One of our editors three or four months ago, took it into his head, to erect an electric tower to test electricty for street lightning. It was a novelty and I thought an account of it when completed would be interesting to you, so I neglected writting to you and and this is my excuse, for the tower has been delayed from time to time and is only just now completed. It is a success; of course it met with opposition from the Gas Co., organ and all old fogies, but the editor J. Owen, of the "Mercury," who is tall, roman-nosed, a little stoop shouldered, called by that pas organ "stately crane' could not be ridiculed down. The result is a stately tower 200 feet high, with an electric light of 24,000 candle power on the top; men can see see the time of night by the and it casts a distinct shadow three miles away. About four such lights will light our city of about 16,000 inhabitants, ten times better than the present gas, and at least oneha'f cheaper, the gas costs $500 a month, at $2.50 per 1000 feet. Owen claims several points on his tower. It is built at the intersection of two business streets and is no obstruction. It stands on the four corners (out edges of sidewalks) inclined to the center, and is built of gas-pipe, property arched and braced. It is quite ornamental, but the light is the erowning glory; beautiful, soft, white and pleasant; it is not large but is brilliant and penetrating. We think we are done with the light of other days. We have got the first electric tower on this coast, and the highest in the United States, if not in the world, by five feet. The darker the night the better the light; the clouds seem to be good reflectors. In fact, it is a most won-
