BENEVOLENT BUDGET. The Police Record of the Past Day and Night.

The police have a soft thing since the passage of the Sleumb law, or rather since it went into effect. The number of Sleumbs, or plain drunks is decidedly small, and consequently the police judge is shorn of a large part of his importance, as the drunks make up the largest part of the docket each year.

Thursday Officer McCune was on the trail of a notorious Twelfth street prostitute, who inveigled a man into her den, got $5 out of him and then fired him. The woman kept shady, however, and it was a dry haul.

John Rose, John Maguire and Michael Quinlan, the three boys implicated in the Burns knife robbery, pleaded guilty in police court this morning, each claiming to be over 16 years of age. They were, as a matter of fact, none of them 16 years old yet, and Judge Benke had them over to appear before Judge Savage, the reform school being the proper place for them.

Frank Cassidy, who carried off silk handkerchiefs from Mr. Hellman, also pleaded guilty, and the same judgment was rendered in his case.

In the case of the gang of youthful thieves, all of whom acknowledged their guilt, Messrs. Groome and Bennett appeared to withdraw the charges against them, but this Judge Benke refused to allow, sending them to take their chances before Judge Savage.

Ed Galligan, whose name appeared in connection with the affair Thursday was not implicated in the matter and it appears gave himself up on his own motion and was discharged. Yesterday, when the boys were remanded to jail, Ed made some remark to one of them which made one of the officers angry, and he was seized and carried to the city jail, despite the most vigorous resistance, and is now locked up to await his trial. He threatened Officer Sullivan with dire consequences if he got out a habeas corpus in his case, but Judge Benke is not likely to be so easily duped.

NELLIE BURKE. The Dashing and Graceful Equestrienne About to Begin Her Season's Work.

Probably Omaha can boast of no greater celebrity among its citizens than Miss Nellie Burke, the originator of the ten and twenty mile races, and without doubt the champion lady rider of the west. Her spirit, nerve and endurance are equalled only by the grace with which she rides and none who have seen her in her close fitting navy blue suit and jockey cap as she flows about the ring with the speed of the wind, will ever forget her. She rides like a Centaur and appears to equal advantage in her races or on the public thoroughfare when out for a mere pleasure trip.

Miss Burke leaves on Sunday morning for the Lons Star state from which she returned on Wednesday after an absence three weeks. She has made a number of contracts in Texas and other portions of the south to ride in races and has secured for the season as fine a field of horses as could be had in the United States and is confident that she can beat any woman that can be matched against her, and give her ten seconds the advantage, as Miss Burke can change horses ten seconds quicker than any rival. Her first race in Texas will be at Austin, where a ten mile race is arranged for between herself and a Canadian equestrienne, Lillian Devere. This race will take place February 14th, and will be for $1,000 a side.

Races are also arranged for at Waco, San Antonio, and Galveston; a twenty mile race at New Orleans, the week preceding Mardi Gras; a race at Greenville, Miss., and a ten mile race at Maysville, Ky.

Miss Burke will be accompanied on her Southern tour by Miss Mollie Taylor, a Nebraska equestrienne of nerve and pluck second only to Miss Burke's.

Miss Burke is also having constructed for use during the coming season five chariots and will add chariot racing and hurdle racing to the list of her accomplishments.

There is undoubtedly a bright future before this little lady, who will not only win additional laurels and add to a reputation already national, but will be a rich woman inside of a couple of years. She deserves the best of luck and that is what will be wished her by her Omaha friends and admirers.

Answer This. Did you ever know any person to be ill without inaction of the stomach, liver or kidneys, or did you ever know one was well when either was obstructed or inactive; and did you ever know or hear of any case of the kind that Hop Bitters would not cure?
