IN A QUANDARY.

Dogs That Delight to Bark and Bite.

And the Question of How to Get Rid of Them.

Every day in the week complaints are made to Judge Beneke that some vicious cur or other has severely bitten a child. As the hot weather continues the complaints become more numerous, and it is now quite a problem as to what is to be done in the matter. If the ordinances are to be strictly obeyed, the worthless curs are not to be eliminated from the world below by means of poison. A short time ago a resolution was passed in the council instructing the city marshal to enforce the ordinance providing for the shooting of such dogs as might be found wandering about untagged during the summer solstice. The police were set to work immediately upon the adoption of this resolution, and for a few days matters were quite brisk among the canine population. The raid against the untagged curs was kept up for a few days, and the way in which the worthless dogs disappeared from creation alarmed people of humanitarian proclivities. About a score of the dogs were shot in one day, and although it was somewhat unpleasant to see their remains feasting in the genial sunshine, many people voted it a good riddance. However, people who thought differently got in their work on the council and the result was the passage of another resolution prohibiting the shooting of dogs. The consequence is that there has been no way since of getting rid of this troublesome element of the population. They are permitted to rave about the streets at will unmoleted, and it does not make the least difference whether they are tagged or not.

Well Known Actor in Omaha. Willie Edouin, proprietor of "Dreams, or Fun in a Photograph Gallery," which has had a wonderful run for the past two seasons, arrived in the city yesterday afternoon and registered at the Withnell. Mr. Edouin is accompanied by his wife, Alice Atherton, one of the most popular actresses in her line of business on the stage. They came direct from Salt Lake City, where they just closed their season and are on their way back to spend a short vacation before the opening of the next theatrical season. They remained over in Omaha so that one of their children, who was taken seriously ill on the way, might receive proper medical treatment.

Trying to Keep Warm. A letter received by a gentleman in this city from one of the U. P. surveying party now in Utah, would indicate that they have struck up an acquaintance with old Boreas again. The letter states that when they awoke in the morning they find the water covered with thin ice. Apparently, however, the members of the party do not enjoy this prospect any more than the residents of Omaha do the intense heat. People here cannot help feeling a little bit envious though when they read of ice being naturally formed at this season.

A Change of Time. The passenger train which has heretofore left on the C. B., S. J. & K. C. railway Saturday mornings will after the 17th of July leave Sunday mornings, and instead of the one heretofore arriving Monday mornings there will be a regular passenger train arriving every Sunday evening.

Runaway. A somewhat exciting runaway occurred on Capitol avenue last evening. A two horse team belonging to a Mr. Morrison ran away, straying the top of the carriage and pieces of oil cloth along the avenue. The animals were finally caught on Seventh and Douglas streets. The carriage was badly smashed.

While the tax levy of Omaha is 30 mills on the dollar, and that of Des Moines, St. Joe and other cities of equal size about the same, the tax levy of Council Bluffs is only 24 mills on the dollar, including special levies for Indian creek and other important improvements. This showing ought to prove very satisfactory to taxpayers, and demonstrates that the city council has due regard to economy in administering the affairs of the city.

Another company toll bridge between Omaha and Council Bluffs would not help people here much, so far as the cost of transfer is concerned. There would undoubtedly be a pooling of interests or some other arrangement by which prices would be kept up. Whether a bridge or tunnel is built it should be built by and under the control of the two cities. In any other way can tolls, if any, be arranged so as to best serve the interests of the people. By any means of transfer the rates should be adequate but not extortionate. The present rates are an embargo upon travel and commerce. It ought not cost more than twice as much to cross the Missouri than it does to cross New York bay or the Delaware river.

GRADUATED WITH HONORS. Edgar H. Scott, son of Hon. C. R. Scott, of this city, recently graduated at Grinnell College, Iowa, with high honors, receiving the diploma of Master of Science. Young Mr. Scott entered Grinnell College three years ago at the age of sixteen and made his college course in three years, thus doing the work of four years in three. His graduating oration on the subject of "The Higher Aims of Culture," evinces a grasp of mind, a cultivation of intellect, voice and gesture not often found; in one so young. He demonstrated that by natural gift and acquired mental culture, he was able to understand and comprehend the elements and prerequisites of the higher planes of scholastic attainments and oratory. This is alike creditable to him, and an evidence of the efficiency and thoroughness of that celebrated institution of learning. His friends feel a just pride in his success. Mr. Scott is now at home and will spend the coming season in general reading and recreation. In September he will enter upon a final course of training at the law college of Ann Arbor University, Michigan, the law being his chosen profession.

POLICE COURT CASES. W. H. Button and E. R. Button, two lads formerly in the employ of Stevenson, stable-keeper in Omaha, were arrested near the American express office on Main street by Officer Barlyte, on complaint of William Ayres, charging them with robbing him of his watch and chain and thirty dollars in cash, while the trio were putting in a cheap night's lodging in the Union Pacific depot, Thursday the 14th instant. On arriving at the police station the suspicious looking Buttons did not deny that they had Ayres' watch but claimed to have a lien on the property for money advanced to Ayres to redeem it from some broker in Omaha, where he had made a raise and left it as collateral. They say if Ayres lost any money some one else has it. Chief Field examined both men thoroughly and found concealed weapons enough to condemn them should complaint be made for that offense. Judge Burke claimed jurisdiction in the case and after hearing the parties in their own behalf, discharged them, deeming the testimony insufficient to warrant a conviction. Chief Field, however, not liking the idea of men going through the country with two Smith and Wesson revolvers and several daggers under their coats, made complaint and they immediately pleaded guilty to the charge of carrying concealed weapons. Judge Burke gave them a fine of $100 each, and imposed the light fine of five dollars, including costs. The Buttons buttoned up their coats, and left the court room seemingly pleased with the result. Ayres left for Omaha. He received his watch however.

While the examination of the Buttons boys was progressing Tim Toner hustled in another suspicious character, who called himself Charles Hathaway. Although no complaint had been lodged against him for any crime, he had on his person a bill and about a dozen silver spoons. A complaint was lodged against him by the officer for carrying concealed weapons. He pleaded guilty to the charge, and the court imposed a light fine. Omaha is clamoring to have her streets sprinkled. Council Bluffs is fortunate and happy in that respect.

While the tax levy of Omaha is 30 mills on the dollar, and that of Des Moines, St. Joe and other cities of equal size about the same, the tax levy of Council Bluffs is only 24 mills on the dollar, including special levies for Indian creek and other important improvements. This showing ought to prove very satisfactory to taxpayers, and demonstrates that the city council has due regard to economy in administering the affairs of the city.

The work of repairing streets and sidewalks is now progressing rapidly.

A REFORMER.

He Stops in Omaha on His Way West.

George Washington Riley Cutbirth, president and general superintendent of the Independent Grand Order of the United States Cooperative Developing National Union, passed through Omaha yesterday on his way from New York to San Francisco. Mr. Cutbirth was the first candidate for mayor of San Francisco on the workingmen's ticket nine years ago. The object of the society of which he is the president, is to protect the Independent Grand Order of the United States Co-operative Developing National Union, in its disavowal, working in manufacturing, mining, deep tunneling for gold, silver and all other minerals, oils, and valuable substances of whatever character; also the right of way and appropriations, etc., for railroads and building the same in the public land generally, and throughout the United States, in opposition to extensive monopolies; for running free mails; placing the government in control of fifty-one per cent. of all railroad interests, and four-fifths of all the mineral wealth that may be located hereafter; giving the discoverer at least one-fifth of all valuable minerals, lodes, ledges, oils, and all valuable substances whatever, as well as any business trade by him or them discovered; a reduction of freights and fares fully one-half; the placing of mineral wealth in vaults, like unto grain, to find its level or value, that the revenue arising from our productions, &c., exported may more than support the nation.

Temperance Bee Hive. The Bee Hive Temperance association held its regular meeting in the City Mission chapel last evening, and in spite of the extremely warm weather there was a good attendance. Rev. W. J. Harsha had been announced as the speaker of the occasion, but for some reason was not able to be present. However, the exercises were interesting and consisted in recitations, songs and addresses by Edmund McClure and others.
