street, between Davenport and Chicago streets, and it is believed that this was the refuge he was aiming at in going up Fifteenth, and that he will in a few days be arrested. Before he had some reports that the fellow was concealed all night in the brush southwest of Fifteenth, and that he is not very far from the city. There is no reward or incentive to stir up the enthusiasm of the force, and if Gozzolo is sharp about it he will get away without any trouble.

At 7 o'clock yesterday Zerga expired and his body was immediately removed to the undertaking rooms of Coroner Jacobs. Before he had some money in the hands of a good man in Chicago. Cuno telegraphed to the man who was John Martin, an Italian from the town of Zerga, in Italy, and used to be a government mail carrier. Cuno knew the family in the old country.

During yesterday Dr. Chadwick made a post mortem examination, and at 3 o'clock in the afternoon a jury was impaneled.

Deputy Sheriff Grebe is on the track of the fugitive, some traces have been discovered which may lead to his capture, which is demanded for the credit of the city and state. It is scarcely possible for Gozzolo to escape hanging if he is captured.
