WASHINGTON, D. C., August 19.—THE MORNING BULLETIN is the best issued during the week, and generally so accepted. The president had a fair night's rest.

General theory of the case is passed. The usual enemata was administered very early and another after the morning dressing.

Several cabinet officers, who called this morning, accept the indications as very encouraging.

THE WOUND.—say the morning examination shows the pus to be flowing to the satisfaction of all, and that the wound is in excellent condition in every respect.

Notwithstanding these signs of slight improvement the weak condition of the president makes the case very critical, yet the rising of new complications is possible at any time.

That the inflammation is due to the great debility of the patient and the consequent low condition of his blood, and not that pyaemia has set in.

GOOD FRIDAY. WASHINGTON, August 19.—This has certainly been "Good Friday" in the president's case.

stomach is looked upon as the most interesting subject at present. It is growing now to be admitted that if the stomach holds out the chances are good for his entire recovery.

stomach is looked upon as the most interesting subject at present. It is growing now to be admitted that if the stomach holds out the chances are good for his entire recovery.

ONE OF THE BEST INDICATIONS has been the absence of both the consulting doctors to-night for the first time during the week.

MRS. GARFIELD took her usual evening drive and appeared in excellent spirits.

MRS. GARFIELD said to a personal friend to-night, "I think now he will go right along."

DR. ROCKWELL is equally as confident, who being acting as nurse since Crump was taken sick, has a good chance to watch the president.

"It appears to be diminishing." "Does it cause the president much annoyance?"

"Does the president have a strong desire to eat?" "He has no sharp appetite, but takes with relish what is given him."

"What do you consider the most important feature of the case, doctor?" "The condition of the stomach, by all means."

"Does the condition of the stomach, by all means?" "Oh, yes."

"Is he much better than yesterday?" "Undoubtedly, but he is still very weak and his progress will be very slow."

DR. BLISS appears to have regained his old confidence. For several days his reiterations have been very conservative.

"None whatever." "Has he had a comfortable day, generally speaking?"

"Has he slept much?" "Considerable." "And all food is retained?"

"You think the trouble from the parotid swelling is passed?" "Well it is greatly lessened."

"These granular tubercles are slow of subsidence. This case is doing very well." "Will it break out in another place?"

"It would surprise me if it did." "Might not other glands be sympathetic?"

lapse became so serious. It has been an informal gathering of stalwart leaders.

THIS WAS THE OCCASION of the gathering at the vice-president's house, Geo. Bliss, Attorney General Ward and Mr. Conkling gave legal opinions on the constitution clause in favor of the vice-president assuming control.
