He inclines to what, relatively speaking, may be called elemency. He has pledged himself in certain instances that pardon shall be granted, and intends to keep his promise. The number of executions will thus be diminished. The trial will strike to the very heart of the nihilist organization. It is not to take place.

Berlin, November 24.—The enermous increase in the military estimates has astonished the people, and excited a great amount of comment, not only because of the necessity of increased taxation, but, apropos of Bismarck's probable plan, the estimates call for an increase of 300 heutenants and 200 non-commissioned officers. There are indications that Prince Bismarck is wavering in his latest threat to resign. It is announced, however, by those who are in official confidence, that his continuance in power depends upon the reception and treatment by the reichstag of his plans for financial and social re-
