TWO FAMOUS HORSES.

A Leaf from the Early History of the American Turf.

The First [Great Race Between the North and South, Run by Eclipse and Sir Henry.

The palmy days of the American from the outset, compelling Henry, if turf, it has been said, were between determined to trail, to do at the top the years 1815 and 1845. Subset of his speed, without keeping any requent to that date the trotting horse began to monopolize public attention, termination of the last mile Henry and the running stock of America was less in note and demand. Re- as to cover his quarter or haunch with cently, when the flyers of Lorillard his head, and for a moment had the and Keene have crossed the water and won the Derby and St. Leger from the best blood of old England, dred yards when he fell to the and when running races again form rear and gave up the contest, part of the attraction at the best Time, 8 minutes, 24 seconds. Thus, fathers took a keen interest.

horses, to be found in the English Stud Book. Eclipse is a dark sorrel horse, with a star, the near hind foot white, fifteen hands and two inches in height. He possesses great power and substance, being well spread and full made throughout his entire frame, his general mold being much heavier than what is commonly met with in the thoroughbred blood horse. Although his form throughout denotes uncommon strength, I conceive him indebted for his great racing powers, continuance and ability equal to any weight to the extraordinary fine construction of his hind quarters. He was sired by Duroc, a Virginia horse, - - NEB. bred by Wade Moseby, Esq., and got by imported Diomed, out of Amanda.

by Gray Diomed, a son of old Medley. Eclipse's dam was the noted gray mare Miller's Damsel, got by imported Messenger. His grand dam, an English mare, imported, when three years old, in 1795, by William Constable, of New York, bred by Lord Grosvenor, and sired by PotSos, son of English Eclispe. His g. g. dam by Gimerack, Gimerack by Cripole, and he by the Godolphin Arabian. He was bred by General Nathaniel Coles, of Queens county, Long Island, and foaled May 25, 1814.

All horses date their age from the though not four years complete, carried 108 pounds. Eclipse, being nine years old, carried 126 pounds. Eclipse was ridden by William Crafts, in crimson jacket and cap, Henry by John Walden, in sky blue
