NEEDLESS ALARM. Fomebody seems to be trying to get up a scare about there being a case of small-pox at the Ogden hotel. Now the facts are that Mr. Ira Smith who recently returned from St. Louis, and soon after was down with congestion of the brain, something resembling the small pox came out on his forehead. To prevent any false alarm, the proprietor had him immediately taken from the house, and he has since left town. We say right here if there is a case of small pox in Council Bluffs we do not know where it is. We believe that the fire Monday night swept every vestage of the disease away, and the people can rest easy. Should a case appear now the doctors should make it known through the papers at once.
