There have been several interesting has been named since Tuesday.

A NIGHT ATTACK. The first was during the early part of Tuesday. About 11 o'clock a coustreet followed by nine other shots in quick succession at various points of the compass. This had been preceded by the accidental discharge of a revolver and gun in the camp and the company of the com which happened almost simultaneous ly. Of course there was great excitement. The boys poured out of the barracks in hot haste expecting to meet an enemy, but none was visible in the darkness. The residents in the vicinity thought a battle had begun and there was a general sensation. Later on several parties were seen skulking about the street and embankment and it was rumored that the guards were to be picked off by sharp shooters. The skulkers were finally captured and proved to be several tramps who were trying to find one of the old houses that are being removed from the grounds, in which to sleep, as the night was

A warrant was sworn out in Judge Beneke's court for the arrest of John Doe, correct name unknown, for the murder of George P. Arm strong. The complaint was sworn to by President Walsh, of the labor union, and was given to Policeman McCune to serve. Policeman, Mc Cune, accompanied by Walsh, Jim

As stated vesterday, the number of workers is very small, and the state-ment of THE BER was and is correct, notwithstanding the loud denial of the monumental liar of the Herald, who probably steers clear of the dump occurrences at "Camp Omaha" as the and will till al danger is over. "SCHOOL FOR SCANDAL."

Sheridan's Great Comedy Splendidly Acted at Boyd's by Fanny Davenport and Company.

Boyd's opera house did not seem to suffer very seriously from the terrors of the boycott last evening, when the curtain rose before a crowded house to witness America's great actress, pany in the presentation of Sheridan's famous comedy, "School for Scandal." The audience was very fashionable, and the scene was particularly brilliant. Miss Davenport has lost none of her fine stage appearances, and re-tains her beauty in a remarkable de-

The play "School for Scandal" is probably familiar to all, but Miss Davenport's rendition and comprehension of the character of Lady Teazle is different, while it is superior to that of almost any other artist. At the time of her discovery behind the screen she makes a most decided hit, and her manner in her resolution so soon formed, to tell the truth and denounce the deceitful hypocrite who has lured her to an indiscretion, is one of a degree of intensity and subdued feeling of which few artists are capable. No one could help falling in love with the Charles Surface of George Clarke, the generous, noble hearted, and yet dissipated young man, nor of heartily dispising the brother Joseph of Ed. Tearle, the intriguing, deceitful, hypocritical, smooth-tongued villian. Mrs. Fisher's Maria was also particularly admired. Individually the characters were well sustained, and collectively the company furnished one of the best entertainments that Omaha has seen this winter. The costumes are very elegant, and the make up of the play is a credit to the troupe and stage management.
