A HUMAN BELLOW.

A Man Shot in the Chest Breathes Under His Arm.

There is a man in the hospital, says The Salt Lake Tribune, named Joseph Dwyer, who has three bullet holes in his chest, one of which is still unhealed. Through the last mentioned wound, which is a little way below his left armpit, he exhales air from his lungs. A reporter visited him last evening at St. Mary's hospital. He had no hesitation in exhibiting his peculiarity, and when requested to strip, removed his shirt and showed the reporter four holes in his chest and back where two bullets had entered and another where a ball had struck his shoulder and came out under his arm. There was also a hole in his leg. From the wound under the armpit he breathed so loudly that the sound of air escaping through the orifice could be heard the length of the room. The reporter held his hand before the hole and felt the air rushing out. Dwyer tells his story as follows: "I was at Bonanza City about three years ago. Had a mining claim, and a man named Flaxon, Charley was his first name, came to visit me. He was a hunter, and he had a gun. He knew I had killed me over me, and he crossed this way and that, until I couldn't tell for a certainty which bullet made any two holes. For a while you could look into one of the holes and see my heart quite plain, but that healed up, and now there is no show to see the heart at all. If you had been here a year or more ago, I should have shown you the heart beating right along. I can't much of an exhibition now; all I can do is to pump air out of my lungs by this hole. Once I could take it in one place and send it out another, but the hole is healed. I was all well once, but the wound opened again. "Did you return the fire?" asked the reporter. "Hadn't any gun; but after I was shot a few times, I went for him, and I got him down, and the crowd pulled me off. When I got him down he began to holler murder; nice chap to be singing! I shot him after the way he had acted. He shot his partner once the same way. Guess I'll be in a few days all right."

Returned from the Buffalo Range. Mr. Wolfolk, who returned a day or two ago from a buying trip to O'Fallen creek, a tributary which puts into the Yellowstone from the south, reports buffalo robes in great plenty in that section. He purchased $26,000 worth of robes while there from the hunters alone. No Indians were on the range. The hunting is all done by whites, who have had a very successful season thus far. The game is reported in great abundance in the valley of O'Fallen creek, and the
