LANDING OF THE PILGRIMS

Hosts of Prospectors from the East Arrive in Nebraska.
To So-Journ a Few Days With Us.

The event of yesterday was the arrival of the excursionists from the east who come to look at and examine the rich plains and valleys of our state, and then go home and accompanied by their wives, sisters, cousins and aunts, return, buy a farm and settle down in the Garden State of the Union.

The dispatches received at B. & M. headquarters this morning early announced the fact that the C. B. & Q. train was coming in with thirty-six coaches, in three sections, all loaded down. Owing to this immense load, a large portion of which was to cross the river at Plattsmouth, the train on that line were over three hours late, arriving at the Bluffs about noon. The first train in was the Wabash with a good load, about 125 passengers. At 11 o'clock the Rock Island train came in, in two sections, bringing two hundred excursionists for Columbus alone, fifty for Lincoln and many others for scattering points along the U. P. and B. & M. lines. It was told a few moments later by the Northwestern, with nine coaches crowded to the utmost, and bringing at a low estimate three hundred excursionists.

The immense throng poured from the trains, through the depot and towards Nebraska "a human tide." There were fully six hundred excursionists, with hundreds of regular passengers, and the platforms were literally black with people. The great waiting rooms of the U. P. hotel were crowded and the trains standing at the west side of the Transfer house were the object of a general rush and were soon packed with a living freight. The land office was besieged by persons desiring extension tickets, and after ordering two hundred by telephone a messenger was dispatched for hundred more. It was imminent and the sight could not fail to impress one with the fact that the east has people enough who are anxious to come west to fill all Nebraska's broad acres, if they could only be made acquainted with their richness and fertility. Probably not less than 3000 people have entered the state to-day to see if it is a place such as they wish to make their future home. These visitors of every class and calling, and the result of their trip of inspection will be of untold importance to our growth in the next five years. They will verbally, and through the local press in the states, tell a hundred thousand persons who did not come what Nebraska is, and next spring the tide of emigration will set westward in earnest.

It is to be regretted that the weather was not more favorable, and that it is the worst that has been seen at this season for years.

They will however find plenty of our prosperity and tell them our advantages, and after all they will have some enough to know a good thing when they see it, even seeing it in different cities.

Having severed my connection with Mr. C. J. Taylor, I have removed my fire insurance agency from the corner of 14th and Douglas to room 6, Creighton block, and I would inform my old friends and patrons that I will attend at their underwriters. THE FIRE.

Narrow Escape of a Business Block from Destruction.

Having Meantime Closed the Eyes of Another Wife.

About 1:30 yesterday smoke was seen pouring from the upper windows and roof of the building occupied by Mr. E. B. Carter, the jeweler, corner of Thirteenth and Farnham street. Mr. Carter was soon apprised of his danger, and rushing up stairs found the back room full of smoke, and one corner all in flames. It had been done during the day, and a couple of tubs of water and a bucket were left standing in the middle of the fire. Mr. Carter sat to work like an old fireman, and very soon quenched the flames. But for this fortunate circumstance and the timely discovery, whole side of the block, including several frame buildings must have been destroyed.

As it was the damage was slight. How the fire originated is not known as Mr. Carter who was the last one in the room, does not smoke and there had been no fire there for days. An awful of packing taken from about some French cloches had just been deposited in the corner where the fire originated, and it is believed that some combustible substance was contained in the package.
