AGRICULTURE.

State Items. A few hundred trees were set out in Columbus on Arbor day.

Farm hands now command from $17 to $20 per month in Johnson county.

Iowa stockmen are foraging for cattle and hogs in Pawnee county.

There will be a large acreage of corn planted in Webster county this spring.

Prof. Pyle has donated 2,000 young trees to the Fullerton university campus.

Ahundred sixty trees were planted in the university grounds at Lincoln on Arbor day.

Rich old grass is the most natural and best of all cattle foods for producing milk of good quality.

Corn raising and stock feeding will largely take the attention of the Polk county farmer hereafter.

Small grain in Hall county is growing at a lively rate, and farmers are full of hope and confidence.

Saunder county farmers will go into corn raising heavily this year. Stock and corn is the motto.

An unknown county paper announces that, with very tough buds and the Lord on our side, the fruit crop will be good.

Tomcham claims to be a good corn and hog market. Hogs sold there last week for an even $8 per cwt.

John Deer, of Johnson county, has planted 100 acres of corn, John Sherman, of the same county, will plant 185 acres.

The peach crop of Johnson county was not injured by the recent cold weather. Cherries promise a large crop.

More tree planting is being done in Wayne county the present year than has been done in the past five years together.

John Reuter, of Table Rock precinct, the largest farmer in P-wince county, is putting in 600 acres of corn this spring.

A great many fruit, forest and ornamental trees are being planted by owners of property in Red Cloud the present spring.

A large amount of sorghum will be planted in Webster county this season. Several of the best farmers will cultivate from 25 to 40 acres.

Arbor day was religiously observed by the Catholics of Supton. Father Jeannette and members of his flock set out 500 trees in the cemetery.

The fall wheat in Nemaha county is looking finely. The farmers all say they never before had such fine prospects for a big wheat crop as they have this season.

Thos. Turner, of Dodge county, will shortly bring from California 15,000 sheep which he has purchased. Dodge is one of the best sheep counties in the state.

The farmers of Merrick county all appear happy over crop prospects. Rainy have been plenty, the weather has been favorable, and small grain is about all in.

The 600 head of fat cattle recently shipped from Aurora, Hamilton county, netted $50,700. The county is rapidly gaining a prominent position as a stock country.

The farmers of Dakota county are taking great pains to secure seed corn that will be sure to grow. Last year a number of them had to plant their corn a second time.

Arbor day passed off quietly in Dak to City. There were several trees planted, though no serious accidents are reported up to date. That is, no man worked hard enough to hurt himself.—Argus.

Plattsmouth can become one of the finest looking towns in the west by planting and caring for an abundance of shade fruit and ornamental trees and by fitting up the sidewalks and fences to suit.

Holt & Hall, of Osceola, Iowa, are negotiating to establish twenty or more creameries in Nebraska. They have already started in Crete, Beatrice and Seward. The firm has a chain of creameries in Southern Iowa.

A prominent Custer county cattle man reports the cattle on the Loup ranging doing finely, and that the cry about shortage in calves is hardly to be relied upon. The crop this year promises to exceed expectations.

One philosopher advises people not to burn the grass in Nebraska if we want more rain. Common necessity tea has that we must burn the old grass if we would use the country for stock raising and grazing.

The Wahoo Grain and Stock company paid out last Monday, the sum of $2,348.55 for hogs and corn. A high as $2.25 per hundred was paid for hogs that day. This is pretty good for one day and shows that the people come to Wahoo with their produce knowing that they can a ways find a good market.—Times.

The Central City Courier says: 'Men who have been engaged in a deep culture in many parts of the United States, and who have at last settled permanently in Merrick county and engaged in stock raising, inform us that shep thrive better here than anywhere else, and that they enjoy far greater freedom from disease than in any other state.'

A gentleman who has lately traveled over Colfax and Butler counties says that it is surprising to behold the amount of fencing that has been, and is being, done. The face of the country has been changed a great deal thereby, and former roads have been thrown along section lines and in due time there will be no need of a herd law.—(Columbus Democrat.

The West Point Republican is surprised with the evidence of thrift in eastern Cumming county. Many new settlers have lately located in this part of the county and opened out fine farms. The eastern part of this county is settled mainly by Scandinavians, and the comfortable homes they have reared for themselves bear testimony to the industry and enterprise of those people. Crop prospects are excellent and the farmers jubilant in consequence.

Farmers are being cautioned against the sleek gentleman who is circulating around in Washington county as present. Sales are of every day occurrence and prices paid would have been thought extravagant only one year ago, and still the demand increases. As a case in proof of this we cite the following sale recently made in Fontenelle: Mr. Edwards, a brother-in-law of Wm. Hamilton, recently sold a quarter section farm adjoining that of the latter, without buildings and only fifty acres under plough, for $4,000.—(Blair Pilot.

An Iowa farmer named Ruggles, burns corn stalks in preference to wood or coal, though he has an abundance of the last named article. He ties the stalks up in bundles of about forty pounds each, and five of them will keep a large room warm all day. He says, 'Why, I'd rather burn corn stalks than out maple wood within sight of the house, and wonders why folks out on the frontier who have fifty acres of corn stalks make so much fuss about fuel.'

When a tree is transplanted one of the most important things to be remembered and practiced is the thorough fringing of the soil about its roots. It is best to use a post rammer so as to make the firm mold firm and compact around the roots, and to prevent any air passages among them. By this system every small rootlet is brought into immediate contact with the fresh earth, and consequently is induced to start into immediate growth as soon as the buds begin working, or before.

"WINE OF CARDUI" four times a day makes a happy household.

The Haunted House.

St. Louis Republican. Dr. Thomas O'Reilly was one of the large crowd that gathered at the corner of Washington avenue and Eighth street when the box and the mysterious skeleton were examined, and as the doctor formerly lived on the site, it was thought he might explain the appearance of the ghostly reminiscence. He was approached on the subject, but he said he knew nothing of the matter. He did not even have a theory, but during the conversation a reporter, working with him he related a story which the public would hardly believe came from so practical and hard-headed a man.

"When I first purchased that property there was an old house on the top of the hill, about seven or eight feet above the spot where the bones were found. Nobody lived in it, and I remember well how the boys passing there used to stare at it. That's about thirty five years ago, and the house was said to be haunted. Now I don't know whether the old house was haunted or not, but I lived next to it for many years, and it's of something that was heard for a long time in my house that I want to tell you. I never paid any attention to the matter at first, but before much time had elapsed my attention was

AROUSED TO AN INTENSE DEGREE. At all hours, but especially in the early hours of the evening, distinct raps could be heard on all the wood-work of the house. The rapping was loud and did not come from any one spot, but from every part of the room; from beneath the floor, from under the table, on the panelling, the wainscoting, the sides of the room and the ceiling. I can't tell you what caused the wrapping. There was no one in the house at this period except myself and wife, and the taps came at all hours, in all places, not for one night or one day, but continually for two or three years. I never was superstitious and I grew indifferent to the matter after the first experience, but my wife was of a very sensitive nature and these demonstrations had a peculiar effect on her. What connection there was between the haunted house and this rapping I cannot say, but there may have been some. I never heard what it was that gave the house the name of being haunted. One evening Henry Shaw paid us a visit and stayed to have tea with us. After the meal was finished we were alone in the sitting-room talking, my wife being in another room. Suddenly from the wall came the sound of

TWO LOUD, DISTINCT TAPS, given in quick succession. "What's that?" exclaimed Mr. Shaw excitedly.

"Then from all parts of the room the sound of rapping came, in loud, distinct taps. I sat on the wall, concentrated on the table, near which we were sitting. For some time previous I paid a good deal of attention to the matter of spiritual phenomena, and I had attended a number of spiritualistic seances, and knew the modus operandi of the way in which messages were obtained. So I said to Shaw: 'Here, let's make a test of this thing. You sit on one side of the table, I'll sit on the other, and we'll hold it down with our hands.' He did as I told him to do and I got an alphabet which I had in the house and laid it on the table. I explained to Mr. Shaw that the messages were received by placing a finger on the letters of the words meant to be conveyed, and when the finger reached the letter which was intended one rap would be given. But Henry Shaw held it down with a very startled face. 'Well, who the d— is it?' said he, inquiringly. A chorus of raps answered him. Taking it as an indication that he should sit down and receive another message, he ran his fingers along the alphabet again. The result was the following letters were given, when it reached on the wall exclaimed Mr. Shaw: 'Why it's poor Lindell; I was one of his pall-bearers only a few weeks ago.' A storm of raps expressed a negative. He ran his fingers over the alphabet again until we had the letters 'j e s s e' written. 'It's Jesse Lindell,' said Shaw. 'He's been dead a long time. There was a cessation of raps, then, and we heard none for a long time after that. But Henry Shaw held it always remember that evening.'

The doctor said he was not a spiritualist, by any means. There was something in it, of course, but what it was he couldn't say. It might be electricity; it might be a new force in nature. Whatever it was, the rapping was done by no mortal hand or any material substance. Probably time would reveal the secret of it.

Trouble Saved. It is a remarkable fact that Thomas' Electric Oil is good for internal as well as external use. For diseases of the lungs and throat, and for rheumatism, neuralgia, crick in the back, wounds and sores, it is the best known remedy, and much trouble is saved by having it always on hand. 20 ct.
