THE CAPTURE OF COUNCIL BLUFFS

BY OMAHA.

Jingle, jingle, jingle. Here comes Omaha! The roll of the drum, prancing of horses, waving of plumes and flags, the merry laugh and the lusty shout and the old-time enemy of Council Bluffs, our former rival for the Union Pacific terminus power and prestige, was on our streets with at least a hundred horses.

CRUMBS FROM COURT

An Interesting Turn in the Trial of a Case.

In the district court on Saturday, the trial of the case of Daniel Owens was continued. He with one George Bentley, both brakemen on the C. B. & Q. were charged with having obtained a pay check for eighty dollars due Wm. McCuen, and getting it cashed for their own benefit.

Council Bluffs is fast becoming a great wholesale and manufacturing city. Its lines of railroads are unexcelled by any other in the state of Iowa.

Its leading interests are rapidly being developed, and we only need the wagon and railway bridge across the river to render us independent of competition.

What paper can do the most toward forwarding our commercial interests in the western market? What paper circulates the most copies there? The universal answer must be, THE BEE.

The circulation of our competitors in that region is not one to a thousand in comparison with us.

Now, if you want the wholesale interests of this city heralded where it will do the most good, advertise in THE BEE, then you will influence the western trade.

Call at our office, examine our sworn circulation statistics, and you will be fully satisfied.

They may be sure of a welcome. In the meantime, Council Bluffs should show again what it can do.

-As is pretty generally conceded now throughout the country, Council Bluffs is one of the best distributing points, and the heavy agricultural implement and machinery houses are therefore all establishing departments here. As a sample of how the business is booming in this line it may be stated that the Keystone Manufacturing company sold last year from here forty car loads of their goods, and this was their first year here. These goods were all sent out on bona fide sales, none being commissioned.

-The news of the death of Mrs. W. J. Davenport, at Burlington, has caused much pain to the many friends of that estimable woman. Mrs. Davenport was aged about 58 years, and was married to Mr. Davenport some years ago, while he was railway agent at Corning. He has risen rapidly since then, and occupied a prominent position here for a long time, during which both gained a strong hold upon the esteem and affection of this community. Mrs. Davenport's remains will be taken from Burlington to her former home in Lasark for interment.
