TREE MARRIED MEN.

The Bold Banishment of North Omaha and Their Exploits.

They Raid Five Houses for Gold.

And Have a Picnic by Moonlight.

"I am not going to pay any more taxes to this city," said a prominent gentleman yesterday to a tax reporter.

"I give in North Omaha, where we are not given the protection of the police, and cannot even get the city council to establish the grade of our streets, so that we can lay sidewalks in front of our houses."

The immediate cause of these remarks was the occurrence which took place Wednesday in Nelson and Shinn's additions and which as gathered from several of the parties chiefly interested are quite worthy of a chapter to themselves.

SEVEN O'CLOCK ON THE LAND. About 11 o'clock Mr. Van Buren, who works at Hickman's, was on his way home he saw a couple of men standing in front of the residence of Mr. N. J. Burnham on Idaho street.

One of the men was rather tall, heavy set and muscular, with mustache and no whiskers and wearing a slouch hat pulled down over his eyes. His companion was much shorter and smaller every way. Later in the evening some one saw a man he took to be colored come out of a yard in the vicinity but supposed it was the hired girl's fellow just getting home.

About 1:30 o'clock Mrs. Lane, who lives in a small brick house just back of Mr. Burnham's, was sitting on the back door step, being sick and unable to sleep, when she saw three men go to the south door of his residence and try to pry it open. Two of them stood on the porch and worked while the third hid in some lattice work near by to watch. Mrs. Lane hastened into the house and called her husband to the house and the alarm and jumping over the fence ran down the alley followed by the dogs barking at them. Mrs. Lane thought the men were colored men, but Mr. Lane was of the opinion that

THEY WERE MASKED. They were seen quite plainly as they passed down the alley within a few feet of the Lanes. An investigation revealed the fact that they had made a most desperate attempt to get into the house. The key to the front door was turned with a piece of stick, and the hall entered, where the doors leading to the parlor and dining room were found locked, and ingress barred in that direction. They then went to the front windows and cut the lattice-work, but found the sash fastened with patent latches, and were again defeated. They then made the third attempt witnessed by Mrs. Lane. They must have had an idea that they would not be troubled or else had something worse than robbery in view. Mr. Burnham was robbed once before, however, and has everything in shape to resist such raids as this.

FISHING BY MOONLIGHT. The men next went to the residence of Mr. J. S. Bennett, the Pullman laundryman, where they succeeded in getting a window open and the night fisher out. Mr. Bennett's clothes, taken from the pockets his silver watch and gold chain, a present to the lad. The clothes were then thrown down by the window where they were found this morning.

THE BIGGEST HAUL. The next house visited was the new residence of Mr. George Cornish, the milkman, in Shinn's addition. Here they entered by means of a back door found conveniently open. They passed through the hall by the door of Mrs. Cornish's bed room to the stairway, and up to the room occupied by Mr. Cornish and his wife, where they secured his clothes, took them down stairs and rifled them of a watch and chain and $38 in cash.

THE PRIZE. From here the gang went to the residence of Dexter L. Thomas. They climbed in at the window of his coal shed and entered the kitchen, although the door stood unlocked. Once inside they opened the oven and took out a large piece of boiled ham, which was cooked last night in anticipation of a party to be held Thursday. They went down cellar and got a loaf of bread and two cans of plum preserves, and going outside on the grass plot they coolly sat down and proceeded to fill up. What was not eaten was left on the grass to be found by the unfortunate excursionists yesterday morning.

The house of Mrs. Cornish, on Idaho street, was also opened, and the door found unlocked yesterday morning, but nothing was missing.

THE COUNTY CAMPAIGN.

The Work of Registration Going on With Satisfactory Results.

The Country Over-run With U. P. Strikers.

But Their Game Won't Win.

Notwithstanding all the bolling, blackguardism and abuse of the U. P. grant the work of registration of republican voters of this city and county is a steadily progressing. In the country precincts, registration is all well completed. On Wednesday we published the registered lists of voters of Saratoga and McFarland precincts. Yesterday we published the certified lists of Millard, Florence, and West Omaha precincts. The aggregate number of voters registered in those precincts is over 400. The lists of the remaining precincts will be published Friday and Saturday. The total number of voters registered in the country precincts will aggregate very nearly 900, and it is safe to say that in the entire eleven precincts registration is so complete that not over ten republicans have been omitted. Even these will be added to the list if they make it known in time. Owing to the rigid requirement of the committee, which compels each republican to be registered in person in this city, the number has fallen short so far. We understand a large number will register to-night. The committee have decided to extend the time for two days longer, during the evening hours. On Friday and Saturday registrars will be in session at the same places heretofore advertised. Mr. Kenniston, who has charge of the general books of registration, will sit for correction of the lists during the two days, Friday and Saturday, at the Board of Trade rooms, where he will also receive the names of parties who may desire to register. His hours will be from 9 a. m. to 11 a. m. and 3 p. m. to 5 p. m.

After next Monday no additions can be made to the lists, under the order of the central committee, and those who are not registered at that time will have to forego the pleasure of voting at the primaries. The irreparable means that have been used in circulating the remonstrance against the work of the committee, render it unnecessary to treat that document as anything more than a monstrous fraud. Wednesday a meeting was held at Waterloo by the republicans of Valley precinct. A debate took place between Messrs. E. M. Sincular, Charles J. Green and E. Rosewater. After a thorough ventilation of the local contest by the speakers, the residents of that precinct were overwhelmingly in favor of the reform inaugurated by the committee. Many of them declared they had been misled into signing that protest by false statements, and they desired to have their names off that paper if possible. The members of the U. P. have been at work in every precinct manufacturing false rumors about buying up a man's instance man who had agreed to act as a registrar, but everywhere their scheme has been foiled to the people by means of the publicity printed upon them.

Call for the Judicial District Convention.

An enthusiastic meeting of colored republicans was held at Eureka hall Wednesday, culminated by inspiring strains of music from Lewis' brass band.

He also entertained the audience with a brief sketch of the life of Gen. Garfield.

The chair having appointed J. R. Simpson, Benjamin Fulton, Mr. Sanders, J. O. Adams and W. H. Butler as a committee on resolutions, and to report the names of eighteen men to be elected as delegates to the state convention, the committee reported the following, and the report was adopted:

The secretary was directed to send copies of the above resolutions to the chairman of the central committee and the presidents of the Garfield and Arthur clubs. J. R. Simpson made an eloquent speech and called upon all colored men to join the republican campaign.

They Will Not Let Him Go. At the regular monthly business meeting of the First Baptist church, on Wednesday evening, the letter of Rev. Dr. Jameson, tendering his resignation as pastor, was taken up and discussed. The pastor, after some explanatory remarks, with becoming modesty retired from the room and Dr. O. S. Wood occupied the chair. Mr. S. P. Vining spoke of the great and good work Dr. Jameson had accomplished during his pastorate in Omaha, and the progress of the church during this period. He thought it highly important that the one who had been instrumental in directing the church work thus far should continue it. It was a critical time in the church's history and a change of pastors might prove disastrous. The Home Mission Society, he thought, could better afford to relinquish their claims on Mr. Jameson than could the people of Omaha. There was no work more important for him to do than right here in Omaha, and he hoped the church would decline to receive his resignation.

Mr. Rowell Smith spoke warmly in praise of the pastor, but thought as Mr. Jameson had accepted an important position from the Home Mission Society, it would be difficult for him to decline that appointment.

Several others spoke, all giving the opinion that the pastor should not give up his work in Omaha, no matter what other call he might have. The motion not to accept the pastor's resignation was put and, though a large number was present and voted, the chair declared it was carried unanimously.

On motion a committee was appointed to wait on Rev. E. H. E. Jameson and inform him of the action of the church and urge him, if consistent with his convictions of duty, to remain as pastor. The committee, consisting of E. P. Vining, D. L. Shane, S. P. Briggs, Thomas Bonner and Dr. O. S. Wood, went to Mr. Jameson's residence, at the close of the meeting and laid the matter before him. The pastor was much affected at this strong expression towards him on the part of the church. He replied to the committee that he had probably misapprehended the real sentiment of the church towards him, and had perhaps attached too much importance to a direct work to some other minister to church, and take the wider field in this great state, but that action of his people had unsettled him as to duty. He asked a few days to reflect and to confer with the home mission board.
