BOYD'S BANQUET.

A Royal Feast Tendered Our Worthy Mayor.

The Opera House Opening Splendidly Commemorated.

Toasts and Speeches of Elequent Response and Appropriate Nature.

The banquet extended to Hon. James E. Boyd at the Withnell House last evening, was, despite the pouring rain, a magnificent and gratifying success. About forty-five invited guests and representatives of the press were

The spacious dining hall was brilliantly lighted and the best service of the hotel brought into requisition. At the center table on the north side of the room were seated Mayor Boyd, at the head; General Manderson, Col. Stanton, Manager Marsh of the Opera House, and Supt. Morford, of the Chicago, St. Paul & Omaha railroad. At the other tables were seated the guests, among whom were ten military officers of the Department of the Platte. Col. Martin, assistant adjutant general; Col. Stanton, chief paymaster; Col. Summers, medical director; Col. Ludington, chief quartermaster; Maj. Furey, depot quurtermaster; Maj. Town, paymaster; Maj. MAYOR BOYD'S RESPONSE.

Mayor Boyd in response said: GENTLEMEN-It is the most difficult be the chief guest of the best business and mercantile men of this city, is the greatest honor that could have been conferred upon me. Pope says, "Act well your part. There all the honor lies." I may be pardoned if I I may be pardoned if I say that I have tried to do this. If I have ever done anything worthy of your commendation it is because I have endeavored to live up to this maxim. The only time that I remember of not counting the state of the stat member of not counting the cost, was when I made the proposition to build the opera house on yonder corner.

I discovered, after commencing, that the outlay would be more than twice as great as expected, but when house. So de it. The message I found myself so ably seconded by the gentlemen here this evening I had too much pride to put my name to any other than an opera house worthy of this great city and its peo-ple. [Applause.] Men live in deeds rather than in years or in thoughts. What I shall be able to accomplish for you can best judge. As long as I live the memory of this greeting and reception shall be to me the proudest thought I can enjoy. Gentlemen, 1 thank you. [Applause.] The other formal toasts were then responded to as follows:

CAUGHT AT LAST.

At the big fire of December 6th, last, when Her's store was burned and Frank Ramge's establishment with it, there were a good manythings stolen. Among other articles was a $45 over coat, of which no trace whatever could be found. A few days since Mr. Ramge recognized the coat on a color ed man, an employe of the Pullman company, and on inquiry of him found that he had purchased it of Henry Williams, another son of Etheopia, soon after the fire. Williams was arrested on the charge of grand larceny and lodged in jail to await his preliminary hearing.

The examination resulted in the
