—Go to Herzman's before buying.

—Great bargains on the 50c counter at Bliss.

—New lot of fine pottery, bisque figures, etc., at Maurer & Craig's. Visitors always welcome.

—Leave to wed was yesterday given to J. P. Gordon and Evaline Willbur, both of Silver creek.

—Herzman will sell store and dwelling.

—Sherraden is the boss photographer.

—Fine line of mens', boys and side saddles at Sherman's, 124 S. Main.

—Call and see the 25c and 50c counter at Bliss.

—Herzman is bound to close out.

—Joseph Reiter makes suits in the latest styles at 310 Broadway.

—Rev. T. F. Beebe will preach Sunday morning at the Broadway church. At night there will be a temperance meeting, at which he will lecture. Subject, "My Vision of the Heavens."

—Railroad tickets bought and sold—Bushnell, five doors north of Postoffice. Can save money on the tickets.

—The men employed at the water works were paid off yesterday. They number about 300.

—Don't forget to call at the new ice cream parlors of Mrs. J. A. Gray, over 605 Broadway.

—In the superior court yesterday there was one case only to dispose of, and that a plain drunk who, under the name of McCormick, was given the regulation fine.

—Joseph Ross, of 615 Upper Broadway, Council Bluffs, makes the best butter tubs in the west, and sells them at the lowest cash price.

—The credit of recovering the body of young Clary, who was drowned here Tuesday, should be given to William Dinneen, of Omaha, who exerted himself nobly to accomplish that purpose.

—The creek was badly swollen by the heavy rain yesterday, and managed to overflow as on the last storm, only more, some lots being covered with water to a depth which made navigation hard except by boats.

—A sewer on Broadway nearly in front of Atkins' store, caved in night before last and necessitated repairs yesterday. A plan is now being contemplated for making the sewers hereafter of brick in arched form, as the wooden ones rot away too quickly and break through easily.

—The city council made another attempt Thursday night to get a quorum, but the political convention proved too much for some of the members, or some other cause prevented them from showing up. It was decided to make another try next Monday evening.

—The lightning was up to its pranks yesterday morning, and dancing into the city telegraph office, took a hop, skip and jump over the switch-board, making a little burn and a big scare, melting some of the brass and leaving its marks on the table below.

—The small pox does not seem inclined to let go its grip much. Yesterday it was found in Mr. Delaney's house, near the St. Jo depot. Three children in his family are suffering from the disease, and the authorities yesterday put them under quarantine, and hung out the flag as a warning to passers-by.

—Several more men were made American citizens by Judge Aylesworth yesterday. Among them were several Germans, and noticing that they had had their first papers for several years longer than necessary, the judge asked why they had not brought them in before. One with much frankness replied that it was because the beer question had not been brought to a vote before, and they were interested in that, if in no other election.

—There was a very happy gathering of young friends at the residence of Justice Abbot on Damon street, Wednesday evening, in response to the invitations extended to them by his daughters, Misses Myra and Nellie Abbott. Music was provided, to which the fest of the guests tripped merrily until a late hour. There was an abundance of tempting refreshments, in fact all the useful accompaniments of a happy and hospitable reception of friends. The participants pronounced the enjoyment of the occasion complete.

—For some time it has been understood that the attempt to remove Mrs. Baldwin from the postoffice would be successful provided the action of the congressional convention was in favor of the Chapman-Anderson rig. The nomination was telegraphed immediately to Washington, and last night a telegram was received in reply stating that Phil Armour has been appointed postmaster here. It is conceded that Mrs. Baldwin's removal is for political reasons only.

—Two Germans bound for San Francisco, and who were unable to talk English, complained that at the transfer yesterday an unjust attempt was made to compel them to pay $12 extra on baggage. They had two tickets and only one trunk, the trunk weighing one hundred and twenty pounds. They were informed that they would have to pay $12 and a C. O. D.

label was posted on the trunk calling for that amount on arrival in San Francisco. A traveling man interfered, and says that threats were made to kick him out, but he hung to it and the baggage was sent on without the C. O. D. check. The German immigrants seemed grateful indeed to their advocate.

COMPLETED THE COURSE

The Graduates of the High School Entertain Their Friends and Receive Their Diplomas.

There was a crowd at Dohaney's last evening to witness the exercises attendant upon the twelfth annual commencement of the Council Bluffs High school.

Long before the opening of the exercises almost every seat was taken, and the audience was composed of the better classes of society, who seemed to appreciate the efforts made to entertain them, as well as the showing of intellectual advancement made by the participants.

The programme opened with a selection by the orchestra, and an invocation by Rev. Dr. Cleland.

The first essay of the evening was by Miss Mollie V. Keatley, in which she clearly handled the much discussed question of how far circumstances affected the lives of great men.

Miss Lena Peterson gave a sprightly essay on "Hills and Seek," which was well received.

"Famous Treaties" was the subject of an essay by Miss Winnie Roosa. It showed much preparatory study and most excellent thought.

Miss Effie Moon gave an interesting essay on "Electric Progression" which was in thought and diction entitled to high rank among those of the evening.

Miss Mary Maltz, in a clear, well-liked line of thought, impressed the truth that character is the growth of day by day.

Miss Nellie Clarendon gave one of the best essays of the evening, it being "A Reverie." It was a charming production and well delivered, meriting the hearty applause it received.

Miss Clarendon is a native Council Bluffs girl, and she is wholly a product of this city's schools, she having been through the entire course from the lowest to the highest grade.

If her essay is a fair sample of what intellectual training can be obtained from this city's school system, it is proof sufficient that the system is an excellent one.

The essay by Miss Romie Lyon, on "What Has She Done," was one which pleased the audience greatly, and its fresh, sparkling sentences merited the close attention the audience gave her.

Miss Tillie Autenreith made a very ingenious plea for air castles, and put a very pleasing phase on that line of thought.

Miss Nellie Rain gave one of the best essays of the evening, her subject being "In War and in Peace."

Miss Nellie Sackett gave the closing essay, it being on the topic, "Untie the Knot or Cut It." The line of thought expressed in the title was well followed out, and her effort called forth hearty applause.

The music of the evening was unusually excellent. The Schubert quartette gave a selection, which was enthusiastically received.

Miss Kate L. James favored the audience with her wonderful voice in song, and Miss Carrie Atkins gave a very fine piano solo.

The stage was very tastefully and made attractive by floral decorations. The presentation of the diplomas was one of the most interesting portions of the exercises, and the evening closed with the benediction by Rev. Dr. Cleland.

SPIRITUALISM.

Hon. Warren Chase, member of the state senate of California, and well known to many of the citizens here, will lecture in Everett block on Pearl street to-morrow, at 11 o'clock a. m., and at 8 o'clock p. m.

Admission free, and all invited to attend.

BIG TIME.

Advices from Sioux City indicate that preparations are very complete for a Grand Celebration there on the Fourth. Our citizens must not forget the Special Train and Cheap Rates offered by the Sioux City & Pacific railroad on this occasion. Go and see the English Hurdle Races.

PERSONAL.

Prof. J. Piper, of Chicago, was in the city yesterday, a guest at the Ogdens house.

C. M. Whitney has returned from a two weeks trip in Nebraska, accompanied by his wife.

W. J. Brown, of Denver, and George Bell, of Pueblo, Col., are at the Ogdens house.

E. M. Ford, of Des Moines, was in the city yesterday, and brought with him some relics from the path of the tornado, which he generously shared with friends.

Miss Flickinger, who has been teaching in the high school here, leaves to-day for her home in the eastern part of the state. It is to be hoped that her services will be continued here during the next school year also, as she is one of the most efficient and popular teachers in the corps. The Methodist choir, of which she has been a most valuable member, will miss her voice greatly, and will join in wishing her a safe and sure return in the fall.

James McMahon has returned from Nyack, N. Y., where he has been attending school. He was one of those chosen to orate at the closing exercises of the school, his subject being "Western Improvements." Charles S. Morse, son of J. W. Morse, is also attending that school, and appeared at the same exhibition, the subject of his oration being "The War of the United States." Young Morse is growing physically as well as intellectually, his present weight being 190 pounds, and his height 6 feet 3 inches.

A Vexed Clergyman.

Even the patience of Job would become exhausted were he a preacher and endeavoring to interest his audience while they were keeping up an incessant coughing making it impossible for him to be heard. Yet, how very easy all this is avoided by simply using Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. Trial Bottles given away at C. F. Goodman's drug store.

THE PEST TENT.

How a Small Pox Patient Was Robbed By His Nurses.

The Dead Man's Friends Hunt Up the Stolen Property and Arrest the Thief.

It will be remembered that in the latter part of May a young man named Jones, a stranger in the city, and employed at the elevator, was taken with the small pox and removed to the tent, where he remained only two days when he died. Jones had about $300 in cash, which he had deposited in Father McMenomy's hands for safe keeping, and after his death and burial, that reverend gentleman, who had shown himself such a true friend to the unfortunate young man, in corresponding with the father living in Pennsylvania, learned that the young man had a silver watch and a valuable ring, which the relatives were anxious to get.

This property not having been seen nor heard from by Father McMenomy since the young man's death, he proceeded to exert himself to find some trace of it. He wisely chose Officer Sid Sterling, and for the past few days he has been busy working up the matter. He has cleared it up to his own satisfaction at least, and has arrested a man named W. J. Brown on the charge of having stolen the watch. The details of the charge as they now appear, show a deplorable and hardened condition of depravity on Brown's part. It is claimed that when Jones was brought to the tent, Brown, who was conversing, was retained as a nurse. Brown chanced to inquire what time of day it was, and Jones in reply told him that he had a watch in his vest pocket, by which he could find out. It is said that when Brown thus got the watch he kept it, and had it on his person when he was arrested.

As to the ring, it is said that the young man seemed to think much of it, and a day or two before his death, while expecting to die, and partly delirious, he made an attempt to swallow it, hoping to thus keep any one from getting it away from him. It was restored to his finger, and after his death it is said that Brown tried to remove it, but the finger was so badly swollen that he could not. He suggested the idea of cutting it off, but finally abandoned this, and the ring was buried with the young man.

It is claimed that when Brown was questioned about the watch and ring, he claimed that both were buried with the young man, while all the time he kept it in his possession. He will now have a chance to explain in court his side of the grave charges thus laid at his door, and which certainly, if proved, mark him as having a little feeling as honesty.

CHIDING AN EDITOR.

To the Editor of the Bee: In a copy of The Nonpareil of this city, dated 13th inst. (which has only by chance come under my notice even at this late date), I find a paragraph in what the learned editor doubtless intended as an editorial on European affairs, to which I take exceptions, and on which I wish to offer a word of comment. Here is the objectionable paragraph:

"The recent shooting of a landlord of the name of Burke, in open daylight, and the fact that the reward of $5,000, offered by the government, has brought no information concerning the murder of Lord Cavendish, constitutes strong evidence that a large proportion of the Irish population favors assassination as a political remedy."

Now, in reading this curiously devised paragraph three ideas occurred to me, namely, that the editor must have calculated to a wonderful extent on the limited knowledge of his readers in European matters, that his own morals must not be good, in so far as the reserved social rights of the Christian man is concerned, and lastly, that he must be ignorant both of the past history and current events of Ireland.

In regard to the first idea, the correspondents of many leading newspapers of this country, traveling in Ireland, for the purpose of writing up the true account of all that in that country for their respective papers, have published to the world the universal Irish protest of the murders of Lord Cavendish and Secretary Burke, a protest accepted by Gladstone himself, as the true, genuine outburst of the entire Irish nation, so that that should have been assented matter long before this hour all over the civilized world.

Secondly, the editor, who I presume, is a Christian man, should have known that, in morals, it would have been a crime for one member of society to receive blood money against another from a government to whose laws the evils and wrongs in which crime has its origin are traced by the entire population, supposing suspicion might have rested on some evilly disposed person, which, however, I deny to have been the case.

Were Ireland to have a government of her choice this would have been true. How much so while robbed and plundered and trampled on, in the dust, by a hateful foreign government, whose low officials have power to visit, by force, by day or by night, the very privacy of the bed chamber, and drag them from—not alone the man—but the woman—tenderly reared daughter—and without any other warrant than the suspicion of said officials, and incarcerate her in a loathsome dungeon. Nay! to shoot her down on the public highway, in the light of day, because she dared to mingle with the people exercising their natural rights of marching the streets in unarmed procession. Ah, I should like to see the editor of The Nonpareil carrying out his views of loyalty to the government of England in such a country. Verily, his blood money would soon drive him to fling his "thirty pieces of silver" at the feet of his employers, and then hang himself.

Thirdly, in order to be acquainted with the condition of Ireland at the present time, or passing events there, the editor of The Nonpareil, instead of quenching his thirst for literary lore far away out in the muddy stream, should have sought out the source, the pure fountain of Irish history, without a correct knowledge of which he could be no more fit to write on the current social or political affairs of Ireland than some dusky inhabitant of the Pacific Islands.

HELPING THE NEEDY.

The Contributions for the Cyclone Sufferers are Being Forwarded.

The terrible storm which visited Grinnell and vicinity has robbed many of their little all, and left them in a condition where they have the right to expect practical sympathy and generous aid from those more fortunate in life. The expectation is being helped, and the calls issued for help are being promptly responded to. Council Bluffs has thus far sent between $700 and $800 in cash, besides boxes of provisions and clothing, and it is expected that more will follow. Towns and cities nearer the scenes of suffering and devastation have responded more liberally than this city, largely because their sympathy has been touched by the sights which many of their citizens have seen with their own eyes in visiting the ruins.

The citizens here, being at a longer distance, and a few having come in actual contact with these scenes of audacious want, naturally move more slowly in the matter. The subscription papers are still open, they being left by A. T. Ellwell, at the express company's office, corner of Broadway and Pearl streets. The cash there received will be turned over to Mayor Bowman and by him forwarded to the proper distributors. The express companies also have agreed to carry all supplies, either for the general good or private individuals, free of charge. It is to be hoped that the generosity of this people will swell the contributions greatly above the present amount.
