LINE UPON LINE.

Another Manifesto Issued Concerning the Enforcement of Ordinances.

A Doubt Whether the Marshal or Saloonists are Threatened.

At a meeting of the city council on Monday night, the question of enforcing the ordinances came up again, and the following resolution was presented by Alderman Godden, and adopted:

Resolved, That the city marshal be and is hereby instructed to notify all saloon keepers to keep their doors closed on Sundays, under penalty of arrest and fine for violating the resolution and ordinances of the city in relation to the same.

The resolution is so drawn that like the samples from the ordinance given by THE BEE yesterday, it is difficult to determine what is meant: It seems that the council thus threatens "some one" with arrest and fine, and by the reading it seems that the marshal is the one who is to be arrested and fined, unless he notifies the saloon men to keep closed on Sunday.

It seems as if the city marshal should not require any such notice in regard to his duties. The ordinance creating that office says that it shall be his duty "to diligently inquire into and report to the mayor or superior court all violations of the city ordinances and criminal laws of the state, and to prosecute all persons guilty thereof; also, that it is his duty "to cause to be enforced within the city the laws of the state and ordinances of the city in relation to licenses and traffic in intoxicating liquors, the suppression of gambling houses and houses of ill-fame, and vagrancy."

The same ordinance, after thus doubly defining his duties, declares that the marshal shall be subject to a $50 penalty for any neglect or refusal to perform these duties. It would seem to the ordinary citizen that this was enough in the line of instructions, but the council seem to think that it was necessary to reiterate its orders, and at the meeting held March 27, it passed still another resolution, as follows:

Resolved, That the mayor and marshal be and they are hereby instructed to enforce rigidly and impartially the ordinance defining misdemeanor and fixing punishment. Also the ordinance concerning the closing of saloons and tipping houses.

By the wording of this resolution the marshal is informed that he was to look to Mayor Bowman to take the initial action, and as the mayor did not seem disposed to, there was allowed to remain the usual laxity. Now that the mayor has gone to Texas, the matter is left to the marshal, and the council, by its last resolution, designates him as the one upon whom the responsibility rests, and repeats his instructions to see that the ordinance cannot throw the responsibility upon the mayor, nor can he wait for the council to take action, for it has given orders time and again. An officer should not wait for orders of this kind any way, for the ordinance tells him plainly enough what his duties are.

THE BRICK THROWER.

The Burgess who was knocked down by a brick thrown by another boy named Jasper Adams, does not prove to be very badly injured, though the escape from death was a narrow one. Jasper was called before Judge Ayresworth and interrogated. He acknowledged that he threw the brick at young Burgess, and sobbed bitterly. The judge remarked that if the boy died he didn't know what they would have to hang him. He sobbed more than ever. Finally the judge told him that the boy was not dead yet, and he would let him go home, but if the boy died he would have to come back and get hung. The boy promised to return and be hung if his playmate should die, and on this assurance was allowed to go to his mother. The probability is now that Jasper will not need to return to be hung, but it is to be hoped that he will not soon forget the warning given him to sin no more.

COUNCIL CONCERNS.

Sundry Matters Looked After by the City Paternalists. The council has had some difficulty of late getting a quorum with which to go on with the work of equalization. Friday evening there was no quorum, Saturday evening there was no quorum, and Monday afternoon there was another futile attempt to get a quorum. Monday evening there was enough aldermen got together, though, to transact business, there being Alderman Shugart, Newell, Ercher, Wood and Godden. Besides some work in equalizing taxes, there was another business of some public interest. Bills to the amount of $165.20 were allowed, the warrants for the same being drawn from the general fund.

The complaint against Joseph Glen for running a shooting gallery without a license was ordered dismissed on the payment of the costs in the superior court and the taking out of the required license.

The following bids for hauling dirt to 1/2 Main street were received:

J. P. West, per cubic yard, 25 cents cash. John Donahue, per cubic yard, 24 cents cash. Joseph Sandel, per cubic yard, 25 cents cash. W. A. Moore, per cubic yard, 24 cents, general fund.

The city engineer and committee on streets and alleys were authorized to contract with Mr. Mocra. The committee on Indian Creek improvements reported in favor of removing at once the flume between First and Second streets. Concurred in.

The following was adopted in regard to the Dohany saloon controversy: Resolved, That the action of the former council granting a saloon license to Mr. A. C. Dowdy, occupying the building near Dohany's hell, be and the same is hereby rescinded.

This is apparently the procurer of a prosecution if Mr. Dowdy continues to sell without a license. Adjournment was then taken until last evening.

THREE SISTERS DIE WITHIN A HALF HOUR.

PHILADELPHIA LEDGER, April 10:—The lower section of the city was yesterday agitated by news of the sudden death of three estimable women, sisters, which occurred the night before at the residence of Robert H. Winamore, a retired sea captain, residing at No. 329 Warton street. The circumstances of the sad affair, as well as could be gathered last night, owing to the profound grief in which three families are plunged, appear to be as follows: With Mrs. Cynthia Winamore resided his wife, Mrs. Sarah Watson, the widow of a sea captain; a lady companion, a Miss Howell, and a domestic. About half-past 10 o'clock on Saturday night Mrs. Watson, who had been arranging with her at Old Sweden Church in the morning, returned in apparent good health to her room on the third floor front. Mrs. Winamore returned a few moments afterward, and, going to her room on the second floor front, was surprised to hear moans issuing from the room overhead. Running hastily up stairs, she was horrified to find Mrs. Watson in a comatose state and Miss Howell for Dr. McPherson, residing a few doors above, and a message for Dr. Benner, the family physician, residing at Third and Queen streets. Dr. McPherson, arrived in a few minutes and Dr. Benner shortly afterwards, both of whom set to work to administer the proper remedies. Meanwhile the sight of her sister's sufferings had so affected Mrs. Winamore that she had to be removed to her own room on the floor below. The third sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Smith, wife of Captain Samuel R. Smith, residing at 1335 South Fourth street, about a square distant, had been told of the dangerous nature of Mrs. Watson's illness and came running around to the house, which she entered almost out of breath, and, passing rapidly up to Mrs. Watson's room, entered it as the latter was in the agonies of death. The fright and shock to Mrs. Smith were so great that she ran down stairs again, and, entering the chamber of Mrs. Winamore, who had died while she was upstairs at the bedside of Mrs. Watson, she was taken with what appeared to be an apoplectic fit, and died immediately expired. The three deaths occurred within the half hour from 11 1/4 o'clock, and within ten minutes of each other. The three women were large and apparently robust, Mrs. Winamore, the slightest, weighing about 190 pounds; Mrs. Watson about 200, and Mrs. Smith about 235 pounds; Mrs. Winamore was fifty-six, and Mrs. Watson fifty-two. Mrs. Winamore leaves a husband and two married sons, Thomas, the oldest, residing at 236 Federal street, a member of the ship chandler firm of Cain & Winamore, Queen street wharf, and Robert J., residing at 2117 North Thirtieth street, and a member of the ship-broking firm of D. S. Stetson & Co., No. 109 Walnut street. Mrs. Watson had no children, but Mrs. Smith leaves, besides her husband, a young lady daughter, Miss Bessie Smith. The families are all in comfortable circumstances. The three sisters were said to be singularly affectionate to each other, not allowing a day to pass without exchanging visits or sending some little token of remembrance or affection. Mrs. Winamore had been ailing lately, but not to any serious extent, while Mrs. Watson and Mrs. Smith were remarkably healthy, though the latter is said to have had a few years since an attack which at the time was believed to be heart disease.

Dr. Joseph S. Neff, the Coroner's Physician, in presence of Coroner Jarney and Drs. McPherson and Benner, made an autopsy of the bodies yesterday afternoon, in which it was ascertained that Mrs. Watson's death resulted from apoplexy, and Mrs. Smith's and Mrs. Winamore's, so far as the autopsy had progressed, from a similar cause, superinduced by the same circumstances. The three sisters were said to be singularly affectionate to each other, not allowing a day to pass without exchanging visits or sending some little token of remembrance or affection. Mrs. Winamore had been ailing lately, but not to any serious extent, while Mrs. Watson and Mrs. Smith were remarkably healthy, though the latter is said to have had a few years since an attack which at the time was believed to be heart disease.

Last evening the three bodies lay encased in caskets in the parlor of Captain Winamore's residence, opposite the Wharton street M. E. Church, and the family were the recipients of many messages of condolence and sympathy from neighbors and friends.
