The Sprague Quarrel.

Special Dispatch to The Bee.
Brooklyn, N. Y., December 29.— The Brooklyn Eagle last evening published the following statement, as made by Hon. Winchester Britton, Mr. Sprague's counsel, which will throw some light upon the shotgun interview which is said to have taken place between Senator Conkling and Governor Sprague:

Report—Do you mean that Mr.
Conklin's statements are correct as to the celebrated Canonicet affair?

Mr. Britton—Most certainly.

The sensational statements made through the press are wholly without foundation and I had occasion, professionally, to inquire into all the particulars of that affair, and the whole story published had not even a basis of truth.

R.—You do not mean to say that Senator Conkling was not there, and that he was not driven away by Governor Sprague?

Mr. Britton—There he was, and he left there, and that is all there is of the published statements that is correct. I mean to say that there was no collision whatever, verbally or physically, between the asso-ciator and the governor. The governor fell into one of his characteristic fratzy fits, and quarreled with Mr.
Sprague and a music teacher about the children's music lesson, and Senator Conkling, who was there, came into camp with the body of Johnson and a scene of wild excitement followed. Next morning the Indians appeared in warpaint, with faces bronzed and striped with heavy black marks which made them look like "fight blood, kill, heap, damn."

Conkling—What do you want to talk about?

Mr. Britton—Meacham said to me, "If the Poncas want to remain in the Indian territory, I suppose we must let them stay."
