An Omaha Young Lochnivar and His Ohio Sensation.

Social Notes and Polite Personalities.

As Christmas approaches the social whirl becomes faster and more furious. Scarcely a night passes but our society pinks put out their petals and blossom in hall or parlor, and scarcely an evening goes by in which our Omaha belles are not compelled to refuse several of the many conflicting invitations which are pressed upon them.

There are few social clubs which can boast a continued existence of ninety-nine parties which was the number concluded by the 'Pleasant Hours' on Tuesday evening at Masonic Hall.

The attendance was large but not too numerous to prevent ample room for the dancers who from half past eight until after midnight, with the usual intermission for supper, trod the mazy dance to the delightful accompaniment of Prof. Hoffman's excellent orchestra.

The little social sensation which all Newark society has been gossiping about for the past two days, is now over, and all is serene. The facts in the whole business are about as follows.

Miss Clara Moore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Moore, made arrangements, and intended, as her parents and friends supposed, to go to Columbus, Tuesday, to visit an old school friend. She and Mr. W. B. Ogden, of Omaha, Nebraska, took dinner Tuesday, with Mrs. T. K. Sutton, Miss Clara's sister.

A letter was received last night, stating that Mr. and Mrs. Ogden would be "at home" this morning to all their friends, at the Palmer house, Chicago. What makes the affair all the more strange is the fact of the lady's engagement to a well known young gentleman of this city.

The fourth party of the 'Sen Ceremonie' Club took place on Tuesday evening at Standard Hall. With the best of music, an excellent floor, a palatable supper and congenial companionship a most delightful evening was the necessary result.

The last party of the Imperial Club's first series occurred on Friday evening at Masonic hall under the usual efficient management. The attendance was large and select, the music was of Hoffman's choicest and the committees untiring in their attention to the comfort of the guests.

Carrie Neligh, Sylvanus, Tschuck, Ward, and Gibson, Mrs. Minor, Mrs. Stripman, Mrs. Sorenson, Mrs. Malcolm, Messrs. A. Rosewater, Murray, Truhee, Anders, Lyon, Wells, Henry Bushman, Tschuck, John and Robt. Taylor, Wilkinson, C. K. Taylor, Badley, Cooke, Porter, Bussey and Feister.

A very pleasant reception was given by Miss Kate James, at her home in Council Bluffs, Monday evening, December 5th. Vocal and instrumental music and a sumptuous supper whiled away the too short hours.

Miss James is engaged by Mr. Maurice Strakes as leading soprano of his opera company. She begins this season during the holidays at Baltimore in "Carmen." Miss James possesses a sweet voice, of great dramatic force, excellent in compass and quality, sympathetic and melodious in both lower and upper register.

Omaha can boast of having furnished one of the most dashing young Lochnivars of modern times in the person of Mr. Will B. Ogden, formerly connected with Messrs. Collins Bros. leather establishment, and well known in society circles in our city.
