A CRYSTAL CROSSING.

Captain J. R. Porter's Ice Bridge Over the Missouri. An Enterprise Promising Big Results. The efforts of Hon. John R. Porter to combat the Union Pacific bridge monopoly during the past year, by maintaining a cheap ferry and his success in reducing the rate of bridge tolls and fares, are well known to our citizens. With the closing up of navigation the ferry boats were laid up but the indomitable spirit of Capt. Porter was not thus to be conquered, and he has again opened to the public a cheap thoroughfare between this city and the Iowa shore. Our reporter was yesterday permitted the pleasure of a drive from Omaha to the opposite city by Captain Porter's line, and with the exception of one obstacle, which will be removed in a few days, found it quite an enjoyable trip. At the foot of Jones street a wide bridge spans the space from the top of the rip-rap to the ice, which has formed a gorge from the bridge to the foot of Farnham street, and forms a safe and smooth natural bridge over the waters of the Big Muddy. From this bridge, which is eighty-five feet in length, to the other shore, a track is marked out upon the ice by sawdust strewn on pretty thickly and the whole track is as smooth as a paved street. The ice over the channel is over eight inches thick and constantly increasing. From the other side the captain has constructed a road, the grade of which is above high water mark, and which crosses the bayou at the further extremity of the flats, by means of a wide and substantial bridge 100 feet in length. This rests on poles driven in the ground to a depth of twenty feet, and its largest span is thirty-six feet. Its floor is of heavy, three inch plank, and is three feet above high water level. It will withstand the severest June rise of the river. The amount of money, time, labor and skill expended on this road is simply surprising, and we are of the opinion that Captain Porter has built up a more valuable property than he himself dreams of. He has in reality paved the way for the easy construction of a second bridge, and we believe it will result in this no distant period. The obstacle alluded to above is the crossing of the Omaha and Southwestern tracks, two of which cross his route at the foot of Jones street and are very serious and annoying obstructions to a public thoroughfare. The track-layers have promised to build a crossing this week, and the ice bridge will then be thrown open to the public at a very low rate of toll, and most for many reasons will be the patronage of most of the travel between the two cities, as it is the shortest, quickest, best and cheapest route. It is a big enterprise, and one for which Capt. Porter deserves the commendation of the public, which has too long suffered from the great impositions of the U. P. bridge monopoly.

WILLIAMS & SONS', Dodge and Fifteenth Sts. FATAL ACCIDENT. A Horse Frightened by the Cars Throws Its Driver to the Ground. Producing Concussion of the Brain. A serious and probably fatal accident occurred on Tenth street in front of the St. James Hotel, about six o'clock Tuesday evening. Mr. M. McIntosh, an old and well known employe of the Union Pacific railway, who occupied the position of car recorder, under Harry Gilmore, was on the way to town with his wife, from his residence on Tenth and Bancroft streets. When near the crossing of the Union Pacific tracks, his horse became frightened at some passenger coaches which were being switched down the main track. The horse, whirling suddenly about, backed the buggy upon a pile of water pipes, at the side of the track, throwing both occupants of the vehicle out. Mr. McIntosh fell upon the back of his head, striking on the base of the skull and producing serious concussion of the brain. Mrs. McIntosh received a severe cut in the left side of the head, above the eye, and was badly bruised about the shoulders, thighs and ankles. Her wounds, while severe, are not serious. Her husband was picked up in an insensible condition and carried to Bell's Tenth street drug store where Dr. Darrow rendered every possible aid that medical science could suggest and also attended to his wife's wounds. He continued unconscious and about 8 o'clock both parties were taken to St. Joseph's hospital where they still remain. Dr. Neville, the hospital physician and Dr. Darrow, both consider Mr. McIntosh's recovery impossible, as he has been crashed ever since his arrival at the hospital, and his system refusing to recover from the shock, his blood is gradually coagulating in his veins. Mr. McIntosh has no family other than his wife, and the indications are that before many hours she will be left a widow. He was about sixty years of age. LATER.
