> Last Summer's Campaign of Gen-Grierson's Command Against the Indians in Texas.

Sergeant John A. Humphreys, a soldier who has served five years in the regular army, is in the city. He is a colored man and was in Co. H, Tweny-fourth infantry. During the year 1880 he was in Gen. B. H. Grierson's command, which encountered some rough work in the wilds of Texas. A part of the most interesting events of the campaign are here given, as they are narrated by Mr. Humphreys in a highly graphic style.

The command under Gen. Grierson consisted of various companies of the Tenth cavalry; a company of Indian scouts commanded by Lieut. F. H. Hills, of the Twenty-fourth infantry, and one company of rangers, com-manded by Capt. Bailey. A great portion of the time Gen Grierson and and plains with no other escort than a small detachment of eight cavalrymen and Sergt. Humphreys. see that there were Americans among the enemy, some of whom had on soldier's clothes. During this battle some of the Indians ran great risks in driving off horses and pack mules belonging to the army, and succeeded in getting some away.

At this battle one man had a most exciting race for life and narrow escape from death. He was a member of Co. G. Tenth cavalry. In the heat of the engagement his horse was shot from under him. The Indians, or their penies, started for him, and hi only chance was to flee for life towards his comrades, though the bullets were flying thick and fast all around him. He seemingly ran into the very face of death to escape death, and his escape was almost miraculous. While running he fired over his shoulder with his revolver, and his friends also began shoot ng at his pursuers. Hum phreys fired shot after shot, but with out effect. The man was almost exhausted, and his bloodthirsty pursuers about to overhaul him. At this critical moment a shot fired, either from his own revolver, or by some three speckled eggs in it, nor is it a triends, struck the foremost Indian and hurled him dying from his pony. The rest turned and fied and the brave soldier, who came so near death, was saved. The lucky shot was fired in the very nick of time, and the man is living to-day. On August 2, 1880, Private Tocust, staff were roaming over the mountains Co. C, Tenth cavalry, was sent out men, five soldiers and three Indian Spring, Tex., a supply camp was established, and company H, of the guides, came upon a large body of tacked and that he

Spoopendyke as a Sportsman

From the Brooklyn Eagle. "Say my dear," said Mr. Spoopendye, as he drew a gun from the case and eyed it critically, "I want you to wake me up early in the morning; I'm going shooting.

"Isn't that too sweet?" ejaculated Mrs. Spoopendyke. "I'll wear my new dress and my Saratoga waves. Where do we go?" "I'm going down on the island, and you'll probably go as far as the front door," grunted Mr. Spoopendyke. Women don't go shooting. It's only men. All you've got to do is to wake me up and get breakfast. When home we'll have some birds. "Won't that be nice?" chimed Mrs. Spoopendyke. "Can you catch birds with that thing?" and Mrs. Spoopendye fluttered around the improved breech-loading shot-gun, firmly impressed with the idea that it was some kind of trap.

"I can kill 'em with this," explained Mr. Spoopendyke. "That is a gun, my dear; it isn't a nest with

"Oh," ejaculated Mrs. Spoopendyke rather crestfallen. "I see now. Where does the birds go!"

"He goes to night school, if he snorted Mr. Spoopendyke. "Look here now, and I'll show you how it works," and Spoopendyke, whose ideas of a gun were about as vague as those of his wife, inserted the cartridge half way in the muzzle end, and cautiously cocked the weapon.
