STOCK LOSSES.

Seven per Cent the Grand Aggregate for the Season. Interesting Figures from One of Nebraska's Cattle Kings.

The following letter was mailed to The New York Sun yesterday afternoon by one of the best known stock men of the state: OMAHA, Neb., March 31, 1881. To The Editor of The New York Sun:

In a late issue of your paper the cattle was made that the loss in cattle during the past winter upon the western plains and the cattle grazing country of the northwest has been about five million dollars. This is a gross statement of the facts, and one that your valuable paper will, I am sure, be desirous of correcting, if you are satisfied that the statement is wrong.

"The Sun" which shines for all--has it not reaching an influence not to correct mistakes I have been in the cattle business upon the plains for the last thirteen years, and may in some instances have been misled, but I am sure that your statement is correct. The percentage of loss would exceed forty per cent. The fact is that the loss of the winter does not exceed seven (7) per cent, being in cattle not more than $2,000,000, or in money $80,000,000, and by loss, I mean not only the loss of the cattle, but also the incident loss from lack of increase.

The cattle will come into market this spring in somewhat poorer flesh than usual, but on account of the greatly increased moisture in the early winter there will be much earlier and better grass than we have known for years. The stock interests of the far west have never been in better prospects than at present and I know that you and your readers will be pleased to know the fact.

In regard to my own interest and my position to know the full truth of the matter, I refer you to Messrs. Winter and his partners, bankers, Wall street, N. Y., and to Sidney Dillon, Esq., president U. P. R. R. company. Very truly yours, WILLIAM A. PATTON.
