A CRISIS IMMINENT.

The Condition of President Garfield Admitted to Be Very Critical.

The Febrile Rises Still Continue With Alarming Effects.

The Gland Suppurates Unabatingly and Causes New Fears.

His Mental Faculties Acknowledged by Dr. Agnew to be Affected.

Bed Sores Have Reappeared and are the Source of no Little Anxiety.

National Associated Press.

8:30 A. M. BULLETIN—OFFICIAL.

ELBERON, September 16.—At the examination of the president at 8:30 this morning his temperature was 98·6, pulse 104, respiration 21. The febrite rise during the night was not as pronounced as it usually has been. There was at times considerable accumulation of pus. He, however, slept comparatively well and took stimulants and nourishment as directed. The cough was somewhat more troublesome during the first part of the night and the expectoration rather more prudent. The discharge from the wound is less abundant, and not quite so healthy in appearance. His pulse, however, has volume and his general condition does not seem to have materially changed in any respect.

(Signed) D. W. BLISS.
W. J. HAMILTON.

Gen. Smain and Col. Rockwell divided the night with the president between them, and their observations were entered into the make up of the bulletin. Swain says the president slept well and a great deal, but was somewhat restless at times. Taking the night as a whole, it was favorable, and I think his condition this morning is excellent and quite up to that of yesterday. At early morning the president coughed a great deal and raised much mucuous, but did so easily, and with much less trouble than previously.

COL. ROCKWELL

was asked regarding the report that the president had had a recurrence of the exhaustive night-sweats. He replied that there was not a word of truth in the rumor, and not the slightest foundation in fact.

DR. BOYNTON,

after the dressing, appeared rather gloomy. He said: "Of course I still have hopes, but there does not appear to be much ground for them. I certainly see no reason for sanguine belief in the recovery which the recent picturing of the case seemed to produce. The president has been having ups and downs, but on the whole I think now that

HE IS REALLY LOWER

than forty-eight hours ago. I think there has been a gradual but no marked loss, and the general condition shows that the discharge from the wound is of a less healthy character and the suppuration of the gland has not ceased. Bed sores have again made their appearance. For some time there had been none. He formerly had some and was much troubled and annoyed by them. They disappearad, however, and there has been no trouble recently from them. They have now

AGAIN MADE THEIR APPEARANCE.

These sores are the result of the greatly exhausted condition of the patient and long continued confinement to bed in a very weak state. They are troublesome. There is no material change in the lung trouble but there is a continuance of disturbing dreams, extending into waking hours. Hallucinations continue and are more marked. They now assert that the president's mind is under these hallucinations much more of the time than formerly. The prospects to me

LOOK DISCOURAGING.

I am not willing to grant that there is sufficient ground for any sanguine assurance that the president will recover, although I do believe he has sufficient vitality to bear his present load and, perhaps, carry it safely through.

THE WEATHER

to-day is cold and stormy. The president's room is kept at 72 to 75 degrees by fire. The room is lined with cork so as to exclude dampness."

6 P. M. BULLETIN—OFFICIAL.

ELBERON, Sept. 16.—At the examination of the president at 12 m. today, the temperature was 98.8, pulse 106, respiration 21. At the evening dressing, 5:30 p. m., the temperature was 98.6, pulse 103, respiration 22. A slight febrile rise occurred at 11 a. m., and had entirely subsided at 2 o'clock p. m. The condition of the wound remains unchanged. The cough has not been so frequent or persistent, but the sputa still remains purulent. Nourishment and stimulants have been given in increased quantities and without discomfort, although his general condition cannot be said to be improved.

AGNEW,

TO LOWELL.

LONG BRANCH, Sept. 16.—The following was sent this evening: Lowell, London: There has been no very marked change in the president's condition, but it is not at this hour reassuring. The different symptoms are almost all slightly aggravated. The temperature and pulse have been fluctuated more than usual, and the respiration is rather more frequent, while the character of the discharges continue to be unsatisfactory. There is, therefore, a sensible increase of anxiety. MACVEAGH.

The most exaggerated rumors are circulated to-day since the president's removal to Long Branch. Various allegations are made, based on the morning bulletins and the despondent tone of Dr. Boynton's statements. The facts as stated in the bulletin are true, but there is no foundation for the sensational stories that incisions into the wound and the main channel had started a profuse flow of blood and watery pus; nor that the parotid gland was again troublesome and emitting pus; nor that the bed sores were broken out all over the body.

AS TO THE LATTER,

Dr. Boynton simply said that the bed sores had reappeared. The responsible surgeons admitted during the afternoon that the present was not one of the president's best days, but stated there was no foundation for sensational reports and that the bulletin told the entire story. All those connected with the sick-room affirmed that there was no serious change, but that to day's symptoms were merely the result of fluctuation which must be expected until the president had entirely eliminated from his system the septic condition of the blood, that the parotid gland and face were decidedly better.

DR. BLISS

said the febrile rise came on earlier than usual, and lasted about an hour At 1 o'clock this afternoon the president's pulse was 108, temperature and respiration normal. The president requested to be placed in the chair, but was persuaded by the doctors that he had better wait until later. Attorney General MacVeagh denied that the crisis had come and said it was only one of the ordinary fluctuations which were expected during the president's present septic condition. The president is admitted officially to be worse to-night, and

SITUATION IS GRAVE.

The case is so serious that the greatest state of alarm exists at Elberon. After the issuance of the evening bulletin everybody connected with the case refused to speak and referred all questions to Dr. Bliss. All the reporters were assembled in Private Secretary Brown's cottage, adjoining the president's, and at 8:30 Dr. Bliss came in and after a long drawn sigh, made the following statement without any preliminaries:

"There has been another febrile rise in the president's case this evening, and thisis the second febrile rise which has occurred within the past twenty-fours. Such a thing never happened before with the case. This rise occurred with extreme suddenness. We have finished the evening dressing and examination. We had noted the febrile at 11 o'clock; its culmination and its complete subsidence by 2 o'clock. We had noted a between this hour and 4 o'clock, and a period of favorable condition thence to 6 o'clock. We were writing the last sentence of the bulletin; in fact, it had been written. It stated there had been, the whole day taken together, a perceptible improvement. Then a change in the president was noticed.

HE WAS EXAMINED

and it was found that another febrile rise had suddenly shown itself, and it was so rapidly running up the pulse, temperature and respiration, which had gone down so favorably since noon, that the last sentence in the bulletin was at once changed, the statement that there had been a perceptible improvement being stricken out. The president's condition tonight is plainly what it was a few days ago.

HE IS WORSE THAN HE WAS.

The change may not have any special significance. I do not know that the weather had much to do with it, but the weather to-day is in conditon the opposite of that which exists might be pleasant. The signal service bureau promise pleasant weather for to-morrow, and such weather, if it comes, may have a good effect. The wound is no worse than this morning. During the afternoon a of some size came out from the channel which previously it had clogged up somewhat. This clot had discolored the pus and retarded its flow, and after it was removed the original color was restored. The clot did not otherwise interfere with the character of the pus. The wound is not healing any now, but the healing process has been arrested. Suppuration of the

A CLOT OF BLOOD

PAROTID GLAND

been probably renewed. This is attributable to a lack of nutrition. If nutrition was increased suppuration would diminish. The discharge from the wound is fully as free as it was before yesterday, but it is not as healthy as we would like to see it at this time. This, however, is not dangerous of itself, but is a symptom of an unfavorable condition. There are now. They are slight. There are two of them. They have been in existence over two weeks. These are not deep and do not involve anything more than the skin. One of these sores is about the size of a three-cent piece and the other is about the size of a penny. They are not considered important and have not increased beyond repair. Three days ago they were healing and were not tronblesome. They are not healing now. These

BED SORES

SORES COME FROM PRESSURE.

Their present lack of healing is not an indication of danger. They have been kept down by rings of oakum, which we have made as needed to be placed under them. They have been in existence since before we left Washington, but the healing process in them has now been arrested. They have not been an annoyance to the president, but would be if they increased. I do not suppose they will increase, for we have for a long time left a plaster on the president's back to prevent the formation of sores. There are also

MENTAL DISTURBANCES.

These hallucinations are only occasional and not marked. I never witnessed but one of them. Once when I entered the room the president asked me a question which I do not now recall, but the nature of which showed at the time his MIND WAS NOT CLEAR.

Dr. Hamilton assures me he noted a similar occurrence once. He has dreams, unnaturally, and sometimes in the day time. This febrile rise is an evidence of want of nourishment of the brain. The stomach is extremely well. There was an early and natural movement of the bowels during the afternoon, and the president took more food during the day than he did yesterday, and tolerated it. He took solid food. He was not lifted in his chair to-day. When we suggested the matter to him, after we had previously dissuaded him from it, he said he guessed he would not care to be moved to-day. Subsequently he said he would like to be put in the chair, but then we thought it better to and he consented. The figures to-day were not greatly different from those of any of the period of fever. If anything, the increase in pulse, temperature and respiration were slight to-day compared with many of the fluctuations."

DISPENSE WITH LIFTING

"Has respiration been higher than 22 before?"

"Yes, the record shows several periods of respiration of 22 and some of 24."

"How was the president doing to-day during the examination?"

"I can best tell you by describing his conduct. It takes about ten minutes to get the figures, the greatest delay being in getting the temperature. To-day, while waiting for the indicator to complete the record of temperature, I expressed some impatience and remarked that I believed the instrument was not recording as it should." The president said: 'Doctor, you have a full minute yet.'"

11 P. M. BULLETIN.

Dr. Bliss has just returned from Francklyn cottage, and reports the latest to Dr. Agnew. After making his report. Dr. Agnew appeared much more cheerful and said that it would be unnecessary for him to arise earlier than 3 o'clock in the morning. Dr. Bliss assured him that if he was needed before that hour he would be sent for.

At 11:30 p. m. MacVeagh telegraphed to the different members of the cabinet, the dispatch to each being substantially the same as the one sent to Minister Lowell. It is believed the cabinet officials will return at once.

MIDNIGHT BULLETIN.

ELBERON, Sept. 16.—The great excitement produced by the formal declarations of Dr. Bliss has somewhat subsided because of recent and more favorable news from the president's bedside.

Dr. Bliss came over to the Elberon and said: "I come over to give you the latest news, because it is more reassuring. The president's fever has been subsiding. He slept some and waked uy about 10 o'clock. At that time his pulse had fallen a good deal and stood at 116. His temperature was not much above normal then, I should judge, though of course I could not take it with exactness, and his respiration was not much above normal either. It now looks as if the president would pass a more comfortable night than seemed possible a short time ago, and he hoped to give a more favorable bulletin in the morning than was expected. There and the indications are that they will continue until morning. It was ascertained from other authority that at one time during the evening the febrile rise sent the pulse up to 130.

HAS BEEN CHANGES

"Is there any probability that the crisis will occur during the night?"

"No, nothing of that kind will occur during the night. The president, in all probability, will pass a comfortble night from now until morning. He is now asleep, and the indications point to a continued rest."

1:30 A. M. BULLESIN.

ELBERON, Sept. 17.—Everything is quiet at the president's cottage and he is still sleeping, with a good prospect of having no material disturbance.

Instantly Killed.

Special Dispatch to THE BEE.

LINCOLN, Neb., Sept. 16.—Alvin A. McGuire shot and instantly killed Elijah Vanariken. They quarreled about the woman who afterwards became McGuire's wife. Vanariken called to see her, was refuse admission, and he kicked the door down. McGuire then shot him.

The Cabinet Party.

National Associated Press.

BOSTON, Sept. 16.—Secretaries Hunt and Windom and Postmaster General James arrived in this city at 5 p. m. The party is very despondent, and seem to think that this is the beginning of the end of the president's case. Secretary Hunt received a dispatch during the evening from MacVeagh, Dr. Bliss and Col. Rockwell, as follows:

The condition of the president has not improved to-day and occasions anxiety. Others were of the same tenor. The party leave here to-morrow morning at 11 o'clock for New York.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.—Sergeant Mason, who attempted to shoot Guiteau, will be tried by court-martial for conduct unbecoming a soldier. He will probably be acquitted on the grounds of temporary insanity.

BOSTON, September 16.—The Little Western, which has occasioned much annoyance to ocean steamers by causing them to turn off their course on the supposition that she was a boat containing a shipwrecked crew, arrived at Galveston last night, having completed a round trip from Gloucester to London, England, and back She measured only nineteen and one-half feet long and two and one-half feet in depth, and is the smallest boat that ever crossed the Atlantic, and the only one that has crossed the ocean both ways with a crew of two men. They had a pretty rough time coming back from England; they left London June 14th and were thirteen days reaching the loxeard, and had boisterous weather all the way to Halifax, where she arrived on the 2d inst. This is the third "ocean tramp" Gloucester has sent out. The first was the Centennial, which went to England in 1876 with only one man aboard, and the other the other the Nautilus, with the Andrews brothers on board, in 1878. The Little Western was only forty-four days on her outward trip, and was ninety-two days on her return, including stops at Cape Briton and Halifax.

ST. PAUL, Minn., September 16.—The balloon voyage has been given up. An alternation of calm and unfavorable winds has kept it anchored in a cow pasture five miles from here since Monday evening, the wind blowing from the north-west so violently that the balloon could not safely leave its anchorage. It continued yesterday, accompanied with cold rain, and thrashing the gas bag about until the ropes and frame were badly strained and nearly all the gas escaped. Then Prof. King gave it up, ripped the balloon and let out the rest of the gas. The journalists have returned to St. Paul and will leave for the east to-day. Holden, of the Boston Journal, the one who has had experience in ballooning, defends King from the charge of timidity and says it has not been possible to ascend safely at any time since the wind began to blow.

WATER DISASTERS

Schooner M. L. Canfield Foundered—Schooner Red Wing is Rock-wedged.

National Associated Press.

DETROIT, Sept. 16.—Charles Cutler, of the Cutler house, Grand Haven, who was injured by a gas explosion, September 1, died to-day. Manager Spies, of the same house, is not out of danger.

The schooner M. L. Canfield, of Cleveland, laden with coal for Amherstburg, foundered in sixteen feet of water off Bar Point, Lake Erie, at 2 a. m. to-day. The crew escaped and arrived at Amherstburg at 9 a. m. in an exhausted condition. She was anchored, when the gale struck her and lifted her hatches. The vessel was not insured.

Authentic reports from the burnt district show that people are actually starving to death in the remote parts of Sanilac county not yet reached by by the relief committee.

The schooner Red Wing has gone on to the rocks at the dreaded Lime Kilns crossing, Detroit river, and a big propeller, believed to be the Cumberland, has gone ashore at Bar Point, Lake Erie. No lives are lost so far as known. The gale was very severe.

COL. BURLEIGH AS "OTHELLO."

The debut of Col. John L. Burleigh, as Othello, was made last evening. Col. Burleigh is a well known journalist, and filled the senatorial chair in the state legislature. His new departure is a genuine triumph.

Criminal.

WINONA, Minn., September 16.—The young lady reported yesterday as being assassinated near Bushford was Miss Anna, daughter of Geo. Martin, a farmer living about three miles from the village, and was returning from a neighbor's about 9 o'clock in the evening, accompanied by two sisters. As the girls were passing a ravine they met a boy with a gun, and, without warning, he drew up and fired upon the party and then disappeared. With a yell Anna Martin fell dead, pierced by the charge from the gun. Her affrightened sisters gave the alarm, but could tell nothing of the murderer or his design. The whole section was instantly alarmed and the parties started to scour the country for the murderer. From the certain description given by the frightened girls suspicion fell upon a Bohemian named Jacob Pruchek, and about 4 o'clock the party went to his home and routed out the young murderer. He at first denied all knowledge of the affair, but, being threatened by the excited crowd, finally confessed that he had done the deed. He gave no reafon and no reason can be discovered The boy is in custody and there are threats which may result in making it warm for him yet. The girl was of a good family and of excellent reputation.

He Still Asserts His Innocence.

National Associated Press.

CAMBRIDGE, Ill., September 16.—Clement L. Gallion, the murderer of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Dilley, will be hanged in this place this afternoon about 4 o'clock. He was seen by a reporter last night, with whom he chatted for half an hour in the most indifferent and unconcerned manner. He still protests his innocence of the murder. His spiritual adviser, Father Reardon, says the condemned man will have something to say when the hour comes. The execution will be private, the only witnesses being the sheriffs of Henry, Stark, Rock Island, Peoria and Mercer counties, the jury that tried the case, two physicians, the clergymen and members of the press. Gallion arose early this morning and was called on at 6 o'clock by Father Reardon, with whom he had a long visit.

The Christiancy Case.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.—A new feature of the Christiancy divorce case was made public to-day. It was no less than a challenge from the brother of Mrs. Christiancy to the ex-senator to fight a duel. Her brother is Dr. French Lougenbeel, practicing physician in Fairfax county, Va. The following letter from him was found by Christiancy in his box at the hotel last night:

Hon. J. P. Christiancy—Sir: Unless you prefer to confine your assaults upon women, to warfare in print and to similar methods involving no physical danger, you will please meet me at any spot in Virginia which you may designate within twenty miles of Washington. Any communication addressed to me, care J. Eicholz, 316 D street northwest, will reach me. It will be best to accept my proposition.

Respectfully,
[Signed] F. LUGENBEEL.

Christiancy replied to-day as follows to the address given above:

National Hotel, Washington: Sir: I have had the honor of receiving your polite note without date, but left for me last evening at this hotel. Having no special ambition to achieve notoriety by assassination, in which it seems I have the misfortune to differ from you, and not believing the method you propose is the best for ascertaining the truth, though perhaps as satisfactory as some of the methods of proceedure recently adopted in the country, it occurs to me that the best manner of answering your letter is by emphatic silence as far as relates to special matters therein set forth, but without admitting the truth of your charges and leaving you to carry out, at your own time, and your own way, the implied threats in the last sentence of that note, the wisdom of which can not prevent, even on your assurance, the seeking on my part of only such protection as the law of my country afford me.

(Signed) Yours, truly,
J. P. CHRISTIANCY.
