CUSTER COUNTY'S TRAGEDY.

One of the Chief Actors Now in the City.

Among the names recorded upon the Canfield house register last evening was that of I. P. Olive, a heavy cattle owner of western Nebraska. This name called to memory the terrible tragedy of Custer county two years ago, in which Ketchum and Mitchell were shot and afterwards fatally burned. Olive was convicted as a principal in the affair and sentenced to the penitentiary for life, but was released by the supreme court for irregularities in the trial. At the time of the tragedy considerable ill feeling existed between the cattle men and settlers of Custer county, the former wishing to retain the land undivided for grazing purposes. The settlers who had located in the county began to raise cattle, some of which mixed with those of the stock dealers. At the fall round-up a number of settlers, among whom were Ketchum and Miller, attempted to reclaim the cattle they alleged had strayed to the herds. This attempt the cattle men resisted. A fight followed, in which Stephens, then sheriff of Custer county, was shot while he was aiding the cattle men. A deputy sheriff with a posse arrested Ketchum and Mitchell on the charge of the murder and started for Hastings with them. While on the way the posse were overhauled by a number of cattle men and the prisoners taken from the officer's custody. Ketchum and Mitchell were then both hanged, shot and their bodies partly burned. Olive was afterwards arrested as the leader of the lynching party and taken to Hastings, where he was tried and convicted. It was reported at the time, and generally believed, that Stephens, the murdered sheriff, was a brother of Olive, but for some reason went under an assumed name. The trial at Hastings was of the most exciting nature. The legislature of 1879 appropriated $10,000 for the apprehension and prosecution of Olive and his gang. Attorney General Dilworth prosecuted the case, assisted by able attorneys. The defense was also in the hands of the best legal talent obtainable. Several hundred cattle-men and cow-boys were in Hastings during the trial, and they several times threatened to burn the town, but the authorities closed all of the saloons and made the most energetic precautions, so an incendiary attempt was not made. Olive is reputed to be quite wealthy, as he was at the time of the tragedy, and in business matters is spoken of in the higher terms.

United States Court. The bar docket for the November term of the United States circuit court is ready for attorneys. It contains 117 cases in law and 220 in equity. The May term contained 130 cases in law and 201 in equity. Court commences November 14th. The jury panel will be drawn to-morrow.

Arrested for Perjury. Thomas D. Scott was arrested to-day on charge of perjury at the instance of District Attorney Burnham. He testified in the Kerrigan case, which is still on trial in the district court, that he saw Garrigan pass a man named Smith $25, and this is the ground for the complaint.

A Wise Deacon. "Deacon Wilder, I want you to tell me how you kept yourself and family well the past season, when all the rest of us have been sick so much, and have had the doctors visiting us so often?" "Brother Taylor, the answer is very easy. I used Hop Bitters in time, kept my family well and saved the doctor bills. Three dollars' worth of it kept us well and able to work all the time. I'll warrant it has cost you and the neighbors close to two hundred dollars apiece to keep sick the same time." "Deacon, I'll use your medicine hereafter." oct15-nov1

Garrigan's Trial. The trial of P. H. Garrigan, indicted for embezzlement from the Wheeler & Wilson sewing machine company, occupied the entire day in the district court yesterday. The testimony on both sides was strong. The attorney concluded their summing up, and the jury will be charged this morning. One of the witnesses for the defense, Scott, was arrested yesterday afternoon on the charge of perjury. He is in jail. Should Garrigan be cleared, he will be arraigned on the indictment against him for forgery.

That Stink. It comes up in chunks from the hog yards on the river bottoms south of the Union Pacific track, and at night fairly loads down the air. No part of the city east of Fifteenth street is free from this overpowering, sickening odor when the wind blows from the right quarter. If any means can be devised to fence the stink in or destroy its spreading qualities, they should be immediately put into execution.

Registration Notice. STATE OF NEBRASKA, DOUGLAS COUNTY, J. S. Notices are hereby given to the electors of the Fifth ward that I will sit in the U. P. Bakery on Sixteenth street, between California and Webster, on October 31st, and Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, November 1st, 2d and 3d, 1881, for the purpose of registering the electors of said ward. In witness whereof I hereunto set my hand this 19th day of October, A. D. 1881. S. WAREFIELD, Registrar, Fifth ward.

Take "BLACK-DRAUGHT" and you will never be bilious. A. C. F. Goodman.

Manager Touzalin Goes Over to the C. B. & Q.

Some months ago there was mentioned in THE BEE the probability that Manager A. E. Touzalin of the B. & M. would become one of the officials of the C. B. & Q. This has turned out to be the case. Manager Touzalin has been elected first vice-president of the C. B. & Q., or practically the head of the road. His headquarters will be in Boston. Manager Touzalin will accept the position and remove with his family to the Hub.

Paxton returned home from North Platte yesterday. O. W. Kitcher and daughter arrived from Laramie yesterday afternoon. W. J. Morse, general ticket agent of the Union Pacific, went east yesterday afternoon.

Maj. J. D. Knetsch and lady, of Lincoln, are in the city, the guest of Mrs. Baumann, of North Sixteenth street. Lieut. Dan C. Kingman, of the engineers' corps, is assigned to duty in the engineers' office department of the Platte. Col. John E. McClure, general western agent of the O. & M., returned home Wednesday afternoon from a business trip in the west. Misses Daisy Johnson and Mary Love, of Keokuk, Ia., who have been visiting Miss Doane, daughter of Hon. Geo. W. Doane, in this city for several days, returned home yesterday.

The Metropolitan hotel's register shows the arrival in the city of G. H. Plummer and wife, of McPherson; E. M. Collins, of Fremont; O. P. Baker, of Exeter; Jno. G. Shulte, of Fort Carter, Montana; D. S. Rose, of Wellsville. Justice Edwin J. Abbott, of Council Bluffs, accompanied by his wife and her three sisters, Mrs. John Harman, of Council Bluffs, Mrs. John Purcell, of Elyria, Ohio, and Mrs. John Spangle, of Parsons, Kansas, were in the city to-day to take a look at a live Nebraska city.

The following arrivals are noted on the Withall house register: D. H. Clay and wife, of York; F. H. Wetmore and wife, and James Sherman, of Walnut, Ia.; W. W. Zatten, of Plum Creek; E. C. Carrs, of Seward; R. B. Windham, of Plattsmouth; W. H. B. Stout, of Lincoln. The following persons are registered at the Creighton house among yesterday's arrivals: C. E. Babcock, E. M. Webb, of Lincoln; Dan Hopkins, J. A. Holden, of Central City; Daniel C. Timmus, of Fairmount; A. S. Vennum and wife, of Exeter; R. H. Boughton, Alfred A. Baxter, of Ida Grove.

K. H. Wade, the recently appointed superintendent of the Iowa division of the C. B. & Q. road, was in Omaha yesterday. It was his first visit to the Gateway city, and he was both surprised at its enterprising and seemed to obtain a most favorable impression. Mr. Wade is an experienced railroad official and a pleasant gentleman to meet. Among the through passengers on the overland train from the west yesterday afternoon were Major McLaughlin and family, of San Francisco. McLaughlin is manager of the Missouri golf mine, which is located on and under Feaver river, which forms the line between California and Nevada. In recently digging a tunnel under the river, a vein of wonderful richness was struck, in which nuggets of gold worth several hundred dollars are frequently found. McLaughlin had one in his possession, which he valued at $850. It was as large as a man's fist, and almost entirely gold.

Like "Hot Cakes." The opening of the diagram for the opera house yesterday was the signal for a rush for tickets for Monday evening's performance. Manager Marsh and a clerk were busy all day taking in the shooks, and when evening came eight hundred seats had been reserved. This is something unprecedented for Omaha, and shows that the elegant temple to Theophas is to be crowded to the utmost on both of the opening nights.

On the Way to Rome. Among the east-bound passengers on the Union Pacific train Wednesday afternoon was Catholic Bishop Romney, of Vancouver's Island, on his way to Rome. He will there assist in the canonization of the Blessed Labre, which takes place in St. Peter's cathedral, December 8th. Bishop Romney has eleven priests in Vancouver's Island and one in Alaska under his charge. The population of the island is largely Indian.

The Club Hunt. The "spoils of the chase," which will be brought in by the rival sides from the Omaha sportsmen's club, who hunted yesterday, will be counted at Collins & Petty's store at 4 o'clock this afternoon. As yet none of the sportsmen have shown up. WM. M. WHITNEY'S Boot and Shoe Emporium is the place to buy. Do not pass by but stop and see his fine line of goods for Ladies, Gentlemen and Children.

A TOUGH CUSTOMER.

Trials of a Vender of Railroad Paste-boards.

When the observant citizen walks by the comfortable and spacious offices of the general ticket agents in this city and notes how Harry Drel's placid countenance is cut gradually larger and his moustache takes daily richer hue, and how Frank Moore's genial smile is omnipresent and his shadow grows not a bit less, the same observant individual is apt to conclude that the ways of these fortunate gentlemen are ever happiness and that all their paths are peace. But he doesn't know the whole story. Ticket agents have their trials and it was the fortune of the valiant champion of the cannon ball route to pass through one of these ordeals last evening. About eight o'clock, as the "gang"—including prominent members of the Chalk club—were dropping in, one by one, and preparing to trade yards of undoubted reality, there was a stir near the door and in walked a customer, that is, he was a prospective customer. He wore a big overcoat, with a cape, and top boots. The boots might have been tight, which made him walk unevenly, or perhaps something about the appearance of the opera house on the west side had unsteadied his equisippe. He managed to get to the rail, however, exhibited a telegram announcing that his wife was coming from the west with three children and would be here Friday, when all were to go on to St. Louis.

Of course the manipulator of tickets was pleased at the prospect of sending the whole family over his line, and he explained everything to the man in the most careful and urbane manner. The telegram was consulted several times, the exact time of which the looked-for wife and three children were to arrive calculated, and the hour agreed upon when the tickets were to be sold—but still the fellow wasn't satisfied. Moore's talked with him about twenty minutes, learned all about his place in the mother-of-president's state, concerning the prospects of the crops, the Slocumb law, and the coming election, and thinking the performance ended, made a move to sit down at his desk. The fellow leaned confidentially over the rail and whispered: "Say, when'd you say they'd be here?" Frank looked up in surprise at the interruption, but the man never noticed it and kept on whispering. Frank got up and walked back toward the rear of the office. The fellow followed. When he came to the big bamboo screen, which temporarily cut off his line of communication, he made a move on the right flank, and by a quick detour, caught the enemy before he could get away. Presently the end of the long rail had been reached, and the victim started on the back track. The boys by this time had suspended conversation and devoted their attention to the play. Gradually Frank worked back toward his desk and the shadow hung to him with a fiendish pertinacity, talking all the while like a house on fire. They made the second lap in good time, and started on the third about even. At this moment the decorum of the lookers-on deserted them. Frank Hanlon became delirious with joy, Joe Tehon looked for a convenient place to stand on his head, and Maxwell got a piece of chalk to keep score. The victim didn't appreciate the joke, but he couldn't help himself. Another promenade, more quick moves around the bamboo screen, and the pedestrians came in on the fourth lap in good form. Moore had assayed several times to get away from the rail, but the fellow on the other side manifested so much disposition to climb over, that the ticket man had no alternative except to stick to it or break out in revolt.

When the fourth lap was finished, Frank let the track for fresh air. The man followed him—out of the front door, around on twentieth street, in the rear door and so—drove him back of the protecting rail, which gave it up. The crowd, which had visibly augmented, was in a roar, and he had to again sit down at his desk and patiently submit. The fellow took a seat just outside the rail and kept on talking. After discussing various topics he heard some remark concerning A. D. Jones. "A. D. Jones!" he exclaimed; "why, I know that there man. He used to live in Old Virginia. Now when he first came there with his wife—"

Frank saw his chance. He broke in with, "Let me see; on what day did we figure that your wife is coming?" The fellow looked a little put out but was willing to attend to business first, and the preliminaries regarding the tickets were talked over again. He began: "When A. D. Jones first showed up in Virginia—"

"Sh-h-h-h!" whispered Frank, "I think that he is just outside of the window." "I don't care a—" profanely remarked the interrupted story teller; "I know A. D. Jones as well as any of you, and don't you forget it." The crowd promised that they would try to not forget it, but they never heard that story or learned what happened when "A. D. Jones came to Virginia with his wife." The man gave up finally in despair and went away with a broken heart. Whether he will buy those Washab tickets remains to be seen.

"WINE OF CARDUI" four times a day makes a happy household. A. C. F. Goodman.

Dean Millsap Married.

The marriage of Dean Millsap to Mrs. Hambleton, daughter of Bishop Clarkson, took place at the Episcopal cathedral this morning at 8 o'clock. The ceremony was performed by Bishop Clarkson, assisted by the Episcopal clergymen of the city, and was witnessed by quite a large audience, including members of the Dean's and Mrs. Hambleton's families. The bride was married in a traveling suit, and the couple at once started for the Sioux City & St. Paul depot and took the train for Duluth. Upon their return they will go to Fairbault, Minn., to visit the friends of Dean Millsap.

In Which a Pawn-broker Figured Prominently.

Some time ago a man from the country bought a gun from Joe Robbins, the pawnbroker. He soon accidentally broke the lock of it and returned it to Robbins to be repaired. Robbins loaned him another gun to use in the meantime. To-day the man returned to Robbins' with the old gun and asked for his own weapon. Robbins said it was unfortunate, but he had sold it. This naturally made the countryman mad, and he got hotter still when told by Robbins that he could possibly get the gun back by paying a bonus of $3. Quite a war of words ensued, and Robbins finally drew a revolver and pointed it at the stranger. That gentleman in turn brought the gun to a level and things began to look ugly, when Ex-Sheriff Greby interfered and took the stranger to the police court. There he was discharged by Judge Boneke after the case had been stated to him.

"Don't Know Half Their Value."

"They cured me of Ague, Biliousness and Kidney Complaint, as recommended by the highest authorities. I had a half bottle left which I used for my two little girls, who the doctors and neighbors said could not be cured. I would have lost both of them one night if I had not given them Hop Bitters. They did them so much good I continued their use until they were cured. That is why I say you do not know half the value of Hop Bitters, and do not recommend them high enough." B. Rochester, N. Y. WORTHY OF PRAISE.

As a rule we do not recommend patent medicines, but when we know of one that really is a public benefactor, and does positively cure, then we consider it our duty to impart that information to all. Electric Bitters are truly a most valuable medicine, and will surely cure Biliousness, Fever and Ague, Stomach, Liver and Kidney complaints, even where all others remedies fail. We know whereof we speak, and can freely recommend to all [Ex. Sold at 50 cents a bottle. Ish & McMahon. (4)
