A STARTLING RUMOR.

Implicating a Prominent Ex-Official of Omaha.

A Brutal Outrage on a Helpless Young Girl.

Now Undergoing 'Investigation by the Grand Jury.

Late last night it was currently rumored in legal c ircles in this city that the grand jury was holding under advisement a startling charge made against a prominent ex-official of this city, and that in all probability a true bill would to-day be presented against dictment will show that the guilty party while in office had under his ofone Ada Shanks who detained as witness against uncle James M. He worked so thoroughly upon her fears that she finally consented. and late at night she was turned over by the jailor to his care and taken by the ex-official to a house of ill-fame, where she remained all night with her deceivers. In the morning she expected to be released, but was given in charge of a policeman and returned to the county jaile while the

THEN AND NOW.

TheRental and Value of Properties Some Years Ago.

Upward Again,

A reporter for THE BEE had a lengthy conversation the other evening with a prominent dealer, on the general subject of real estate. In the course of the chat several interesting facts were developed which are herewith presented to the public.

"The general improvement in business in this city within the past year or two," said the gentleman, "is just beginning to effect real estate. The general advance in values within that time has perhaps been between ten and twenty per cent.

"In some localities the advance has been greater, while in others it is merely nominal. Prices [are likely to rise for some time to come, certainly until we reach the figures that were current some years ago when the population of the city was less than half what it is now. As an illustration I may say that a few weeks ago a lot on Farnham street between Twelfth and Thirteenth was sold for less than $8000. Twelve years ago the adjoining lot was sold for $9250, which at that time was not considered a high price. About $50,000 was paid for the Grand commenced in 1869 or 1870. The same lot was recently sold to Kitchen value, however is about $40,000. "In the residence portion and out side districts," continued the gentleman, "the difference between past and present prices is still greater. In 1869 and 1870 the drift was out toyoung colored woman named Lizzie bought up at prices 100 per cent. Houston were up before Judge Beneke higher than the same can be sold for

> "In the matter of rents," said the gentleman, "they are very low at present. There was never a time in the history of this city when rents were as low as they are to-day, that is, if we take into consideration the business, the population, demand and supply, and other facts that regulate rental values. For a few years after Central block on Farnham street was built the stores rented at double the price they are renting for now. Dwellings that rented readily at $40 per month, from 1868 to 1870, now bring only $15 per month, although they are now in as good condition as they were then, and with better surroundings. Rents have advanced a little but not enough to induce capitalists to put money into building houses for rent. A few not be responsible for any debts con-probable that more of that business will be done in future. High real estate and high rents are inseparable from a state of general prosperity in any city."

THE CEMETERY INJUNCTION. The granting of an injunction against the proposed Odd Fellows emetery, which would have been, in fact, simply an extension of the present limits of Fairview cemetery, has raised the pertinent question with regard to the cemetery itself as to whether the same reasons do not exist for enjoining it. The present Fairview cemetery occupies about forty acres of the most beautiful and eligible grounds within the city limits, and is only about five blocks distant from Tit for tat. the business center of the city. The question is regarded as one of public interest, and will probably come before the courts before it will again

Mr. Boesche was an excellent business man and citizen, and leaves a wife and three children. The funeral will take place to-day at 4 p. m. from the fam-ily residence on Washington avenue.

THE LATE CONVENTION. The barge line convention, which has just closed its session in this city, was an affair of great importance t Council Bluffs and western Iowa. If, as it is hoped, they have succeeded at this meeting in laying the foundation for the successful establishment of a barge line down the Missouri the city ought almost to don bunting and flowers again and give an ovation, for such an enterprise would be of greater benefit to Council Bluffs than a score of tournaments. Many prominent citizens and capitalists have fully caught the spirit of the barre lines. The Big Muddy is evidently destined to be tamed, whipped into harness like a wild mustang of the plains, and made to bear the product of the teeming prairies, and contribute to the wealth of the very cities which in its mad frolic it sought to destroy. The barge lines will do it.

The convention has at least clearly seem to warrant. There is a growing demonstrated the feasibility of the public sentiment that the schools of proposed river improvements necessary to the establishment of the barge line. It only remains now to put the means in operation - to secure the school board is composed of good men necessary appropriations for effecting the proposed improvements. This line will be organized and put in successful operation as surely as day fol-
