Comprising the Leavings of a Left Season With a Few Pickings from Here and There Around the City.

The week has been as quiet and uninteresting in a social sense as a mid E. Crother to Miss Cora B. Clark. summer week usually is. The clubs have closed and hall owners and livery keepers are suffering from the spring fever and the blues while the young with a slender purse and extravaman with a slender purse and extravagant tastes is correspondingly jubilant. He will remain in this state until the ailor's bill for his spring suit puts in an appearance. Speaking about suits there is some talk of the possible application. man with a slender purse and extravathere is some talk of the possible appearance of knee breeches on several pair of limbs this spring owing to the announcement that these medeiaval garments have already become promitions the several New York drawing. there is some talk of the possible apnent in several New York drawing rooms. In Omaha, if worn at all, they will be worn by the largest calves. When there is nothing else to do, zessip reignsaupreme. Emerson says that all conversation is at an end when we have discharged ourselves of a dozen personalities, domestic or imported. This may be the case in Boston, but doesn't hold good in Omaha. A dozen personalities wouldn't make a three minutes conversation in an Omaha seance. It is rumored that a bald headed Douglas rumored that a bald headed Douglas street merchant is matrimonially inclined, and that his courage has passed the sticking point. The niece of a railroad official is mentioned in the same connection. Five young lawyers all of whom consider themselves prominent, admit the soft imeachment of impending marriage. The county judge smiles all over as he studies plans for his new residence near Hanscom park, and thinks of the approach of fall. Several other little rumors of a corresponding nature are whispered around town.

The ladies of Trinity cathedral have finally decided upon giving "The Miseltoe Bough" some time during the summer. The pantomine will be preceded or succeeded by a "Broom Drill," in which thirty young ladies will participate. In order to secure the necessary precision. Lt. M. C. Foote, of Ft. Omaha, has volunteered his services as drill master, and rehearsals will shortly begin in earn-

The surprise reception given on Monday evening to J. T. Clark, and which has been reported heretofore, was a genuine testimonial to the regard in which this valuable railroad official and genial gentleman is held in this community. Many regrets are heard over his approaching departure from this city. It is now known that Mr. Fred Nash, his private secretary, who counts his friends in Omaha by the score, will accompany him to his new field of labor in Milwaukee. Mr. Nash will be much missed among his associates.

The wedding cards of Col. J. J. Dickey, which put in an appearance on Saturday, occasioned some surprise except among his intimate friends, to whom his engagement had been known for some time. Miss Emresa Jordan is well known in Omaha society, having spent a portion of last fall in this city. The ceremony occurs on Tuesday afternoon, April 25th, at four o'clock, in the Union M. E. church, corner of Lucas and Garrison avenue, St. Louis, and a reception will follow at the house of the bride's parents, 1808 Grand street, from five to seven o'clock of the same day. Considerable interest in the Colonel's new relation is being felt in the Union Pacific headquarters, which will probably manifest itself very substantially on the wedding day.

Many in Omaha will remember Miss visit to the United States, and who was subsequently appointed by Jackson to a position in the treasury, which he held for li.e. Social Notes.

Ten years ago the 12th of this month Mr. and Mrs. David Fouts pitched their tent at Blue Springs and resided there uninterruptedly since. The anciversary was pleasantly celebrated at their home, where a most of the old settlers gathered to spend the evening and revive the trials of early days. The ladies of the Methodist church of The ladies of the Methodist charge of Plattsmouth surprised their pastor, Rev. S. P. Wilson, and his wife on the evening of the 14th, the twelfth anniversary of the transparence. Every available room in substantial gifts were received.

Social life at Plattsmouth was enlivened on the 14th by two christenings and a wedding, all at the residence of Mrs. Oliyer. Frederick Ramsey and Miss Alice Ramsey were united by that prince of knotty fellows, Rev. H. B. Burgess, The ceremony was very appropriately preceded by the baptism of the infant son of William Oliver, and the daughter of Ed. Oliver. Few young married people are thus blessed with a view of the future as its petals unfold to the admiring gaze and feigned astonishment of the domestic circle. A wink to the wise is sufficient.
