SANTA CLAUS FOUND.
Greatest Discovery of the Age.
Wonderful discoveries in the world have been made Among other things where Santa Claus stayed Children oft ask if he makes goods or not, If really he lives in a mountain of snow, Last year an excursion sailed clear to the Pole And suddenly dropped into what seemed like a hole Where wonder of wonders they found a new land, With fairy-like beings appeared on each hand. There were mountains like ours, with more beautiful green, And far brighter skies than ever were seen, Birds with the hues of a rainbow were found, While flowers of exquisite fragrance were growing around. Not long were they left to wonder in doubt A being soon came they had heard much about, 'Twas Santa Claus' self and th is they all say, He looked like the picture s eee every day. He drove up a team that looked very queer, 'Twas a team of grasshoppers Instead of reindeer, He rode in a shell instead of a sleigh, But he took them on board and drove them away. He showed them all over his wonderful realm, And factories making goods for women and men Furriers were working on hats great and small, To Bunce's they said they were sending them all. Chris Kmzle, the Glove Maker, told them at once, All our Gloves we are sending to Bunce, Santa showed them suspenders and many things more. Saying I also took these to friend Bunce's store. Santa Claus then whispered a secret he'd tell, As in Omaha every one knew Bunce well, If s therefore should send his goods to his care, Knowing his friends will get their full share. Now remember ye dwellers in Omaha town, All who want presents to Bunce's go round, For shirts, collars, or gloves great and small, Send your sister or aunt one and all.

OVER A POWDER MINE.

NARROW ESCAPE OF TWO CHINESE MINERS IN A TUNNEL.

Nevada (Cal.) Transcript.

The Chinese Hydraulic Mining company at Moor's Flat have advanced their bed-rock tunnel a distance of seventy-nine feet within two weeks. This is considered rapid work, as the character of the ground is not favorable to the operation. Compressed air drills are used, and as large a force of men are employed as can work to good advantage. Our informant says that the company expects to complete the tunnel and begin washing within the next eight months. It has formerly been stated that all this would be accomplished by Christmas next, but probably the more recent estimate of time required is nearer correct. A remarkable accident occurred in this tunnel the other day. A blast had been fired off, and two Chinamen shortly after entered for the purpose of charging some other holes in the vicinity that had previously been drilled, but left empty. One of the Chinamen was to hold a candle while the other inserted the charge. Not reappearing after a lapse of three quarters of an hour, the workmen on the surface became alarmed, and followed them in order to learn the cause of their long absence. The rescuing party was greeted by a startling sight upon reaching the breast of the tunnel. The two Chinamen lay in an unconscious state close to the drill-holes. Appearances indicated that they had succumbed to the poisonous fumes of the powder smoke shortly after beginning work. In the hands of one was the remnant of a burning candle, and but a few inches from the novel candlestick was a lot of powder. He held it with a death-grip, and the flame had gradually crept downward, roasting the flesh to the bone on the inside of the thumb and fingers which encompassed it. The slightest movement would have brought the fire in contact with the powder and caused a disastrous explosion. The victims were hastily conveyed to the open air, and after considerable effort restored to consciousness. Had they been permitted to remain in the tunnel a few minutes longer it is believed that both would have died, as they were in a sinking condition when discovered.

French Bees.

Continental Gazette.

The bees are now being expelled from Paris by the Prefect of Police. A complaint lodged against these proverbial patterns of industry brought the fact to light that some skillful speculator had established somewhere in the outskirts of the gay capital no fewer than 1,000 bee-hives, with a busy community of about 40,000 of subjects, who rob and torment their neighbors to an alarming degree. These winged brigrands, as it seems, sally forth to prey upon the sugar, beating works with which the neighborhood is studded, and which proved to be a most profitable substitute for honey giving flowers. The owner of one of these sugar factories, who stands first in the list of complainers, calculates that bees steal from him at least twenty-five francs' worth of sugar yearly. The workmen of these establishments look with even more unfriendly eyes on the winged freebooters, for they suffer in person for their greediness. When the workman leaves the factory he is often covered with a sticky layer of sugar, and the watchful bees immediately pounce upon him and turn him into a field of pasture. In short, so many misdeeds are charged upon these busy insects that it is not improbable the head of the police will issue an order for their banishment from Parisian soil.

His Lost Wife.

Detroit Free Press.

The police yesterday had a call from [illegible] who had come down from Isabella county with his wife to see the state fair. He was in a heap of trouble over the fact that they had become separated over twelve hours previously, and all his hunting and inquiring had failed to get trace of her. He explained the separation as follows:

"You see, we was lookin' at the runnin' races. Sich things allus excite me, fur I've bin thar myself. The hoss I bet on was losing ground, and I tried to climb a stump to swing my hat and encourage him. That let the crowd in between me and Hanner, and the fust I knew I couldn't find her."

"How old is your wife?" asked the officer.

"About 22," replied the old man as the red came to his face. "She's my third wife, you see, maybe I was a little foolish."

"Did she have any young lovers?"

"Piles of 'em."

"Were any of them at the state Fair?"

"I believe I saw two or three."

"Old man," said the officer after a long pause, "I want to ask you a question, and I hope you will not get offended."

"No, sir, I won't be miffed at any thing you ask."

"Suppose, now, that your wife had ——had——? That is to say, suppose ——?"

"By gum!" exclaimed the old man as he shut up his jack-knife; "I believe I ketch your meaning. If Hanner has played that trick on me somebody'll get shot."

"That's only my theory," mused the officer. "Perhaps she loves you, and wouldn't think of eloping."

"I dunno about that—I dunno. I gave her 120 acres of mighty nice land before she'd have me. What shall I do. I feel as if I stood on a hot gridiron.

"Take one more look over the grounds and I'll see you at the grand stand in an hour."

The old man hurried off at a canter, and when the hour was up the officer walked down to the stand. There he found a cross-eyed lop-shouldered woman sitting on the fence with her No. 7 feet displayed to the gaze of thousands. Beside her was the old man. When he saw the officer he got down and shook hands, and whispered:

"That's her, and she never even thought of eloping."

The officer looked the young wife over from head to foot, and was turning away when the old man whispered;

"I kin see them feet, and them eyes, and that shoulder jist as plain as you kin, but I'm no fool! Her mother is the only woman in our county who weaves rag carpets, and her dad has lent me $200 without an indorser. And, say!"

"Yes."

"The land I gin her has twelve tax titles and a mortgage on it! See! Keluck—whoop! I'm no chicken!" And he climbed up beside her, put his arm around her waist, and yelled out that he would back the roan horse against the field.

The Man From Deadwood

Brooklyn Eagle.

A Brooklyn boy who spent some six months in the Black Hills, struck home last week and sauntered up Fulton street. He was dressed in an antelope skin shirt, a pair of blacktail deer skin pantaloons, beaded moccasins and a white felt hat with a brim like a wagon wheel. He wandered into a saloon thumped his fist on the counter and howled for tan juice with a glistening eye. "Will yer jine me, strangers?" he said to three or four gentlemen sitting at a table, adding, as they hesitated, "I reckon ye'd better. With me an invite means liquor or blood. Ye'd better come up." They approached the bar and all took beer except one, who took cider, explaining that he had never touched spirits in his life. "Wall, I'll be dogged!" roared the skin-decked traveller. "Ef yer was with me whar I hang out ye'd be inter a hole. 'Cause thar's whar yer got ter drink, whether yer drink or not. 'Sluck!" And he poured in the poison. "Where are you from, if I might ask?" inquired the older man. "From? Right from the gulch. The clean up put me a few thousand ahead, and I'm wanderin' to see the sights. You bet!" "From the mines!" "Straight from just where you reckoned I was, stranger. I been inter the Hills. Panned big, and now I'm in for a regular old He. You bet!" "How are things in the Hills now? Is business depressed, or are things flourishing?" "I don't know nothin' about them big words, but if you want ter know how things is, they're thar. I seen twenty millions o' money taken out o' my my mine in fourteen hours. That's trade. That's hittin' gilt every wash, and don't you forgit; you bet!" "How does Custer City seem to progress?" "I ain't no bihness with no Custer City—I'm a miner, I am." "I saw in a recent paper that a number of troops have been moved to Fort Meade. Do think there is any danger from Indians?" "Injuns! Injuns, pard! Why there's more'n seven millions of 'em settin' around on the rocks waitin' a chance to lite in. Injuns! Why you don't know nothin' about Injuns here. I seen a hundred thousand troops killed in an hour and a half. But I don't mind no Injuns. I tunneled under four tribes, camped half a mile from claim, and every doggoned one of them went up with the blast. You bet, there can't no Injuns git away with a Hiller, and don't yer forget it." "Deadwood must be rather a dangerous locality. I had no idea that it was so exposed." "Deadwood dangerous! Say, stranger, if ever learn to gamble, just put up your money on the statement that Deadwood is dangerously located. Yer'll winpard. Yer'll scoop the pot each tussle or count my judgment deuce box." "Going to be in Brooklyn any length of time?" "Jist come to take a squint at it. Say, show me around. Show me a faro bank, I've got too much dust for comfort, and I'd like ter drop or pick up. Show me around, stranger, and I'll make yer proud of yerself." "I don't think you would find me a very good guide, for I've only been here a comparatively short time, but perhaps one of my friends who resides here, would—" "Don't belong here! Whar yer from, stranger! Whar's yer teepee?" "I live in Deadwood," responded the stranger. "I'm only—" If the young traveler will come around and pay for those drinks all will be forgiven.

Stock and Stock Feeding.

Blair Republican.

My opinion coincides with yours as to the ultimate destiny of Nebraska farmers, that is, that the breeding and feeding stock will at no distant day become the leading industry of our state. If I can add anything to our prosperity or to aid those who may be desirous of turning their attention to that branch of farming by giving my experience through the medium of your valuable paper, I will do so cordially.

First—As to kinds of stock. I would say to those who have the native cows,—by all means get the use of a thorough-bred bull—either buy or hire. If one person has not the amount of stock to warrant purchasing, let neighbors combine and get a good one. You need not go into fancy animals at fancy prices and fancy colors, but get the form and size; and if breeding from him does not give an increase of weight on steers, two or three years' old, of one sixth to one-seventh—with the same feed and care,—then their experience will not coincide with mine. My grades have done so, and those neighbors who have used my bull have verified the same result.

The next best thing to a thoroughbred bull is the high grade—the result might be the same—but it is not so certain. And in working for beef we should not forget the porkers, for the profit of feeding is greatly enhanced by their aid in gathering the waste incident to our western mode of feeding, and converting it into one of the necessaries of life. "Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty." Without that a man must not expect a successful issue in his efforts to grow swine. Men vary in opinion as to which is the best breed. I have reached the best results with a cross of the Poland China and Berkshire, but what will be the outcome of continual crosses I cannot say, having followed only to the fourth generation in my present cross of pigs. These are out of a full blood Berkshire crossed on three fourths Poland China sows. With the pigs resulting from this cross I shall put a full blood Poland China boar, as by so doing I find I can keep the size and early maturing qualities of the latter with the prolific breeding qualities of the Berkshire.

Last year my sows with their pigs ran on grass with a light feed of corn; in the fall put them after my feeders, and the result is three hundred pound hogs with the rise at ten, eleven and twelve months old. The sows should be slopped three or four weeks at farrowing time to give the pigs a good strong start.

I have the past winter fed forty-two head of Oregon steers which were in bad condition when put in the yard. I first fed snapped corn, then shuck, shelled and cracked, mixed and soaked, twelve hours last end of feeding. I gave all the hay they would eat until late in the spring—in fact, I believe I kept a full supply to them longer than best—for my cattle made a better gain after I stinted hay, by reason of increased consumption of corn. Some of my neighbors who fed less hay from the start, made a better gain than my stock.

I give the following figures as a partial showing of my own experience the past winter, for the benefit of our farmers:

42 head, weight—1200 lbs, cost	$1,437 40
Lost one	34 70
80 bush. corn per head 40 life	575 45
	$2,067 55
Sold 38 head, at home at 3½c, average weight 1500—shrinkage 40 lbs.	2,061 50
Three scalawags	80 00
Hogs, sold and increase of forty head ($1.20)	820 00
	$2,961 69
Net profit (without labor and hay)	2,067 67
	894 05

E. S. GAYLORD.

A Modest Darkey.

A darkey came to a Galveston justice of the peace and asked for a warrant for the arrest of Jim Webster. "What's he done?" "He stole my chickens; dar's de fedders in his yard." "How do you know those feathers belonged to your chickens?" "I can prove it by Col. Jones, but I doesn't like to have him brung inter court, kase he is so modest like." "What's the matter with Col. Jones?" "Nothing, boss; but to tell de troof, eber since I stole his chickens I loses all confidence in de man as soon as he looks me squar in de face."

A GREAT FRENCH PHIL.
ÖSÖHPER
once defined a doctor to be "a person who pours drugs, about which he knows little, into a body concerning which he knows less, in order to cure diseases of which he knows nothing," and the empirical, barbarous, useless treatment of piles since the days of Hyppocrates, when doctors burned the tumors off with red hot iron, down to the absurd wonder-cures and nostrums of modern quacks, would seem to bear testimony to the wisdom of the Frenchman. The great modern benefactor of the modern race is now delivered by every one to be Dr. Sibbee, the discoverer of an infallible pile remedy in "Anakesa." This miraculous cure for the most painful of all diseases is regarded as the scientific triumph of the Age, and is prescribed and endorsed by physicians of all schools. It is not taken internally but applied as a suppository directly to the affected part. It gives instant relief, soothes pain as a poultice, reduces up the tumors as an instrument, and ultimately cures piles by its medication. "Anskesa," Dr. S. Sibee's External Pile Remedy, is sold by all first-class druggists. Price $1.00 per box. Sample mailed free to all sufferers on application to P. Neustadter & Co., Box 3746 New York.

Prof. Guilmette's French Kidney Pad is manufactured in this country, from the French formula, and is the genuine For sale by druggists.
