AFTER a few more murderous matiness resulting from the refusal of the authorities of this city to enforce the law, the people of Omaha will place the responsibility where it belongs.

THE Neligh Republican quotes THE BEE as stating that $75,000,000 were classes. paid out last year for fraudulent pensions. THE BEE made no such assertion. The pension office at Washington, however, states that to the best of their belief nearly that amount of money will be paid out for fraudulent iniquity is settled up.

THE city of Omaha is a law-abiding and quiet city, as much so as any city of its size in America, and no other city of like consequence is so well regulated and with as small a police force as is Omaha.

THE BEE pitches into Omaha and the mayor of the city without regard to utility, decency or truth. There is no utility in a public journal asserting that the city is in the hands of drunken bullies and thugs. Omaha Republican, Dec. 20th.

Shall we apologize? Is there no utility, decency or truth in a public journal to call a halt to the rows and riots which have been this carnival of crime?

THE LESSON OF THE HOUR. There was a hush of expectation hanging about the city hall last evening at the hour of roll call for the police, and something ominous in the gathering of officials that might have signified a projected "raid" or a council over a mysterious crime. The silence was broken when Judge Beneke rose from his seat and invited Mayor Boyd to take it, which the mayor did with a pleasant remark about occupying the bench for the first time.

The judge then presented to the mayor, in behalf of the police department, a magnificent inlaid gold Masonic emblem.

Mayor Boyd responded. * * Then the mayor bestowed to some advantage. his particular attention upon City Marshal Angell, handing , him a pair judge's, with these words:

"I have yet another pleasant duty he is the official head; and it is with mony to his ability (as well as his pru- ferroting it out. dent management of the city affairs. I also wish to add that I am well pleased with the manner in which the police force has done its work during e past nine months, and can only add that I trust they may continue to do right and fear not.

The mayor's speeches were listened to with the closest attention and being more than formal remarks were regarded as convoying a significant not less than deserved approval of the course pursued by the police department. - Sunday Morning Herald.
