APPOINTMENTS.

WASHINGTON, March 25.—A. M.—The following appointments were sent to the senate yesterday.

CHAS. P. CHANDLER, receiver public money at Oberlin, Kan.; Thos. H. Kavanagh, register office, Oberlin, Kan.

POSTMASTERS.—Henry Davis, Bedford, Ind.; Hamilton E. Keller, Roanoke, Mo.; W. Henry N. Cook, Columbia, Mo.; Cornell H. Byler, Independence, Ind.; James T. Terrell, Terre Haute, Ind.; Wm. Ledwith, Jacksonville, Fla.

The following are the internal revenue appointments made yesterday: Phillip B. Peicher, stovekeeper and gauger, Ninth district of Pennsylvania; George W. Peicher, stovekeeper and gauger, Sixth district of Pennsylvania; Henry J. Cook, stovekeeper and gauger, Second district of Kentucky.

U. S. ELECTRIC COMMISSION.

The department of state announces that a commission has been organized to represent the United States in the forthcoming exhibition at Paris.

The assent secretary of state will, for the present, act as honorary commissioner. Gen. George W. Peicher, secretary of state, has been requested to act as executive commissioner in that city. George E. Gourard and Charles R. Goodwin, also, have been appointed as executive commissioners. Intending exhibitors should address application for information, blank forms, etc., to the assent secretary at the United States building, D. C. No application for space should be sent in later than April 20, 1881.

Exhibitors will have to bear all their own expenses for shipping goods to Paris at their own cost and risk.

CHINA'S NEW ADMIRAL.

It now appears that the recent order detailing Commodore R. W. Shufeldt from special duty, and detaching him as special attaché to the United States legation at Peking, is in fulfillment of the request of Leon Chang, viceroy of China, who, when the commodore was in command of the Chinese fleet, offered him the command of the Chinese navy, that government being desirous of reorganizing its navy on a modern and especially the American principle. He gave the matter serious consideration, and upon his return to this country, decided to accept the position. Secretary Blaine was heavily in favor of accepting the proposition, believing it would have some effect in breaking England's supremacy in the east. The order detailing Commodore Shufeldt from special duty at Peking was made, and his expense will be paid by the government. The salary attaché to Commodore Shufeldt's new position is $20,000 a year, and he will leave for his new post of duty in a few weeks.

SENATE.

Special Dispatch to The Bee.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—The first important business before the senate was calling up the resolution of Mr. Dawes for the election of senate officers.

Senator David Davis read an address reiterating his former assertion that he was in the senate as an independent, and should vote against any change in the present organization.

Senator Pendleton said he was willing to withhold his resolution to allow the senator from Ohio to prepare his speech.

Senator Dawes replied that he wished to avoid discussion on the resolution, at least until after the executive business of the session could be disposed of.

Senator Pendleton said he had hoped the resolution was merely intended to amend the senate, but it was not only on the democratic side of the senate.

At 12:29 o'clock Senator Horner moved to go into executive session, and called for the yeas and nays.

Yeas 33, Senator Davis of voting, and seven Senators being paired, the motion was declared lost.

Mr. Beck said he was strongly in all the republicans to stand on if H. R. Bidwell, a candidate for re-giant-at-arms, was the man who pushed certain republican resolutions through the Virginia legislature, and Mr. Pence moved to adjourn.

The motion was lost by a party vote, and another by Jones (Pa.), so into executive session, on the same day, Vice-President Arthur casting the deciding vote. Filibustering then continued.

The discussion between Messrs. Logan and Brown assumed the character of a comparison of personal political charges, and afforded considerable amusement. Brown's idea was to show that the motion to elect new senate officers was not in accordance with republican civil service reform.

At 2:15 p. m., Mr. Cameron, of Pennsylvania, arose and desired it understood that the republican and good officers to propose as were now in, and that they intended to put them in. It had come down to a question of endurance, and might as well be tested now as any time.

Mr. Brown accepted the situation, and said the republicans should be made to understand that they intended to stand firm, and could endure until June, and could endure until next December. Upon this declaration the senate settled down for a session of filibustering.

Mr. Horner stated that he considered the declaration from the democracy to filibuster until next December, as a declaration of war, and that he intended to stand firm, and could endure until June, and could endure until next December. Upon this declaration the senate settled down for a session of filibustering.

Mr. Brown said the action of the republicans in the Forty-sixth congress was far more reasonable than anything now proposed. He said that the republicans had challenged the democracy to a test of physical endurance, and the challenge had been accepted. He could see nothing of revolution or treason in that.

Mr. Logan admitted the physical power of the minority to control the senate, but denied the constitutional justification of such action. He characterized the senator from Georgia as an ardent defender, who had professed more of adroitness than of profound reason. There was no escape for democratic senators from the charge of obstruction and treason. They persisted in obstructing the business of the senate in violation of their oath.

Mr. Farley at 3:45 p. m. offered a resolution for the appointment of two senators as a committee to wait upon the president, to inform him that if he had no further communication to present to the senate, they were ready to adjourn without delay.

The chair ruled the motion out of order.

Mr. Morgan then moved that the senate go into executive session. The vote stood 28, yeas 28, and the motion was declared lost.

A motion by Mr. Pendleton to adjourn, made at 4 p. m., carried by 28 to 27.

The corpse of Mayor McLean has been selected as orator on the occasion of the unveiling of the Parrott statue in this city on April 25th next.

The impression that an extra session will be called, is not so strong as it was some time ago. It is now generally believed that all doubts are expected to be dispelled by the cabinet meeting to-morrow.

Lamp Victim of a Vandal Robber.

Special Dispatch to The Bee.

BROOKLYN, March 25.—"Come, wake up," said Mr. Charles Rogers, of the Fort Green police, to the man who was sleeping on one of the park benches at 11 o'clock yesterday morning. The person addressed was nearly as dead as a doornail, and was not over 30 years of age, and was wearing a dark leather satchel in his hand. He did not hear the order, and all attempts to arouse him proved futile. The officer proceeded to search the man, and found in his pocket a small bottle of morphine, and a box of matches. The man was taken to the station house, and the bottle of morphine was found to contain an ounce of morphine, and the label bore the trade mark of a Louisville druggist. Although attempts to arouse him from his sleep failed, the man was taken to the station house, and the bottle of morphine was found to contain an ounce of morphine, and the label bore the trade mark of a Louisville druggist.

No registered five can be purchased during the month of April next, as the transfer books will be closed during the month."

Beleagued Moonshiners.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., March 25.—A. M.—A special to the Commercial from Jonesville, Va., says: A desperate fight occurred at a still house fifteen miles from this place, on the Kentucky line, between moonshiners and revenue officers, to the number of twenty men. The moonshiners barricaded themselves in their still house, and a general fight ensued, in which three moonshiners were killed, and a half a dozen other moonshiners were wounded. The revenue officers were finally forced to abandon the still and take to the woods. Several of them were captured, and the officers are still pursuing the rest. Several revenue officers were wounded.

Houston, Texas, March 24.—10 p. m.—A stage wagon, driven by Andrew Coleman was returning from the Central railroad depot, his horses took fright and dashed across the bridge over the bayou, and ran against a telegraph pole on Main street, demolishing it. Coleman was thrown out of the wagon and instantly killed. Mr. Boone, in charge of Mary Anderson's baggage, who was on the wagon, while attempting to check the horses, was thrown between them in their flight, and his leg was broken.

Death from Suffocation.

NEWCASTLE, Pa., March 24.—10 p. m.—A terrible calamity occurred at Red Jacket furnace yesterday morning by which two men lost their lives. The boiler exploded, and the men were killed. The boiler was found to be defective, and the men were killed.

Killoch Acquitted.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 25.—A. M.—When the jury returned to the court the following verdict was returned, as described in The Bulletin—extra: "The Clerk—Guilty of the jury, taken to your verdict. (Reading.) "We, the jury, in the case of the People vs. L. M. Killoch, do find the defendant not guilty."

The defendant spring to his feet and was at once surrounded by a group of friends, who shook him vigorously by the hand. The court thanked the jury, after which Mr. Killoch asked the court to order the discharge of the defendant. The court so ordered. The news of the acquittal spread like wild fire, and on its receipt in the packed corridors of the court a shout of joy was heard. Each other about, and as the crowd passed into the street, it was warmly received. On its first halt the jury stood eight for acquittal and four for conviction. There was no change in this until shortly before the court convened in the afternoon, when four for conviction came over. One juror stated that the ground on which the acquittal was found, was not a legal one, and that he intended to stand by his verdict. The court so ordered.
