Skating 'Round the Pond Twas with my Amelia That I a skating went, And dropped myself so often That I am broke and bent.

The fun the boys and girls had on the basin at the foot of Farnham street yesterday was enough to satisfy anyone that "winter hath its charms." Nearly a thousand persons were on quite a while. He was finally disthe ice at one time in the afternoon, until the broad surface was fairly black with gliding, sliding and tumbling humanity. But the sport amply compensated all for whatever bruises and "barked" limbs it brought. Several renters of skates drove a thriving business, and then an envious crowd stood around unable to get the requisite runners under their feet that they might join the throng. Many ladies and misses were there, carefullysometimes more carefully than seemed the latter being very cleanly and organized fully enjoyed the exhilator of the quick bounding blood in the veins, and are filled with eagerness to go again.

Humbugged Again.

I saw so much said about the mer its of Hop Bitters, and my wife who was always doctoring, and never well, teased me so urgently to get her some, I concluded to be humbugged again; and I am glad I did, for in less than two months use of the Bitters my wife was cured and she has remained such humbugging .- H. A Crazy Man Makea a Deadly Assault on the County Jailor.

He Chokes and Bites Jailor Miller and is About to Kill Fim.

When Charley De Groat and Dan Garey Save His Life.

The Frisoner Deluged into Submission at La-t.

The Tirst Senentian in the New Jail.

One of the most fearful and deadly encounters that was ever experienced by mortal man, fell to the lot of Jo Wednesday and he owes his life to-day -One hundred and fifty-nine beautiful H. Garey, who is under indictment for robbing a registered letter pouch and embezzling the money.

I like ting out a bible which was in the cell, would throw it on the floor, jump on it, curse and douse water about the room. He made such a racket that several times Miller told him if he didn't dry up he'd have to come in clock at night the noise had increased, as the advocate of baptism but year (25th) was ushered in with a light under-clothing, and left the door leading into Sheriff Guy's apartments locked. He unlocked the door leading to the narrow hallway and entered, leaving it unlocked and ajar. He put the key in the door of the first lock, and started to swing the door open without removing the lock. All these little incautious things he says he did for the first time in his life, knowing the prisoner so well and not so there is not a possibility of a colluanticipating any trouble, and so not only left every avenue open for the prisoner to get the advantage of him, but cut off every hope of aid from Sheriff Guy, who cannot enter the court of the jail until it is unlocked from the inside. Of course there was no opportunity for a prisoner to gain his freedom, but merely to get full liberty to go for his keeper.

At the instant that Miller started to swing the cell door open, the prisoner sprang upon him like a tiger, before he know what was the matter, and seized him by the throat. Seeing that the devil was to pay, Miller took a grip too and rammed his assailant backward through the winds w, taking sash and all but the bars. Weimans was desperately in earnest and struck and bit at Miller, who with the heavy key of the hall door in his hand now planted a blow square in Wiemans' face, following it up with another and held him at the throat with one hand and with the other seized him in a vulnerable spot and backed him into the west end of the cell, where he downed him. Seeing that the blows had no apparent effect, Miller began to pound the crazy man's head with the butt end of the heavy key, laying open the scalp every time, but he was no match for the devilish fury of the other and was soon driven to the east end of the cell, where he fell upon his hands and knees, his antagonist holding him as stated. Miller was by this time nearly played out, and his strength was fast leaving him. He was beaten and bitten and maltreated terribly, and although the noise penetrated the entire building help from the outside was as hopeless to expect as from the inside. He tried to get to the door Flour, Ground Feed, Corn, Oats, of one of the other cells and pass in a and Baled Hay for sale by Poland & key to them, but remembered that Gwyer, 1413 Dodge and 118-6t the key was in the door at the far end
