He thereupon handed the Colonel beautiful solitaire diamend ring, whose glittering facets were reflected in the tear-drops that dimmed the eyes of the surprised recipient who could only find strength to offer the usual recognition of courtesy. He surrendered unconditionally and even today is so proud of his gem of a present that he can only show it to those who ask concerning the affair.

The ring cost nearly $200 and was purchased of Messrs. Editolm & Erickson, by a number of friends including our most prominent citizens and excluding many who regret that the entire gift was not their own expression of regard for an elegant gen-
