

MARGARET.

Death and Burial of a Woman Whose Deeds Will Ever Bless Her Memory.

'Charity that Vaunteth Not Itself,' but 'Fell Like the Dew of Heaven, on All Alike.'

New York Evening Post.

The most remarkable funeral probably ever witnessed in New Orleans took place there on Saturday, February 11. It was the occasion of the burial of Mrs. Margaret Haughey, a woman who never wore a silk dress or a kid glove. But no woman in the whole South was better known than she.

The announcement in the New Orleans papers of her death and burial are headed simply 'Margaret,' yet every inhabitant of that locality and every man on the Lower Mississippi knew who she meant.

Margaret's pall-bearers were the governor of Louisiana, ex-Governor Nichols, the mayor of New Orleans, the editor of The Picayune, representing the press of the city, and some of the most prominent merchants and bankers of New Orleans.

Among those who gathered to do her honor were Generals Beauregard, Ogden and Moyer, and others of the most distinguished men of Louisiana. The funeral was attended by a concourse of people that could scarcely be numbered, they were so many.

The archbishop of the diocese conducted the services. Following the carriage of the pall-bearers were the children of eleven orphan asylums, white and colored, Catholic and Protestant. These belonged to the city and immediate vicinity.

Following them were representatives of other asylums and public charities, who had come to add their blessings and respect to the memory of Margaret. From the church to the cemetery where they buried her, the streets and sidewalks were thronged with mourners—men, women, and children.

In the procession were the members of one of the city fire companies, in citizens' dress, the Mississippi No. 2. The dead woman had been an honorary member of this company.

Wherever the cortege passed along the streets, at its approach men stopped their hurried walk and stood with uncovered heads, till it passed, as though this had been the burial of a king, or a person of world-wide renown.

At the church, the Howard Association of the city, with its president at the head, joined the procession formally, and followed it to the grave. A noteworthy and touching incident occurred on the way to the cemetery.

The cortege passed the New Orleans Stock Exchange at noon just after the members had assembled, and the call was progressing. On the instant, the members suspended proceedings, left their room and came down to the sidewalk.

They stood there reverently with bare heads, till the remains of Margaret had passed by. This was a name which had proved to still for a time even the Babel cries of trade.

Who was she? A plain, humble woman, who had been good to the little children of the poor. Her history, as told by the steamboatman, is an unusual and romantic one. Years ago, it is said, she was a Roman Catholic sister of charity.

During her benevolent ministrations she attended through his last illness a gentleman who became much interested in her and her work. There seems a discrepancy in the account here, but the story is the gentleman proposed that Margaret should marry him on his death bed, so that she could inherit his estate.

At any rate the marriage took place, and she was left a widow in possession of a small property. It was then the work of her life began. The business of a certain restaurant and bake-shop along the river front had fallen into decay.

about midnight a woman died whose life had been spent quite outside of fashionable society. A woman of lovely birth, who, without any factitious aids of fortune, of family or training, yet whose beautiful nature overflowed with every blessed impulse that makes woman worthy to be woman, wife and mother, shed a beneficent influence on thousands of lives while she lived, and dies mourned as no fine lady among us can hope to be.

The highest in point of wealth and fashion in the city ministered at her sick bed and watched by her silent form after death. A society woman went on Friday evening to call on a friend. She was not at home—gone to watch with the remains of Margaret.

And what a monument she built and left standing to perpetuate her simple and modest name—three orphan asylums! With reverently bowed and uncovered head we pass on.

MISSOURI STYLE. How a Judge Talked to a Jury in Santa Monica. Los Angeles Times.

He was from Missouri and he got interested in a criminal trial after he had been there a few days. He sat and watched with the greatest interest possible.

After the judge had instructed the jury and sent them out under the care of the constable to be locked up, he went off to take a walk and give the poor jury time to come to some conclusion.

In about an hour he returned and heard someone making a democratic speech in the jury room. He opened the door and found the old Missouri man in the middle of the floor laying down the law and the facts to the jury.

'Here, what are you doing in this room?' cried the court in thundering tones. 'I came in here to see what the jury intended to do, and thought I would help them out a little.'

'But you have got no right here. The law strictly forbids anyone to talk to a jury after they have been locked up.'

'Now, you see here, stranger, I've been a judge of a justice court in Hoining Hill, Jackson county, Missouri, for the past twenty years, and I always helped the jury out. You see they need a good talking to, and I always do it.'

But the court couldn't see it and fined him. Expert in Doest. A LIBERAL OFFER. For the past two years the publishers of this paper have given to the subscribers of THE WEEKLY BEE the best line of premiums as inducements to subscription which have ever been offered by any newspaper in the country.

The plan has proved a success. It has given universal satisfaction to the patrons of the paper, and has increased the subscription list to a degree far above the expectations of its publishers.

Many patrons of THE DAILY BEE have asked why we do not offer them the same inducements held out to subscribers of THE WEEKLY BEE. In response to the inquiry we make the following offer: Each subscriber to THE DAILY BEE who pays his arrears of subscription and remits pre-payment for six months and every new subscriber who remits pre-payment for six months will be entitled to one of the premiums mentioned in our list.

These premiums will be distributed in the same impartial manner which marked our first and second distributions. This scheme was first devised to collect subscriptions in arrears from patrons of THE WEEKLY BEE. Its success exceeded our expectations. We have now no back collections on our weekly edition, have established the prepayment system, quadrupled our circulation and correspondingly enhanced the value of our advertising space.

A number of subscribers to THE DAILY BEE are now in arrears, and if by an extension of the same plan we can induce them to pay the amount due us, we can well afford to make this liberal offer. By this means we hope to still further increase the large list of THE DAILY BEE, and having established the prepayment system we propose to maintain it, as we are doing with our Weekly edition.

To those who are not familiar with our plan of distribution or the manner in which the premiums are secured by us, we append the explanation made to our weekly subscribers, which applies equally to the subscribers of THE DAILY BEE. Two years ago the publishers of THE BEE devised a scheme for collecting back pay from delinquent subscribers, securing renewals and extending the circulation of this paper by a distribution of valuable premiums. The success of that experiment, both in the collection of back pay and increase of circulation, was so encouraging that the publishers ventured upon the same system of premium distributions on a more extensive scale last year. It was demonstrated that we could better afford to distribute the money usually paid to agents, local collectors and attorneys, directly to our patrons by offering them extraordinary inducements to square accounts and prepay for another year. By this method we have succeeded in two years in quadrupling the circulation of THE WEEKLY BEE and extending its influence far beyond the boundaries of this state.

During the first year only a portion of the articles distributed were prepared in exchange for advertising.

When the marked increase in circulation became known to merchants and manufacturers last year they willingly placed their machinery and merchandise at our disposal in paying for advertising. That enabled us to do what seemed incredible—namely, furnish a metropolitan weekly for two dollars a year and give our subscribers premiums that aggregated in value $200,000. And yet it was a paying investment for us, and gave general satisfaction to our patrons.

What grew out of a desire to collect back pay had developed into a new and practical idea. We have discovered that we can afford to make our subscribers sharers in the income of the paper from advertising. In other words we can afford to divide the advertising patronage of the paper with its subscribers, inasmuch as the amount of advertising grows with the increased circulation. Advertising space in THE BEE that was worth one hundred dollars five years ago will command one thousand dollars to-day. This fall more goods and machinery have been offered us in exchange for advertising than we could accept in view of the limited space we devote for that purpose.

What we have contracted for makes our grand and most varied list that has ever been offered for distribution by any newspaper, and that too without paying a dollar in money. The only outlay in cash we expect to incur in connection with these premiums will be for postage and expressage. This explains exactly how we procure our premiums and why we can give away property of so much value.

All the premiums in our list are worth at retail just what we represent them. In contrast with manufacturers and wholesale dealers we accept them only at wholesale rates, but that does not lessen their value to those who receive them.

THE BEE has for years stood in the front rank of newspapers west of the Mississippi, and to-day circulates more extensively than any paper west of Chicago and north of St. Louis. A large number of eastern people who desire to procure a far western paper with a view of acquiring reliable information about the resources and development of the country west of the Missouri will doubtless avail themselves of the opportunity now offered them. Having for more than ten years been under one management pursuing a course that has established for it public confidence at home and a wide reputation abroad, THE BEE could not afford to engage in any undertaking that was not conducted fairly and honestly. The distribution in 1880 and 1881 gave general satisfaction to our subscribers. The coming distribution will be made in the same impartial manner, by a committee whom the subscribers present may select from their own number, and in such manner as they think fair and equitable.

Last year all the premiums gave good satisfaction, excepting some engravings which were not appreciated. This year no engravings, maps or pictures have been placed among the premiums. Our old patrons need no assurance from us of the reliability and stability of THE BEE, nor do we need to inform them that the principles it advocates, and the fearless defense it makes, in behalf of the producer, makes it almost indispensable to the industrial classes of the west.

No intelligent person would expect that every subscriber will receive a $650 threshing machine, a $1500 piano, a $300 harvester, or a $100 organ, but all have an equal chance in the distribution. Each subscriber that pays up his arrears and repays another year, and every new subscriber who remits pre-payment for one year, will receive a premium worth at least One Dollar at retail. As a matter of fact, THE OMAHA WEEKLY BEE is worth the subscription price, Two Dollars a year, to every farmer; mechanic or merchant. Without boasting, we assert that no weekly paper, east or west, can compare with it in variety and choice selections, general news, interesting correspondence, and no other paper in any country contains so much far western news, ranging from the Pacific coast to the Mississippi river. With the proof of good faith and honest dealing before them in the numerous acknowledgments we publish, we can safely enter upon our enlarged undertaking of this year, confidently believing that its success will be mutually satisfactory and advantageous. E. ROSKOWATER, Managing Editor.

OUR BEST PREMIUMS.

The following is a description of the most valuable premiums that are to be allotted to the patrons of THE BEE on March 4:

THE CHASE PIANO, which is the most valuable among our premiums, is from the CHASE PIANO COMPANY, of Richmond, Indiana. This company has the reputation of making the most durable instruments made in America, and for tone and tune their Pianos are second to none. Possessing fine water power and a factory built with special reference to the manufacture of the best instrument at the least possible cost, this company have advantages enjoyed by no eastern factory. They have near at hand in large quantities the finest timber in the world, and have the opportunity to make the first selection, and save the high freights which must be paid by eastern manufacturers, and consequently can furnish a better piano for the money than any other makers. The College of Music at Cincinnati, one of the largest institutions of the kind in this country, after trying the pianos of all the best makers discarded all others and are using only the CHASE, and declared that it possessed all the qualities necessary to withstand the hardships of a genuine musical warfare. This speaks volumes in favor of these excellent instruments, the product of western enterprise and skill. All disinterested experts admit that these pianos are made better than those from any other factory and that they are the most serviceable. The piano we offer is their Cycle seven and for elegance of appearance, beauty of tone, and solidity of structure cannot be excelled. Parties who are not familiar with this make of pianos would do well to write to the factory for an illustrated catalogue.

The other piano on our list is the same style and quality as the one we gave last year, and will be appreciated by the party fortunate enough to receive it.

THE THRESHING MACHINES. The first one on the list is from Pitts & Son's, of Chicago, Ill., and has a reputation for good work over the whole country. The Gold Medal Thresher is from the well known firm of Robinson & Co., Richmond, Ind. The Robinson machine works were established in 1842, and are one of the oldest threshing machine builders in the country. The machines of this firm are in use in every state from Maine to Oregon. Every farmer and dealer admits their superiority. Our contract with the Robinson machine works is for a complete threshing ready to attach either horse or steam power, both of which they manufacture, and under our contract they will furnish the party who receives this machine, either power at $50.00 less than their regular price. This discount to be given in addition to any cash or other discounts offered by the firm.

THE SELF-BINDING HARVESTER. The reputation of the Marsh harvesters is so well established that no special description of them is deemed necessary. We will only state that this is their latest improvement. This machine was on exhibition at the Nebraska state fair last September, and was admired by every one, and the workings of it declared superior to that of any other harvester made.

THE LEWIS READER. This machine stands at the head of the header family and has met with most surprising success. The factory at Hastings, Nebraska is kept busy the year around, and the past year has not been able to make enough to fill all orders. These headers do more work with less power than any other work in their class, and with less loss of grain than by any other mode of harvesting.

THE AMERICAN GRINDING MILLS which we offer as premiums are guaranteed to be of every kind, light, neat, simple in construction, durable and easily managed. These mills are intended for grinding feed, and are valuable to every farmer; they can be adjusted so as to grind meal fine enough for table use. The fortunate farmer who receives one of these mills will certainly be well pleased. The mills are complete with pulleys, and can be attached to any power. They are manufactured by the American Grinding Mill Company, Chicago, Illinois.
