reaching out his trunk just touched her and drew it back again, all the time looking at her in a most interested and loving manner. It was evidently a case of love at first sight. Baby was naturally thrown into a flutter of excitement, but she managed to keep up a decent appearance of coyness. She finally consented, however, to shake trunks with her admirer, and after a while allowed herself to be careased, even going so far as to return her lover's endearments. The other female elephants present were scandalized, and wound their trunks together, as if saying: "Oh, the bold

How an Alligator Eats. Florida Letter.

An alligator's throat is an animated sewer. Everything which lodges in his open mouth goes down. He is a lary dog, and instead of hunting for something to eat, he lets his victims hunt for him. That is, he lies with his great mouth open apparently dead like the 'poisum. Soon a bug crawls into it, then a fly, then several gnats and a colony of mosquitoes. The alligator doesn't close his mouth yet. He is waiting for a whole drove of things, He does his eating by wholesale. A little later a lizard will cool himself under the shade of the upper jaw Then a few frogs will hop up to catch the mosquitoes. Then more mos quitoes and gnats light on the frogs Finally a whole village of insects and reptiles settle down for an afternoor picnic. Then all at once there is an earthquake. The big jaw falls, the aligatos slyly blinks one eye, gulps
