STROMSBURG.

The Crops—Business Building—Political—Judicial.
Correspondence of the Bee.

STROMSBURG, Neb., May 17.—The farmers are about through planting corn. A greater amount of corn by one-half has been planted this season than ever before. The prospect for small grains never was better. The prairie squirrels are more numerous than they have been for several years and are doing considerable damage to corn in certain localities, but there will be a good stand of corn. Farmers generally feel jubilant and confident of raising fair crops and realizing good prices.

There are more solid improvements going on throughout the country than ever before. Stromsburg continues to boom. Among the latest enterprises started is another lumber yard by Nance & Carlson; the first lot of lumber was received last evening. The firm consists of Mr. Albert Nance, our general station agent, a gentleman who has made hosts of friends while discharging his duty as agent for the railroad company; Mr. Andrew Carlson has been a partner in the firm of Dale, Carlson & Co., hardware merchant of this place. He is a young man, one of the first settlers of our town and is known throughout the county as a straightforward and thorough business man, and no doubt will be successful in the hardware business, which the new firm justly deserves.

The location of a grist mill at this place is now a settled fact, and by the first day of October Stromsburg will have a first-class flouring mill in operation with two run of burrs, costing not less than $7,000. This will supply a long-felt want for the farmers of our county and will be appreciated by them.

Our building boom still continues and is greatly retarded for want of mechanics to push the work forward. Mr. J. Bostome, our brick maker, is running a full set of hands and doing his utmost to supply his increasing trade; he is now manufacturing six thousand brick per day, and still it seems he is unable to supply the demand, for we notice Mr. John Olson is now placing the machinery on the ground for another brick yard south of the depot. Mr. Olson is a practical man and understands his business. He will undoubtedly get his portion of the trade.

Stromsburg wants more dwelling houses. Every available house is occupied and in many cases we find two families occupying one house. New faces can be seen on our streets daily, looking up locations, and they very generally conclude that our town and surrounding country is second to none they have found in their travels.

The political pot is beginning to boil and the troubled waters are showing signs of commotion. Our monopoly henchmen are fortifying themselves, preparatory to the coming conflict. They fear the wrath of the people and know their conduct in the past will not bear a careful investigation. The friends of Lieutenant-Governor Carns, (what few he has here) are very uneasy and no doubt have fearful forebodings for the safety of the reputation of their sage that swings the gavel in the senate chamber at the state capital.

Judge Post is now dispensing justice at our county seat. A number of cases are now being tried wherein the state of Nebraska is plaintiff and somebody that sells Slocumb water is defendant. Most of them plead guilty and were fined in sums varying from $100 to $150, accordingly as it seemed best in the judgment of the court.

HAWKEYE.

Mr. O. C. Mitchell, Bluffton, Ind., says: St. Jacobs Oil does all that it is recommended for. It is the best remedy for severe pains that has ever been put upon the market.

I do not know where a finer site for a summer resort could be selected. Here is a large valley, intersected by purling brooks of the coolest and purest water. The sight of these pure streams is a rest for the eyes, when one has been stopping for a time amid the drifting sands of the American Sahara. In the streets are grand pines—the Ponderosa, with massive trunks of drooping branches—and for the attractiveness of the place it is to be hoped they will be spared wherever they stand, either in lawn or street. The town could show commendable enterprise in laying out their streets and lining them with trees. These are fostered by irrigation and little streams of pure water on their mission all over the town.

But my pen is powerless to depict the grandeur of this scene which hems in this summer paradise. On one side a massive mountain with rough granite sides, rises thousands of feet. Nature has covered the rough deformity with a mantle of evergreens. Look down the valley, and snow peaks hem you in. At the south the massive peaks of Harvard, Princeton, Yale, snow-crowned, grand in their imposing majesty, look down upon you. The whole valley is hemmed in with mountains, and from their cool summit come the gentle breezes, to temper the heated air. Six miles from here are the Hot Sulphur springs, a resort for invalids. A fine road leads out to it, and a comfortable hotel awaits the invalid.

If there is a more pleasant resort for tired men and women I have never seen it. Here is an exhaustless field for exploration. Beyond are mines which open their vast treasures, and in the mountains are the grandest views, the coolest resorts, and the most varying wonders of this strange mountain land. The time is not far distant when the residents of the prairie states will leave the hot blasts of summer for these cool retreats, and for a time forget the cares of life, in communing with this strange scenery. Of course for steady fare and permanent homes there is nothing like our rich prairies, but if you want a change, if you want to escape care, and find life for a while among these eternal fastnesses. The city is building up rapidly. I am enjoying both the courtesy and hospitality of C. S. Hill, who represents the town real estate interests here. The town in its early history was noted for its roughness, but this primitive stage has passed away. One of the large religious bodies is now in session here and they receive warm welcome. Churches are patronized, and the public school rejoices in a fine structure and able teachers. The city is now, but as its many advantages unfold, we predict for it a solid prosperity. And let me say to your readers, if you want to see the most and the grandest scenery in the shortest space, and at the least expense, go from Pueblo to Buena Vista. G. S. HARRISON.

Mr. James A. Conlan, Librarian of the Union Catholic Library, Chicago, Ill., is the latest man who has been made happy through the use of this valuable liniment. The following is Mr. Conlan's incensement:
UNION CATHOLIC LIBRARY ASSOCIATION, 204 DEARBORN ST., CHICAGO, Sept. 16, 1880.
I wish to add my testimony to the merits of St. Jacobs Oil as a cure for rheumatism. One bottle has cured me of this troublesome disease, which gave me a great deal of bother for a long time; but thanks to the remedy I am cured. This statement is uncolored by any one in its interest.
JAMES A. CONLAN, Librarian.
