ALLEGED FORGERY

The Troubles of a Witness in Obtaining His Fees.

A short time age Mr. James Moran was a witness in some case in the district court, and in due course of time presented his certificate at the county clerk's office to have the sum due him allowed by the county commissioners. He called several times, and the matter not yet having been acted upon was told to come again. Finally he as well as the tenant. The former transferred, or assigned the amount cannot conceal his disgust, the latter to Barney Shannon, who advanced his derision. The land commission his calls, and he too grew tired and next fifty years adjudicate the many accused the county clerk of trying to cases brought before them. Moreover withhold the money from him, the expense involved would be more although the fact was, the clerk was than the land is worth. Gladstone's in Denver and his deputies assured land act is valuable only in so far as him that they alone were handling the that it is a confession of his weakness affairs in the office. The claim was to grapple with a question which he allowed on Saturday and the warrant has not the power nor the willingness duly drawn.

THE IRISH QUESTION.

Fallure of the Acts of Relief Devised lby Mr. Gladstone.

To the Editor of the Sec. It is not my intention to abuse the couraging, and you seem to appreciate the sentiments of that body, particularly in its criticism of a system of land tenure, "which has been repudiated by every other country but Great Britain." But you say in the next sentence: "It is unfortunate that in the same breath such hostility 1914 Douglas street. Friends invited. is expressed to the first British government which has ever honestly sought to reform the land laws." In a discussion of the present Irish crisis, there must necessarily be a great divergence of opinion, even between the Irish and those who are desirous 2 50(25 00.

> last land act, are the principal, and in-deed the only efforts Gladstone has ever put forth towards the amelioration of Ireland's destitute condition. The first two were an absolute necessity, forced upon the administration of Mr. Gladstone by a combination of circumstances over which he had no control. They were issues which, like Bancho's ghost, "would not down." Four-fifths of the Irish people were Catholic, and yet they were compelled to support a church by direct maintain, and whose government was oppressive. The world pointed its finger of scorn upon the infamous principle which fostered the 'Irish church." Emphatic agita-tion at home and uncomplimentary ing the previous tory administration. Hence Gladstone was forced to face the music when he came into power. Moreover, the Fenian troubles of 1866 and 1867, and a dread of their recurrence, hastened the abolition of the church, as well as the passage of the 1871 land act. The ungrateful Irish therefore were not in the least thankful for these liberal (?) concessions. But subsequent events proved that the land act of 1871 was more than a farce-it was a nullity. It did not remove a single hardship—it did not benefit a single individual. Rackant farmers, that hope must have been rudely dissipated in 1879, when fam-ine, lean and gaunt, made his appear-ance in that levely but misgoverned stone's latest and greatest act. The readers of THE BEE know that the land league was the product of certain factors which preceded it, among which were the threatened famine I have mentioned, and the system of landlordism which took from the people all that their industry produced and then left them to starve. Michael Davitt pronounced Irish rent an "immoral tax." He and his colleagues exhorted the people to "hold go into their desolate cabins to starve. That unselfish man-the greatest man of his race, that same Davitt said here before an Omaha audience that it was not the munificient donations sent out from America in 1879 which saved the people of Ireland from starvation. Liberal as they were, and characteristic of the great philanthropic heart of America, they were but a "drop in the bucket." The people held the harvest and ate it. The landlords got none of it. Passive resistance became the weapon in the hands of an other-wise helpless people, and again Trish grievances came to the ears of the British parliament. The question must come up. The landlords looked with awe upon "Hold the harvest," and "Rent is an immoral tax." They insisted that the commons take the matter in hand. The commons did. It was compelled to do so. But did Gladstone contemplate abolishing a system, "which has been repudiated by every other country but Great Britain?" Not at all. His land act seeks to perpetuate the infamous system. But it is a failure received from the standpoint of the landlord him the money, of which he said he and their sub-commissions, working was in pressing need. was in pressing need.

And now we come down to Glad

Then Mr. Shannon began making genius can devise, could not in the to settle. Tuesday Moran appeared again and stated that he would take the without referring to Gladstone's great-warrant, as Barney had got tired of waiting and bothered him until he had gone and raised the amount for him. He was recalcitrant disposition of the Irish, only he put the coercion act in operation get it on a written order from Mr. to force the land pill down the Shannon, and after a short absence he came back with what was purported to be an order and was written in pencil, when he was given his money. Yesterday Mr. Shannon came has only to be "reasonably suspected" has only to be "reasonably suspected" so that he may be immured in prison for an unlimited period, without trial, without cause. Certainly if anything were wanting to make Irish grateful, it is found in this beneficent act.

The funeral was conducted under the auspices of the Daughters of the taxation, whose tenets they did not Tabernacle and the Maids and Pages' Tent, two orders closely connected with the Knights of Tabor, a colored organization somewhat like the Knights of Pythias. The Tabernacle includes the mature female relations of the Knights and the Tent their children, criticism from abroad were heard dur- the tormer being entitled to $600 on their death and each mem-ber of the Tent to funeral expenses. The ceremonies were conducted by Sir W. H. Wallace, chief grand drill master of the Temple and Tabernacle and deputy grand mentor of the National Temple, Knights of Tabor. A good representation of the Daughters turned out, and about thirty Maids and Pages, representing the Tent. The little girls were dressed in white, with appropriate re-galia, and as they marched behind the elegant white hearse which bore the rents, evictions, emigration and want were just as rife as formerly. The Irish, always suspicious of England's good intentions, received Gladstone's the streets to the church on the coreffort at redress passively and indif- ner of Eighteenth and Webster, where ferently. in the form prescribed. Sir Wallace comes to Omaha from Gallatin, Mo., for the purpose of re-viving these orders in this city where they were established once before, but eventually became disorganized. He came March 27th, and since his arrival has contemplated locating here if Mrs. Wallace, whom he expects here, should be equally pleased with the place.

The Maids and Pages Tent was organized for the purpose of uplifting the colored race by organizing the children and drawing off their attention from the usual frivolties of life. The National Temple, which includes the leagues exhorted the people to "hold rest in a manner, was organized in the harvest"—that is, not to do as 1852, languished in obscurity during their fathers had done in '46 and '47, the rebellion, and in 1866 was repay the last farthing of rent, and then vived, and includes now 10,000 Sir Knights in the United States. Their annual meeting is called a Congress, and meets this year at Little Rock, Ark. Sir Wallace expresses his intention of having the next Congress held in Omaha. He is in a position to secure this probably as he occupies the second highest position in the Temple. He is a very fine looking gentleman and a very pleasant and intelligent man, who will prove a valuable addition to the members of his race now in this city.

Parties in need of Ranges will do well to call on John H. Erck, the Hardware and Stove Merchant, No. 615 and 617 16th street, who is sole agent for the Celebrated Rubel's Wrought Iron Range. Considered the most complete in use. Hotels and boarding houses would do well to examine them before purchasing. He has also just received a car load of the best makes in Cook Stoves which he is selling at remarkably low figures. Also a car load of Lyman's best Locked Barb Fence Wire, which he is offering at the lowest market prices. Mr. Erck also carries a full and complete stock of Carpenters' Tools and Shelf Hardware, on which he prides himself on giving rock bottom figures. It will pay you to call on this enterprising firm before pur-chasing in any of the above mentioned goods. apr17-e&meod1w
