The democratic press are unanimous in saying that they never expected to carry Vermont. Of course they didn't. There are too many farmers in Vermont who do their own thinking.

The present hour of common sense is 241 votes who had no roots in the last. The merchants and manufacturers have increased from 91 to 199, and the country gentlemen and agriculturists have diminished from 260 to 136.

The plan of sending brigadier generals to Vermont didn't pan out either. Almost all of Vermont's soldiers were under Gen. Hancock's command in "the late unpleasantness."

A notable omission in the list of republican state speakers for the 29th year, is the name of Colonel Chaso. We regret to notice this, but are informed by one of the executive committee that the colonel declined to speak on account of a constant pressure of official business upon him as mayor.

A brother of Charles A. Dana, editor of the New York Sun, is making republican speeches in Ohio. Both were strong republicans originally, but Chas. A. Dana was refused the collection of the party of New York and had felt convinced ever since that republicanism is a delusion and a snare.

Latest reports from the railroads announce unprecedented earnings and enormous profits. The New York Central road has increased its earnings over last year in the sum of $4,701,000. The Chicago & Northwestern reports receipts for August, $433,000 greater than for August 1879. The Chicago & Alton has increased its profits of last year $1,831,000, and the Washab $2,432,000. Now why do not the railroads follow the business system of ordinary trade and manufacture and let their tariffs be regulated by their profits?

If the people agitate the subject of legislation against railroad extortion they are met with an answer that railroad rates are like any other business, and the people have no more right to interfere with its operation than they have to say how much sugar, salt or corn shall be sold for. The prices of these articles, we are told, depend upon the condition of the market, and the profits of the manufacturers and selling is subject to the same laws.

Such arguments are specious and false. The railroad corporations admit of no element except competition and the pleasure of the management to modify rates and tariffs. The fact that a road is prosperous and earning heavy profits on fictitious stock is to them no ground for a reduction in extortionate freight and passenger charges. Should the profits appear to large the stock of the road is immediately increased and the dividends lowered, while the enormous sums extorted from the people continue to roll into the coffers of the wealthy treasury.

There is only one way to stop the crying evils committed by the railway tycoons, and that is to place in their hands the means of their own public careers and the exercise by legislature of their right to fix a limit of freight and passenger rates.

The people must be protected from the daily command to "pay tolls." Corporate monopolies and trusts are only a few of the evils which are being perpetrated by the enforcement of the laws of the country.

A discovery was recently made in Idaho Springs of a large, well defined ore body carrying a streak of quartz from one to three feet in width, accompanied by a vein of mineral of a high grade, some three inches in width, which will certainly run up in the hundreds.

SALARY GRABBERS.

It is interesting to read the democratic denunciations of Gen. Garfield's connection with the salary grab, in the light of some statistics recently compiled by the Cleveland Leader. The author of the salary grab was Gen. Butler, now blaring for the Democracy in Maine. Through his ingenuity the bill to commensurate the steel was tacked on to the legislation on a provision bill, which extended in its provisions to every part of the machinery of the government in all the states and territories. The records of the house all prove that General Garfield antagonized Butler's grabbing scheme at every step. He opposed it in committee, opposed it in the house, and fought against it in committee of the whole. Eighteen times he voted against it on as many different occasions, and only yielded at last to save the bill as it came from a conference committee of the two houses in the expiring hour of the session.

The Senate of the Forty second congress was composed of 62 republicans, 17 democrats and five liberal republicans. The house was composed of 134 republicans, 104 democrats and five liberal republicans. Upon the question of agreeing to the conference report on the legislative, executive and judicial bill, the senate voted affirmatively as follows: 42.3 per cent. of the republican senators; 58.8 per cent. of the democratic, and 89 per cent. of the liberal senators. The vote in the house comprised 39.4 per cent. of the republican members, 45 per cent. of the democrats, and 60 per cent. of the liberal republicans. The bill passed and back pay amounting to over $4000 to each member was granted by its provisions. Now comes in the question "who kept the money?"

The record shows that on the republican side the senate 40.4 per cent. carried the money, and 29.4 per cent. on the democratic side. Of the house republicans, 38.7 per cent made restitution to the treasury, and only 14.4 per cent. of the democrats. Republican senators and representatives covered into the treasury $223,301.21 and democratic senators and representatives only $55,576. If we add the liberal republicans to the republican list, the sum total aggregates $239,237.60 returned by the republican members of the Forty-second congress.

General Garfield never took his pay out of the treasury department, and was the second to ever do back, Vice-President Wheeler being the first. General Garfield, with his fellow representatives of both parties, was strenuously opposed to the steel, but was compelled to give assent solely for the purpose of saving the legislative, executive and judicial bill in the closing hours of the session and for the determination to repeal it at the first opportunity. General Garfield sided with other reputable congressmen and senators washed his hands clean of the dirty transaction by immediately returning his share of the plunder into the national treasury. If the democracy will state the truth about the salary grab the party who had much to cry about.

Many have gone republican. The returns are not yet in, but there is little doubt of the result. For four years past Maine has been distracted by the financial heresies of the greenbackers. In 1876 the republican majority was 18,000. Two years later, owing to the state of trade and the discontent of the people, a nation of the democratic and greenback parties resulted in a republican majority of 13,000. Last year the republicans, who had been caught napping the year before, warned to their work, and cost a vote of 68,706, or within one per cent. of a majority. The contemplated Greenback state which followed was fresh in the minds of all. The campaign this year has been the most enthusiastic and thorough of any which has taken place in Maine. The fusion campaign of the democrats and greenbackers opened with brilliant success, and until a few weeks ago the fusionists claimed that they could carry the state. Since that time there has been a genuine stampede from their ranks. The hard money democrats have been flocking to the republican ranks, and thousands of republicans who had been led by their discontent during the last term to join the greenback party had their eyes opened and returned to the republican fold.

The disgraceful attempt of Garfield to steal the legislature has reacted heavily on the fusionists and strengthened their opponents. Mr. Weaver's arrival did much to scatter the seeds of discontent in the fusion ranks. He had just arrived from Alabama and there he had gained some insight into the same old democracy and its methods to assist the fusionists and their candidate. The greatest of all arguments against fusion success has been the prosperity of the country. From latest advices Maine's republican majority will not fall below 5,000 and may reach 15,000. The democrats will now have to pay their attention to Indiana, Ohio and New York. Certainly Maine and Vermont need no aid of a change.

CONGRESSMAN BILTSCHOFF has very foolishly denied having written the letter attributed to him in which he told one of his constituents that it would be impossible to get his pension bill through congress because the rebel general who is at the head of the pension committee in the senate, was a man who had been in the army of the New York Central. Mr. Biltzschoff of saltwater falsehood, says it has the original letter in its possession and has compared it with many others of Mr. Biltzschoff's, the handwriting agreeing perfectly. Mr. B. will now go to meet Wade Hampton.

The people must be protected from the daily command to "pay tolls." Corporate monopolies and trusts are only a few of the evils which are being perpetrated by the enforcement of the laws of the country.
