Assemblymen Leaving the City and the Vote To-Morrow Will be Reduced.

The Democratic Policy is to Secure an Adjournment as Soon as Possible,

While the Half-Breeds are in Favor of Prolonging to the End of the Year.

The half breed leaders immediately protested that they should not adjourn, that the adjournment proposition was simply a scheme of the stalwarts and democrats, and it is well understood that it was their plan to prevent an election this session. Various speeches were made on both sides. It finally resulted in an adjournment. Ayes 76, nays 59.

Dispatches have been received here asking whether the adjournment of the joint convention is final, or until to-morrow at noon.

In accordance with the joint rules adopted, the adjournment is for twenty-four hours only, and all attempts to mislead regarding the effect of the vote for adjournment are party schemes, intended to effect public opinion.

THE ALBANY FRACAS. ALBANY, June 24.—Conkling and Platt went to New York on the afternoon train. The assemblymen are ritorial limits of the nation, and conleaving the city at such a rapid rate that it is probable the vote to morrow that it is probable the vote to morrow to expulsion, white people now in will be reduced to the lowest figure the territory who are not yet attained. The anxiety to adjourn interlopers or intruders. They imyet attained. The anxiety to adjourn is increasing. In the balloting to-day, Brooks plainly said that the democratic policy was to secure an adjournment as soon as possible. He adjournment as soon as possible. He said the balloting has shown conclusively that an election at present is impossible and the contest could not be settled except by an appeal to the people. Brooks' position on this question received no opposition from any but the "half breeds," and was indirectly approved by Draper, the Albany stalwarts. The "half breeds" all opposed any attempt at adjournment and said the election must be had if the session should be prolonged until the end of the year. It may be until the end of the year. It may be accepted as a settled fact that the stalwarts and Democrats have agreed together to fight for an adjournment and secure it as soon as possible, by any termined to pass, if possible, the con-current resolution and put an immecurrent resolution and put an immediate end to all legislation this season and confine business altogether to that of electing the senators. Evidently such a resolution would pass. If it should then, its first effect would be to lesson the attendance of democratic members. They would consider themselves absolved from duty attending sprained knee. Jones has again at-the session by an act ending legislation. Those democrats who have openly agreed all along that the question of electing seuators never did belong to the present legislature, and asserted their willingness to get rid of the questions in any way possible. It is known that they have sympathized with half breeds and considered them entitled to senators if the above resolutions should pass. These democrats would go home and let the fight take care of itself. Their absence would just about reduce the total vote to that figure, making the half breeds strength to elect. It is now possible that the presentation of the Bradley investigating committee will be made an occasion to bring about an attempt to break the dead lock. The indications now are that three Republicans will be made first, for the stalwarts on the committee will present a majority report, which will be long and carefully prepared and will take the ground that Bradley's charge has been sus-tained. It will go further and dwell upon the general state of corruption alleged to have been shown as existing in the present contest, It will show that the corruption has been all on one side. Chairman Scott told an agent of the national associated press to-night that the report would not he made for several days; probably not until the end, or probably the begin-ning of the week after. Skinner will make a minority report showing that investigation had proven nothing but Sission's innocence of Bradley's charge, and the non-existence of corruption in the legislature.

Brooks and Stanley will make another minority report, and this will be indirect, and will take grounds that none of the charges have been sustained. Brooks reports certain suggestions in view of the gravity of the charge of Bradley.

In the four-oared race, the Peoria, Burlington and Keokuk crews entered. The Burlingtons got the lead and stuck to it, winning in 14 14 7, Keokuk 15:14 1, and Peoria 15:17 1; distance two miles.

The most exciting race of the entire regatta was the senior single, in which three crews started: Munford, of New Orleans, Muchmore, of Chicago, and Beastly, of Peoria. Attempts had been made to disqualify Munford for this race on the ground that he was a professional, according to the rules of the association, but the objections were not allowed. At the start Much-more took the lead for the first threequarters, but was overhauled by Munford, who reached the home stake two BROOKLYN, N. Y., June 24 .- While one of the Fulton ferry boats was crossing the river to this city this morning a well-daessed man, about 35 years of age, 5 feet 7 inches in height, ran to the end of the boat and jumped overboard. The tugboat "Jacob Myers" was passing at the time and the would be suicide was picked up and taken on board before he had accomplished his purpose. He was landed from the tugboat at the dock, Green-port, and handed over to a policeman, who brought him to the station house. From letters founds in his pockets, it is thought that his name is Samuel Elliott and that he belongs in Chicago. He refused to give any account of himself, and he is thought to be insane. He will be detained at the sta-tion until his friends are heard from.

CINCINNATI, O., June 24.—Profess. or Osmond Stone, of Cincinnati observatory, says the comet was visible here at 2:10 this morning, and must have arisen earlier, but was obscured by clouds. He says the tail is directly upwards and toward the west, making an angle of about fifteen degrees with Zenith. If it be the comet of 1812 it is moving southeast at a rate of one degree a day. Although to most observers it will seem stationary. It may be seen between 2 A. M. and 3 o'clock A. M. for some time to come. It is the typical comet, like the one usually pictured, with nucleus and long tail, slightly curved and spread out at the end. It may be the comet of 1812, or a new comer. It will require further observation to determine.

The closing exercises of the St. Barnabas school, of this city, of which Rev. John Williams is princi-

The salutatory was given by Miss

Bessie Bowen, consisting of a recitation entitled "Auction Extraordinary," which was followed by another recitation by Miss Bessie Putman. Charlie Spencer then recited in a very creditable manner. "Scenes that are Brightest," is the name of a sweet little sone sung by Miss Belle Gewenner in a manner delighting her hearers. Miss-Emily Wakeley recited the popular little poem "Up the Aisle," much to the entertainment of all. The recitation "I Wish" was nicely rendered by Miss Maud Phelps, and was followed three mile walk this morning, starting by the touching and beautiful ballad, "Nobody's Child," as recited by Miss Jennie McClelland. "The Last Hymn" He was then recited by Miss Gundie Cofifty-two, respiration fourteen, temperature ninety-eight.
