THE ASSASSIN.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 29.—Guiteau spent the night nearly naked walking the floor, and lying down occasionally. He asked the guard this morning if he thought the weather would continue good the balance of the week, and if his brother and sister would be present at the execution. The guards think Guiteau will break down before reaching the scaffold. Guiteau will wear the clothes worn when sentenced, which were presented by his brother at that time. Rev. Hicks saw the president. He says Arthur is irrevocably determined not to interfere in Guiteau's execution.

THE MORNING MATINEE. Guiteau was not in good humor when he arose this morning. He exhibited excitement, talked loudly about his enemies and the punishment awaiting those who persecuted him. He ate a hearty breakfast, and took his customary walk in the corridor. During the day he was called on by John W. Reed, Marshal Henry and Rev. Hicks. He now fully understands that no help will come, and his time, when not in conversation, is passed in deep meditation. Some person in Boston has written that an attempt will be made to-night to provide the assassin with a...

DEARLY POSSESS. The project cannot succeed. Every possible precaution is observed by the officials. The military guard is on the alert. The guard consists of a lieutenant and three men—commissioned officers and privates. A battery of artillery has been detailed for duty at the jail to-morrow. Capt. Torrence, a jail officer, shaved the prisoner. He ate a big dinner and seemed to enjoy it very much. Guiteau's relations have made no arrangements for disposing of his body. Warden Crocker ordered a plain pine coffin stained in imitation of rosewood. The coffin was on exhibition at the shop of the maker, and was gazed at by curious crowds all this afternoon. The following telegraphic invitations to attend the autopsy were issued this evening:

WASHINGTON, June 29.—Rev. Hicks custodian of Guiteau's body, invites you to attend the autopsy to-morrow, at 2 o'clock at the jail. [Signed] GEO. M. BEARD. The invitations were sent to Doctors Kellogg, Seguin, Shradly, Dana, Hammond, Nichols, Back, Morton, Spitzka, McDonald, Johnson, Parrish, Miles, Godding and Lamb. Dr. Beard leaves for home to-night. He said he took no interest in the proceedings to-morrow, and felt confident his prediction as to how Guiteau would act on the scaffold would be fulfilled. He did not think the post mortem examination would disclose the condition of the brain, which would disclose Guiteau's insanity. In selecting the names of those invited to the autopsy, only a short time was allowed, owing to indisposition as to the custody of the body. John W. Guiteau had determined that he would leave the responsibility to the government, but under the advice of Rev. Hicks, Dr. Beard, Reed and Crocker, the course now adopted was deemed to be the best under the circumstances, especially since it accorded with the expressed wish of the condemned man. Dr. Beard says he endeavored to embrace in the invitations all shades of medical opinion. Rev. Hicks has not yet decided what disposition to make of the body.

A DYING PRAYER. an extraordinary production, which he will read from the gallows. It is generally understood that Col. Robert Strong will conduct the principal part of the execution, at a signal from Warden Crocker. A POSITIVE GOON. There is a condemned colored murderer named Shaw in the tier of cells with Guiteau, who frequently takes occasion to taunt and insult the latter. To-day while Guiteau was promenading the corridor, Shaw bawled out: "Hello, old inspiration, how do you feel now? I am afraid God's man will get you." John W. Guiteau says was enacted when he and Mrs. Scoville and her child called on the prisoner this afternoon. Guiteau had been walking with Rev. Hicks, and the guard told him he must step into his cell, as under the rules he could not see company in the corridor. He stepped into the cell with Hicks, and the guard turned the key. The idea seemed to flash across Guiteau's mind that a trick had been played on him to prevent his sister from bidding him farewell in his cell. He turned suddenly round, facing the guard, and with blazing eyes, and countenance pale with rage, denounced him and all concerned with the jail for this last insult and indignity heaped upon him and his sister in their last parting. Raising his hand to heaven, he called down.

THE PROGRAMME

By special arrangements with Warden Crocker THE BEE is enabled to present to its readers, in advance of all contemporaries, the following detailed programme of the exercises to "come off" this afternoon:

THE CURSES OF GOD upon all jail officials and upon the president and cabinet. "I am God's man," he shouted, "and you not only want to hang, but you deprive my loved ones of an opportunity to take decent farewell of me. I am God's man, and I call down his curse upon every one of you. He will send you all to hell for this day's work, including the president and his cabinet. I am not afraid to die. I've made my will and have now no more care than this chair."

A FIGHTFUL TORRENT OF ABUSE at him. Mrs. Scoville endeavored to calm the infuriated man and asked for permission to go inside the cell. Warden Crocker was about to assent, when Guiteau shouted: "No! let the record stand as it is. They have refused to let you come in here to bid me good bye; now let the record stand." Mrs. Scoville was obliged to take her last farewell of her brother through the bars of the cell door. After kissing Mrs. Scoville through the bars, he kissed her little daughter Bertha. Mother and daughter then retired, weeping bitterly. Guiteau displayed during the leave taking. It is said to-night that Mrs. Scoville has decided not to witness the execution. Guiteau had a long talk with Rev. Hicks, who promised to see him again. Dr. McWilliams says he saw Guiteau in such a violent state of mind he is afraid he will not be able to sleep at all. The proxyman over Guiteau laid down for a while and after composing himself he said to Dr. McWilliams: "Doctor, HAVE YOU SEEN THAT MACHINE? (meaning the scaffold.) I want you to examine it as a physician, to make sure there will be no bungling. I'M NOT INSANE. Dr. Hicks called this evening accompanied by Dr. Beard, who came to see the last of the prisoner. Leaving starting for New York. Guiteau said: "Dr. Beard, glad to see you; I will be in glory this time to-morrow. This nation will take the consequences. You don't know me, and (pointing his finger at Dr. Beard) I am not insane, doctor."

DISPENSING OF HIS BODY. The letter by which Guiteau disposes of his body is as follows: WASHINGTON, June 29, 1882. To Rev. Wm. W. Hicks: I, Charles J. Guiteau, of the City of Washington, District of Columbia, now under sentence of death, which is to be carried into effect between the hours of 12 and 2 o'clock, the 30th of June, 1882, in the United States jail of said district, do hereby give and grant to you my body after such execution; provided, however, it shall not be used for any mercenary purpose, and I hereby, for good and sufficient considerations give, deliver and transfer to said Hicks my books, entitled "The Truth and 'The Renovation'" and the copyright thereof, to be used by him in writing a truthful history of my life and execution, and I direct such history to be entitled "The Life and Work of Charles Guiteau," and I hereby solemnly proclaim and announce to all the world, no person nor persons shall ever in any manner use my body for any mercenary purpose whatsoever. And if at any time hereafter any person or persons shall desire to honor my remains, he can do it by erecting a monument, whereon shall be inscribed these words: "Here lies the body of Charles Guiteau, patriot and Christian. His soul is in glory." CHARLES J. GUILTEAU.

WITNESSES: CHARLES H. REED, JAMES WOODWARD. Accompanying the above is the following: QUIT CLAIM. WASHINGTON, June 29, 1882.—To General John S. Crocker, Warden U. S. jail: We, Frances M. Scoville and John W. Guiteau, sister and brother and only heirs of Charles J. Guiteau, to be executed on the 30th of June, 1882, in the U. S. jail, in the District of Columbia, hereby request you to deliver the body of said Charles Guiteau to Rev. William H. Hicks, after such execution.

CONSIDERATION OF THE NAVAL APPROPRIATION BILL was resumed. Mr. Hewitt favored the construction of a new navy, but denounced Robeson's methods. House spent the remainder of the afternoon considering the naval appropriation bill by sections. A bill reported from the ways and means committee taxing oleomargarine one cent a pound. Adjourned at 5:05 p. m.

DAVITT AT BUFFALO. BUFFALO, June 29.—Michael Davitt addressed a large audience to-night. He emphatically denies there was a difference between him and Parnell, saying there was as much likelihood of such a split as there is of his being an English peer. He was frequently interrupted by applause. Father Cronin also addressed the meeting, at the conclusion of which three cheers were given for Davitt.

PENNSYLVANIA DEMOCRATS. HARRISBURG, Pa., June 29.—The convention was called to order at 10:15 a. m. All delegates present. Chauncy T. Black was nominated for lieutenant-governor; Silas McClark was nominated for judge of the supreme court by acclamation on the second ballot; Mortimer T. Elliott for congressman-at-large.

RICHMOND, Va., June 29.—The Bank of Commerce suspended payments to depositors to-day. The cashier states that the bank does not owe $40,000, and will be able to pay 50 cents on the dollar. The bank lost heavily on stocks and bonds carried over from last year.

THE BANKERS' BATH.

A Train of Wall Street Magnates Leaps from a Bridge, and Strikes Bottom in the Shrewsbury River at Low Tide.

Five Persons Known to be Killed and a Hundred Severely Hurt.

Intense Excitement at the Seaside Resorts.

Gen. Grant Narrowly Escapes Being Crushed.

Went Through a Draw.

OCEANPORT, N. J., June 29.—An express passenger train has just run through an open draw into the Shrewsbury river, between Oceanport and Branchport, Monmouth county, N. J. The train leaving Oceanport at 8:25 and Branchport a few minutes later for New York, crowded with passengers, entered the long bridge, in the middle of which is a draw. The accident occurred at the draw, some coaches going bodily into the river. Three dead bodies have already been recovered. None are positively identified. Forty doctors are on the ground, thirty wounded passengers being attended to. It is reported that Commodore Win. K. Garrison was on the train and had a leg broken.

There is great excitement at all resorts above and below Long Branch over the accident. People are flocking to Shrewsbury bridge in search of news concerning members of families who left for New York on the morning train. The scene of the accident is jammed with carriages full of richly dressed people from the seashore, crazy with anxiety. At the office of the New Jersey Southern railroad, on which, and not on the Jersey Central, the accident occurred, dispatches announce that the wreck is not so serious as first reported. Their story is that the train leaving Long Branch at 7:45, while crossing Parker's creek, four miles above Long Branch, the tender of the locomotive jumped the track. One man jumped into the water and was drowned. Eight persons were injured.

W. W. Demarest, produce dealer, 151 Reed street, New York; E. J. Bradley, 150 Seventy-second street, New York, are still lying in the overturned coach. Three coroners of contiguous counties are disputing one another's claims to the inquests. PATALLY WOUNDED. Charles S. Woodruff, Newark, water and shock; James T. Malory, 202 Broadway, water and shock; J. T. Mitchell, agent of the Equitable Life, chest and forehead fractured, water in lungs; Annie Irvin, Brooklyn, forehead lacerated, eye and arm and arm, throat cut, right eye and arm cut terribly; Robert Robertson, iron merchant, New York; Elson, grocer Long Branch; James Brooks, of Brooks & Dickson, theatrical managers, New York; Morris H. Bowen, son of the superintendent of the Erie road; H. A. Higby, Pearl street, New York; J. L. Merrill, East Orange, N. J.; W. B. Franklin, Albany Park, N. J.; J. B. Park, Brooklyn; T. T. Rechenbach, Trenton, N. J.; Charles Webb, Brooklyn, missing.

Grant was pulled out of the smoking car by Fireman Charles H. Foster. Garrison is the son of Commodore C. K. Garrison. One hundred are injured who will not give names for publication, their injuries not being dangerous. The accident was caused by the rails spreading. The tide was out; otherwise the loss of life would have been fearful. General Grant was on the train, but was not injured. John T. Raymond the actor, it is reported, had his collar bone broken and sustained other severe injuries. His father-in-law, Fox, was seriously injured. C. M. Schott, J. M. of the stock exchange, has a broken leg. Mallory and Woodruff are dying. It is believed W. K. Morrison's injuries are fatal. Two dead bodies are lying in the cottage of Schneck, corner, near the scene. Grant was badly shocked.

WALL STREET EXCITED. New York, June 29.—News of the accident reached Wall street just at the opening of business, and produced a tremendous sensation, as it was known many members of prominent houses were on board. Among those who rushed to the telegraph and newspaper offices were Col. Fred Grant and others. The bridge was timber five hundred feet long, with an iron draw twenty-five feet in the center. The draw was not open. The accident was caused by the spreading of the rails.

LATEST DETAILS from to-day's railroad disaster at Little Silver station, state that five passengers were killed outright, and nearly everybody on the train injured, some doubtless fatally. It appears a frog in the rails had been inaccurately spiked. The corrected list of casualties gives the dead: E. L. Bradley and C. Woodruff, both of Newark, N. J.; W. R. Garrison, (son of Commodore Garrison) but a merchant, New York; Geo. W. Demarest ad Jas. E. Mallory, real estate brokers, New York. The wounded number about fifty and include a large portion of
