The wives, daughters and sisters of the members of St. George's society, of Omaha, are requested to meet at the residence of Henry Lynde, 1216 Capital avenue, on Wednesday, May 24th, at 2 p. m., for the purpose of organizing a society that shall be auxiliary to the St. George. Mrs. M. H. Carlton.

THE VICE-CONSULATE.

The Meeting of Swedish Citizens Saturday Night.

They are Dissatisfied With the Action of Their Minister at Washington.

For some time past there has been considerable dissatisfaction among the Swedish citizens of Omaha by reason of the departure of Mr. N. N. Vindquest, their consul, from this city and state, as there were a large number of persons waiting to transact business which they could only do through the medium of that official.

After a great deal of talk among the people, it was agreed to call a meeting which was done and the same held at the office of Judge E. M. Stenberg, on Tenth street. This meeting was attended by hundreds, and the resolutions adopted at that time were published in this issue.

A committee of five was then appointed to correspond with the minister at Washington, inquiring if the office was deemed vacant and asking if they could make a nomination of some prominent and popular man to fill the vacancy. No reply was received in several weeks' time, so the chairman of the committee, Mr. Gustave Andreen, wrote to the minister at Washington asking at least an answer to their communication, and when no reply came, after another long delay, wrote Senator Saunders, asking him as a very dear minister and ascertain how matters stood, and to inform him as to the responsibility and standing of the committee which had written him. A reply was received to this that he would be prepared in two or three weeks to communicate with the committee.

Last week Mr. Andreen received a letter stating that Mr. Vindquest had resigned, and that the appointment of his successor would be made by the minister of foreign affairs, at Stockholm, but that the nomination was left to the minister at Washington, and he had proposed the name of John Johnson, Esq., who had been recommended by Mr. Vindquest.

On the receipt of this there appeared to be no much dissatisfaction, not only on account of the fact that the committee had received, but at the man named for the place, that the committee telegraphed the minister that if he would wait a little while they would show good reason why Johnson was not a proper man to fill the place, and asked for an answer by telegraph. None was received, however, and meantime the meeting of Saturday night was called to express the feelings of the Swedish residents in regard to the matter.

On Friday a letter was received in answer to the dispatch saying that the reasons urged against Johnson's appointment were not good, but that if there were any good reasons to be presented he would allow the committee two weeks to make them good. This changed the object of the meeting, and the result was that on Saturday evening, about one hundred persons being present, quite a discussion arose as to Johnson's qualifications. The dissatisfaction seemed to be not so much against Johnson personally, but because he had no more to work, as he did without the recommendation of the citizens. A vote as to the proposition of those present who favored him showed not a single one in his favor.

A committee of twenty was appointed, in addition to the committee of five previously named, to make such a presentation of the case as could be done in the time allotted them to the minister. It may be well to add that the dissenters include our most prominent and respected Swedish citizens, and that it would seem fitting that the Swedish minister should give some weight to their wishes in the matter.

Hon. W. H. Lawton left yesterday for Tekamah, Logan and vicinity, to be absent several days. Mrs. James H. Kyner is expected home this week from Ohio, where she has been on a visit to her home. The first yesterday rippled 20,000 sweet potato plants which our enterprising gardeners had growing nicely. This is the second loss they have sustained in this way, this spring. The Union Sunday school, which by the way is booming, have in preparation a concert to be given next month. Use Reddin's Russia Salve in the house and use Reddin's Russia Salve in the stable. Try it.

A NOBLE LIFE AND ITS LESSON.

Discourse by Rev. William J. Harsha to the Young Men Commemorative of the late A. L. Robison.

A Strong and Lovely Character.

There was a large attendance at the Presbyterian church Monday evening where, according to announcement, the pastor, Rev. Wm. J. Harsha, preached a commemorative sermon upon the late A. L. Robison, for a number of years prominently identified with the church and its interests. The platform was beautifully decorated with flowers, the gifts of loving friends of Mr. Robison. Vases adorned each side of the desk, and an exquisite floral cross depended from the front of the pulpit. The selections rendered by the double quartette choir bore special reference to the occasion.

The preacher took for his text Mark XIII, 33 "Take ye heed, watch and pray, for ye know not when the time is." In opening his discourse, Mr. Harsha said that the duty of speaking on the subject was to him a most trying one. For ten years past Mr. Robison had been most intimately associated with him as a very dear friend—more even than a brother. Their relations had been of the tenderest character in college, in youth and in manhood, and his heart was overburdened as it sought to realize that death had so suddenly and unexpectedly severed the cord which for so many years had bound them together. On this account he would make no attempt to preach a memorial sermon for he felt that at the present time he could not do so. He only proposed to call the attention of the young men present to some of the chief characteristics of Mr. Robison's life as a young man and to point to the lessons which such a life inculcated. And first he was a true friend and a believer in friendship.

The preacher pointed out the marks of a genuine friend, its affection, its forbearance, its willingness to abide and to receive resulting reproach, its unselfishness. More than all he urged that it ought to have its foundation upon the solid base of a Christian character. Such a friendship will weather every storm; it is the friendship of adversity as well as prosperity, of sorrow as well as of joy, rooted firmly in the past, blossoming in the present and sending its strong branches into eternity itself. A second trait of Mr. Robison's character known by all who had the most passing acquaintance with him, was his truthfulness. He scorned a lie. He would sooner have gone through any amount of physical suffering than to blacken his soul by deceit and he had a thorough contempt for falsehood in thought, word or action. He was naturally truthful, and from this his earnest search after truth. He was open to conviction and even ready to acknowledge a mistake when made. And finally one convinced of the truth he stoutly maintained it. He never faltered in the face of adverse circumstances, of men of superior position or wisdom. He knew no fear in defending what he thought to be good, noble and true; he never hesitated in letting it be known on which side he was truly planted.

Following from this trait of character was his unwavering honesty. To be honest from policy is not honesty. Mr. Robison's honesty was the reflection of a pure heart, shining through an unfinching will. He scorned meanness and petty trickery. He despised a man who would raise himself by the arts of deceit, and inasmuch as in the others mentioned he was a model to every young man. A marked characteristic was his hopefulness. His sunny nature ever looked forward to a bright future, and the rays of hope illuminated every period when others would have been most despondent. The speaker had seen him in most distressing circumstances, trying enough to have prostrated almost any man, but his cheerful trust in coming days, all the brighter because of the present darkness, carried him buoyantly through his cares and troubles.

And finally above all and beyond all, and of which those traits were but the types, was his noble Christian character. Trained from boyhood in a Christian home, with devotedly pious parents and whose family altar he learned his first lessons of trust in his Savior, Mr. Robison throughout his life was a bright exemplar of the doctrines which he professed. An earnest worker in the church, he loved its associations and never hesitated to let his position as a professing Christian be known. He had a strong faith which never faltered for he grounded on the Rock of Ages. Who can doubt that to him death was a happy entrance into the place which our Heavenly Father has prepared for those that love him from the foundation of the world.

Mr. Harsha closed with an appeal to the young men present to found their lives upon the sure foundation upon which the deceased had based his, in order that they, like him, might be prepared for the summons when it came.

HE WAS SAVED.

How a Little Girl Induced Her Father to Quit Drinking.

"How do you do this afternoon glad to see you," was the salutation given a little miss about fourteen years old one Thursday afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. rooms. "Have you any pledges, sir?" she replied after a moment's pause. "Do you mean temperance pledges?" "Yes, sir, that is what I want," she replied.

"And who do you want it for?" "I want it for my papa. He has been drinking all this week, and he says now if he had a pledge he would sign it and never drink another drop, and mamma and I are so anxious about him that I came to you, for we have heard how you help people some times."

Pledges of this kind are not kept at the rooms, but the one whom she addressed suggested that she bring her father to the meeting that evening and though she had some distance to come, she said "I will do it if papa will come."

They came, and were among the first to arrive. At the meeting the infinite love of God in His son, Jesus Christ, was especially dwelt upon. Such verses as 1 Jno. 3:16, 1 Jno. 4:8, Rom. 5:8; and Jno. 3:16 were read. The great sinfulness of the human race, and that "All have sinned and come short of the glory of God" was spoken of, but he knew it too well.

At the close of the meeting he was approached by one of the workers, who noticed his apparent interest in all that was said about the Savior and love for the lost. He said, "I know I am lost in my present state."

Then turn with me to Matt. 18:11: "For the Son of man is come to seek and to save that which is lost." Even again to Luke 15:2: "This man (Jesus) receiveth the sinners." Let us look now at the parable of the Prodigal Son, Luke 15:11-20, and see what the Father did. The Prodigal, when he came to himself, he said, "I will arise and go unto my Father, and will say unto him, Father, I have sinned against heaven, and before thee, and am no more worthy to be called thy son; make me as one of thy hired servants."

But when he was yet a great way off, his Father saw him and had compassion, and ran and fell on his neck and kissed him. Now, my friend, this illustrates the blessed Savior's willingness to receive you if you come to Him with a desire that He shall save you. Read one more verse: Rom. 10: 9-21. Thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and believe in thine heart that God hath raised Him from the dead; that shall be saved. "I'll do it," said the man who had been so long lost.

MYSTERIOUS GRAVE.

A Discovery Which the City Officers were Not Anxious to Investigate.

The city officials were yesterday informed that a mysterious grave had been revealed by the recent storms, which had sunk the clay some eighteen inches below the surrounding surface. The grave was first discovered by the wife of ex-Policeman Charles Manchester, being situated in the brush about three hundred yards from their residence, in the northwest part of the city. The cavity was about six feet long and two and a half feet wide, and was dug in a direction lying from northwest to southeast. Being cut bias, it looked from the outside as if it was a woman's grave.

Yesterday afternoon Deputy Marshal McClure and Officer O'Donohue went out to investigate the mystery, and found it as stated. They also saw the heel of a woman's shoe sticking up through the clay, and pulling the shroud found it to be of fine texture, a laced shoe, and about a No. 5. The mate was found near by. It looked as if both had been covered up and again resurrected by the rain. It was a curious locality for a grave, and it was curiously dug. The officers were afraid that the occupant was the victim of a suppressed case of small pox, and hence did not take steps to resurrect the remains. At the same time it might be that this mysterious tomb concealed a victim of foul play, a theory borne out by the isolation of the locality chosen and the relics discovered.

It was deemed wise to leave an investigation to some one who had had the small pox, and therefore they left the body for the present in its lonely resting place.

PERSONAL. S. H. Kennedy left for Laramie yesterday on a ten days' business trip. Col. E. B. Temple left yesterday for Fremont and the west after several days spent recuperating with his friends in this city. Mr. E. S. POLICE COURT.

The Sabbath Round Up Not Very Heavy.

Judge Beneke had a rather light sitting yesterday morning and his report was not so important as usual. Geo. Grooms and another man were arrested for complicity in the robbery of Chas. J. Nolan on Friday night last. Grooms was released on $300 bail and the hearing set for 2 p. m. yesterday. Three plain drunks were arraigned and committed in defaults of $10 and costs.

A complaint has been made against Tom Price, the plumber, and Pat O'Brien, charged with striking a young man about fifteen years of age and injuring him severely. Kraus had been in the employ of Price, but quit him some time ago, and it is claimed that he has held a grudge against him ever since. Monday the boy was in Brown's candy store on Fifteenth street, when the two men came in, and Price, after knocking the boy down, is charged with striking him with a bottle which he seized from the counter. Afterward the two men went to the saloon kept by the boy's father and tried to buy beer, for the purpose, it is said, of preventing any trouble by the knowledge that he had violated the Sunday law. Although he knew nothing of the assault, he told them that he did not sell liquor on Sunday, and they left.
