MINOR MENTIONS.

The Round Table meets this evening.
Elegant millinery at Bliss'.
The best 25 cent hat in the city at Bliss'.
Joseph Reiter makes suits up in the latest styles at 310 Broadway.
The largest line of linen and lace collars in the latest styles at Bliss'.
The Young Men's Christian Association held a social meeting at the Baptist church last evening.
During Mayor Bowman's absence in Texas, Alderman Shugart presides over the deliberations of the council, and presides well.
The city engineer is having many demands for giving grades to those who are planning to build. The season promises to be a lively one.
The concert and dance given by Berry's juvenile band last evening proved an enjoyable event and was well patronized.
There were 40,000 three cent stamps sold at the postoffice here last month, as compared with 30,000 the month before. Letter writing here is on the increase evidently.
The council made another attempt yesterday afternoon to get a quorum to finish up the equalization of taxes, but the attempt was in vain and adjournment till evening became necessary.
A very neat motto has been placed upon the wall over the pulpit at the Baptist church, the letters being unique and attractive and the handwriting of Miss Warren. It reads "Welcome to our Sabbath Home."
Steps are being taken to organize a company here for the manufacture of the stone of which Patterson and Hoxie are the patentees, and an account of which was recently given in THE BEE. The outlook now is that the enterprise will become one of the leading ones of the city.
Marriage licenses have been issued for the following to pair off: George E. Smith, of Adams county, Illinois, and Miss Polly Jenkins, of Otto, Neb.; William Wadlingfield and Miss Mena Test, both of Council Bluffs; Bernhard Brandt and Miss Mary Green, also of Council Bluffs.
The postoffice here has been instructed to pouch mail matter for Missouri Valley, Iowa, at this point. This will prove an advantage to the residents at that point, and a convenience to the postal clerks. Under the old way there has been some matter to make up in the car that the Missouri Valley mail would sometimes get carried by. Now it will have a pouch of its own filled here.
It looked for a little time yesterday as though the "Blue Jay" and Blythe house saloons were both to be closed. They are both run by Frank Crow and five attachments were served yesterday afternoon, amounting to $137. The officers took charge for a time, but the financial difficulty was soon fixed up again and the music started up.

ANCIENT ORDER OF UNITED WORKMEN, OFFICE OF GRAND MASTER WORKMAN OF IOWA.

By authority of the laws of the order, the supreme master workman Ancient Order United Workmen did on March 1, 1882, suspend the charter of the grand lodge Ancient Order United Workmen of Iowa, thus rendering its acts null and void hereafter. For the purpose of placing the members of local lodges Ancient Order United Workmen and the loyal members of seceded lodges in a position to preserve their rights as members of the order, a provisional grand lodge has been formed by the appointment of the supreme master workman, as follows: W. R. Howland, deputy R. S. recorder; B. F. Murdock, deputy S. receiver and acting grand master workman, grand recorder and grand receiver of Iowa. Now, therefore, by the authority in me vested as deputy supreme master workman Ancient Order United Workmen of the district of Iowa, and acting grand master of Iowa, I forbid the forwarding of official reports or remittances of moneys under the name of the ancient order to any other person than L. O. Howland, deputy supreme recorder and acting grand recorder, at Cedar Falls, Iowa. Further, I warn all bodies heretofore and now working under a charter issued by authority of the Supreme Lodge Ancient Order United Workmen that they will be held responsible for all acts performed since March 1, 1882. Seven or more loyal members of any lodge will be recognized as the lodge proper, and as such should report immediately, and are authorized to elect officers and take possession of the charter and all books, moneys and properties of said lodges.
Given under my hand this 10th day of April, 1882.
W. R. GHANAM,
Deputy S. M. W. and Acting G. M. W. of Iowa.
At a recent meeting of the Pottawatomie lodge, of this city, the following was adopted as expressive of its position in the matter:
Whereas, There is an unfortunate misunderstanding existing between the supreme lodge, A. O. U. W., and the grand lodge of Iowa, which we all regret, yet after careful consideration of the situation and of the interests of the order in Iowa, we deem the right to be with our own grand lodge; therefore,
Resolved, That Pottawatomie lodge, No. 146, A. O. U. W., while disclaiming all sentiments of rebellion or insubordination towards the supreme lodge, believe that our first duty is to the grand lodge of Iowa and that as long as this conflict exists we acknowledge allegiance to the grand lodge of Iowa alone.

SLADE'S SLICKERY.

His Spirits Prove to Be of Flesh and Blood, But They Perform Some Clever Tricks.
The spiritualistic manifestations promised at Dohaney's hall by Dr. Charles Slade, Sunday evening, caused a large audience to gather there. There were a large number of "kickers" about the admission price, which had been raised when it became apparent that there was going to be a crowd anyway. This novel feature in show management was not really relished by those who were called on to pay twice as much as others had been admitted for. There was another disappointment, for Slade, instead of being "assisted by J. Nelson Jefferson and Mary Holmes, two well known mediums," as advertised, there appeared only Slade and a young man whose duty it seemed to be to wait on him. A committee was chosen from the audience, consisting of Messrs. Forman, Morehead, Smith and Paul, to inspect apparatus, do the tying and watch for trickery. Mr. Smith gave fair warning that he would expose Slade, and he especially watched every movement closely. There was some of the work that was so slickly done, however, as to defy the inspection of the committee, and even puzzle Smith. There were some very clever sleight of hand tricks, such as pouring all sorts of liquor out of one pitcher, and some good cabinet tests. Dr. Slade, while tied securely, slipped on and off a coat the front of which was sewed together, tossed musical instruments about, etc. The committee pressed him closely, and after having many of the auditors almost convinced that the spirits themselves must have assisted, Dr. Slade explained several of the tricks, and told how they performed by sleight of hand, knocking the spiritualistic supposition endways. Many of the manifestations were old and such as are performed at almost every show of this nature, but they were quite cleverly done and seemed to interest and amuse the major part of the audience.

THE NEW OPERA HOUSE.

A site has been purchased at the corner of Broadway and Sixth streets for the building of the new opera house so long talked of, and which is to be built by a stock company, the work to commence at once. It is understood that J. J. Brown has perfected arrangements by which a large hotel will be built on lots adjacent to those used for the opera house.

MISSING MONEY.

Dan Davenport's Employer is After It, and Has Caused His Arrest.
The arrest here of Daniel Davenport, on a charge of embezzlement, has caused no little surprise among his acquaintances in this city, of whom he has quite a number, having for about seven months been connected with the street car stables here. From here he went to Boone, and has been there in the employ of Mr. Rannels, buying and dealing in stock. A telegram from there Saturday notified the officers here that he was supposed to be in this city, and if so, to arrest him on the charge of embezzlement. Officer Brooks found him and arrested him, and yesterday the marshal of Boone came here for him. It is claimed that Davenport was given about $250 in cash to go out to buy some stock. He hired a horse at a livery stable, and instead of going out for stock, he disappeared, and the horse and cash disappeared also. Davenport seems to be wholly unconcerned about the final result, and seems satisfied that he can fix up everything all right, when he gets back to Boone. He says the horse is there, and the money also. It seems from his statement that he left the horse at another stable, and deposited the larger portion of the money, and was having a good time on his own account, and that he only started out for a town near there, but falling in with a conductor whom he knew well, he concluded to run through to this city for a day or so, expecting to return at once, but before he had a chance to do so, was arrested. Davenport is well thought of here among those who know him, and his friends hope he will be able to clear himself of the charge.

TECHNICAL TANGLES.

Specimens of How This City's Ordinances Have Been Framed--What Do They Mean?
A volume of city ordinances is not ordinarily very interesting reading matter, and the majority of the public pay very little attention to it. It contains, however, some samples of law-making which show what intricacies can be crowded into the courts, and how blindly the ordinances are in some cases drawn. The ordinances should be in such English that an ordinarily intelligent man could understand what is meant by them. The following specimen is given for the citizens to analyze for themselves: "That any person who shall sell or give away any vicious liquor prohibited by law, and for the sale of which the city of Council Bluffs cannot grant a license, and the sale, giving away or trafficking in which in any way is prohibited by the laws of the state of Iowa to any minor, common drunkard, spendthrift, or other person whatever, is hereby prohibited; and any person or persons so offending by himself, agent or other employ, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction shall be fined in a sum not exceeding one hundred dollars and costs, which said fine shall be collected as now provided by ordinances in cases of misdemeanors." The first part of the above section is particularly worthy of analysis, and its meaning will prove a puzzle to most readers. Another section taken at random is also a fair specimen of how ordinances are blindly worded, and bunglingly put together. It reads: "That this ordinance shall apply to all licenses of said city heretofore granted to any person or persons as herein provided when the quarter for which any license heretofore granted for which the city has received pay shall expire, at which license so granted shall expire and be revoked, and that for the continuance of said

BEFORE THE BAR.

The Offenders who were Yesterday Called Upon for Explanations.
In the superior court yesterday, J. D. Smith, a painter, was fined $5 and costs for disturbing the peace, his total bill being $9.50, for the payment of which he gave security. John Wittigslayer, who was arrested on complaint of his wife for smashing the tea table and decorating her eyes, was fined a like amount for disturbing the peace. Paid. Frank Smith, a plain drunk, was assessed $7. John Glenn, who has been running a shooting gallery on Broadway for some time, was brought in for not having a license. His case was continued to give him time to go before the council, and explain his situation to that body. L. Phillips was complained of for taking orders for a patent chair, without having a peddler's license. He was in ignorance as to the existence of such an ordinance, and on finding that there was one, took out the needed papers, paid up the costs of the action, and was discharged. One colored man, who was lately fined $9, including costs, for disturbing the peace, has been out on parole, promising to pay the bill at an early date. Not having come to time, he was yesterday brought in, and informed that he must give security, pay cash, or work it out. With the shrewdness of an old financier the darkey commenced to calculate. He learned that it would take six days of work on the street at $1.50 a day to pay up the $9, and that if he boarded himself he would be allowed sixty cents more a day, making $2.10 a day. By working on the street he could pay off the $9 quicker than he could earn the money to pay it with. He thought at first that he would go to work on the streets and hire a man to work in his place at the hotel. Then he concluded that he could hire a man to work on the streets at less than the amount allowed by the law, and thus cut down his fine. He had a whole sheet of paper covered over with these calculations, and went out to get security until he could solve the financial problem more satisfactorily. A young man named Butterfield, who objected to being called bad names by a prostitute, and slapped her face in a very enthusiastic manner, was yesterday afternoon called on to pay $9 for the assault. He paid.
