HOTEL MANAGEMENT.

The Hotelkeeper's View-The Losse Not So Great as Might Be Supposed'

The management of a great hotel requires as much executive ability as the command of a brigade in the field. The same attention to details is neces eary, and a strict system, which ap proaches military discipline, is fol lowed. The profits of a hotel may be largely diminished or frittered away entirely through lack of judgment on the part of heads of departments and apt to occur in every large establishment. In speaking of the losses of hotels, a hotel-man said recently: "In a well-managed hotel, however, large the losses are not so great as is often supposed. Take the provisions. With careful buying and adequate icehouses and cooling-rooms there shoul be very little wasted. Things that are not used as originally intended can James F. Wilson, of Tama county, on be utilized in some other way, as, for the 146th ballot. example, fruit which is not available pies. But the greatest loss in food is congress. caused by the guests themselves when meals are served table d'hote. Of course a first-class house presents a bill of fare for any meal which contains more than five men can eat There are some people, however, who are not accustomed to the best fare. and are unable to make selections, and they simply go in on the principle of getting their money's worth. So they order everything, and if at dinner go straight through from soup to coffee, calling for every dish that the menu contains. Of course, they c n't eat one quarter of the amount, and so they leave a great deal to be wasted. There is a chance also for the waiters to cause a loss by bringing guests more things than they want, in the hope that this undue attention will increas their fees. But the head-waiter and the controller, who stands at the doors of the kitchen, always keep a sharp bokout for this, and when a watter is found bringing a guest half a dezen things, instead of two that are really wanted, he is immediately discharged. When the meals are the guests by the 'double check rack-et,' which is a favorite game with dishonest waiters. The guest writes his orders on a check which the waiter takes to te cashiers deak, where the prices are put on the quest is eating his meal the waiter secretly makes out another check check to the guest for payment, but gives to the cashier the first check with the proper prices, and pockets the difference. If the guest pays his check without close examination, as he is likely to do if he has ladies with him, of course he is swindled, and we can't prevent it. I have heard people say that they wouldn't go to the Man-hattan, Brighton or Long Beach hotels again because the prices were so outrageous, and I knew at once that the waiters had raised their checks. The only remedy is for the guest to carefully to compare the prices on his check with those on the bill of fare. First class waiters as a rule are very smart men. They are usual French, German, or Italian, generally speak two, three, or four languages, and often have educa-tion The best waiter I ever knew was something of a linguist, something of a musician, and no mean artist. Then he was an admirable waiter, and had the knack of satisfactorily serving a great many people at the same time. His fees were very large. He received the usual salary of $30 or $35 a month and board. We offered him the position of head waiter at a salary of $100 a month and you see what his fees must have amounted to. At a great seaside hotel in the hight of the season a good waiter will make from $5 to $15 a day in fees. It is not an uncommon thing for a waiter to receive a dollar as a single fee, and if he is serving a large party he sometimes gets $5. "But returning to the losses in hotels, I come to the bar, which is really the most important feature of a house. No hotel can be successfully run gin one. without a bar. The goods are not perishable, and the receipts are so perishable, and the receipts are so time fourth; time 2:274, 2:27, 2:282, expects the bar, alone to pay the expects the bar alone to pay the expects the expects the expects the bar alone to pay the expects expects the bar alone to pay the expenses of running the hotel. No system of checks that I know of is effectual in preventing the barkeepers from 'knocking down'; still I don't think there is much of it done at the best houses. The reason is that the best men attainable are selected for week goes to a Saratoga hotel to be head barkceper. Hotel-keepers are still occasionally ship Para, hence May 31, for London, taken in. Most hotels now flatly refuse to cash checks or drafts for any A boat containing ten persons is one. That game has been played too often. Of course, with the large number of employes in a great seaside house, the expenses are enormous, but the profits of a successful house are correspondingly great. At the Long Beach hotel, which is probably the largest seaside house now open, there are between 300 and 400 em ployes, and the expenses of running the house amount to about $1,000 a Breach of Promise. A suit for breach of promise of narriage has just been begun in the Kings county (N. Y.) supreme court by Miss Mary Alice Almont Livingston, against Henry Fleming, a wealthy young oil merchant, of that city, who resides at an up town hotel. Miss. Livingston, who is said to be a descendant of Chanceller Robert R. Livingston, and is about 20 years old. stated her case to a lawyer last week, and retained him to begin a suite for $175,000 damages against Mr. Fleming. She claims that after an squaintance of several months he engaged himself to marry her, and that thereafter they associated intimately: but after a time he ceas d to visit her, REPUSED TO KEEP HIS PROMISE, although she has been and is ready to marry him. Miss Livingston is attractive, and it is said she will receive an estate of $350,000 when she reaches her twenty-first birthday.
