THE INDIAN OUTRAGES.

Dr. McLean's Recent Observations in New Mexico.

His Idea of How a Troublesome Problem May be Solved.

St. Louis Republican May 6.

Dr. J. H. McLean arrived in the city yesterday from a trip to New Mexico, where he spent ten days in traveling over the country and in investigating the Indian situation. In conversation with a Republican reporter, he said the object of his trip was to see for himself whether the reports about the mining possibilities in New Mexico were true.

"Did you find them so?" asked the reporter.

"Yes. There are plenty of chances to make money in mining out there—plenty of them. But what interested me as much as anything, was the condition of Indian affairs out there. I tell you, sir, the people here and at Washington evidently do not understand the state of affairs, or they would talk and act differently. The people out there think that these Indian outbreaks are outbreaks which might be prevented if the proper course was taken by the government.

They go about in bands of five or six.

Fifty of them will start out, and divide up in small bands and kill indiscriminately. The nature of the country gives them opportunities that the troops do not have. It is covered with boulders and narrow canyons. The Indians conceal themselves behind the boulders with their rifles at a rest, and pick off stage drivers, passengers, miners and troops at will, without danger of being seen. People are shot down without knowing where the shot comes from. Wagons or stage can only pass through these canyons and the Indians lie in wait among the boulders, where no man can go unless he is on foot.

They squat themselves down there, eat their food and wait for human game to come along."

"What are decidedly sharp characteristics of the Indians?"

"They are decidedly sharp and shrewd, much sharper than any Indian I have ever seen. I tell you an incident that will illustrate this: A stage coach with four passengers was going along a canyon, bound for Silver City, when a party of Indians concealed among the boulders fired upon it, killing the driver and two of the passengers. The other two could not see the Indians, but knew of course from which direction the balls came.

They quickly slipped out of the opposite side of the coach and made their way up the mountain among the boulders, where they concealed themselves.

One of them moved one of the boulders and it rolled down the mountain.

The Indians saw this, followed the track of the stone, came upon the white men before the latter were aware of it and shot them down. It is not the old Indians who make all the trouble, for, as a rule, they stay on the reservations. It is the young and turbulent spirits. They have sworn deadly hatred toward the whites.

They see the whites coming in there and working and making money.

THIS EXCITES THEIR HATED.

They won't work and they want to kill all who do. I had a talk with Gov.

Sheldon while there, and he said that instead of sending troops after the Indians, the government should have plenty of troops there to keep the Indians on the reservations. If they are off it means that they contemplate mischievous. They should be made to understand that they must remain on the reservation or be shot if they come off."

"What do the people there think of the efforts of the government to keep the Indians in subjection?"

"They don't think much of it, except that sending troops after them is nonsense. If you could see the country you would think that a man was a jackass who would go after the Indians who were on the war-path. The government sends out scouting parties,

Mme. Leone was borne to the dressing room followed by several physicians from the audience. Just before the performance closed she made her appearance upon her horse and made the circuit of the ring, amidst vociferous applause. Last night she appeared as usual, the only indication of her day's mishap being a slight lameness, the result of a bruise on the knee.

The other accident occurred to Charles Lanahan, the man who has charge of the monkeys which ride around the ring on ponies. Yesterday afternoon there was brought out a large African monkey known as Jocko, whose reputation for viciousness has been increased during the past ten months by the fact that he killed his former keeper, an Italian, in New York City, tearing his jugular vein open with teeth in a fit of rage and causing him to bleed to death. He is kept in a cage with a lot of other monkeys, called "Murderer's row," and yesterday afternoon while being shifted from this cage, he flew at Lanahan and caught him by the left hand, tearing off his forefinger as completely as if it had been amputated with a knife. Had it not been for several other keepers, who ran to Lanahan's rescue, it is believed the big monkey would have killed him.

The Beer Industry.

New York Evening Post.

There is probably no branch of industry which can present a more startling picture of increase of production than the manufacture of beer in this country. In 1863 only 1,765,827 barrels of beer were made in the United States. In 1881 the product amounted to 14,173,877 barrels, and increase of 679 per cent. Of the whole quantity made in the country in the year 1880, New York produced 33.97 per cent, Ohio 9.20 per cent, and Wisconsin 6.33 per cent, so that these three states represent about one-half of the aggregate production of the country. Of the large cities of the United States, the city of New
