A BAD DEFEAT.

The Glenwoods, of Glenwood, Ia., Meet the U. P. and are Beaten.

There were only about 500 spectators present on Saturday afternoon to witness the game of ball, for it was generally understood that the Glenwoods were no match for our boys, and the game would be all one-sided in consequence.

This proved to be the result, as the Glenwoods only succeeded in getting in one score in the first innings on a bad throw by Mahoney, who played third base, to Bandle. With this exception, the U. P. nine played an almost faultless game. The U. P. nine are improving with each game, as will be seen when it is known that they had but one error in the game with the Council Bluffs.

The nine has been very much strengthened by the addition of Dwyer, who will play first base and change catch. Mr. Dwyer came here with Dreadnaughts of Chicago, whom he caught for. He has located in Omaha, and in future will play with the U. P.

The following is the score:

ENTERPRISING TURNERS.

They Hold an Interesting Meeting and Decide to Have a School of Their Own.

Saturday the Turner Society of this city held a meeting in Turner hall for the purpose of discussing a scheme to build a Turner school for children and adults. Mr. Philip Andres, the president of the society, presided over the meeting. The committee of five, consisting of Messrs. Phillip Andres, J. I. Fruhauf, Fred Elasser, F. Roacker and C. Hannan, which had been appointed by the Turn Verein to agitate this question and get subscribers, reported that they had got sixty-three signatures of persons who were willing at least to pay a minimum sum of $15 towards this laudable enterprise.

The Turn Verein itself will donate fifteen hundred dollars, and if they can get another fifteen hundred dollars they will commence operations at once.

A very animated and interesting discussion took place, in which Messrs. Phillip Andres, J. I. Fruhauf, Herman Willrodt, A. Dornan, Louis Beindorf, G. E. Stratmann and several others took part.

Another committee, comprising Messrs. Julius Meyer, George E. Stratmann, Peter Goos, A. Dornan and G. Zimmerman, was appointed to assist the first committee in obtaining subscriptions and to perfect the scheme, which looks as if it would be an accomplished fact in the very near future.

The Bee wishes the society every success in its new departure.

Thanks.

Friday the Omaha Mission enjoyed a delightful day at the park. The day was very favorable and refreshments were served in abundance.

Members of the mission—teachers and scholars—feel very thankful for the assistance rendered by friends in the way of refreshments, and particularly to Capt. Marsh and Mr. Smith, of the horse railway, for the kindness in carrying the whole school to and from the park without charge. By order of the mission.

SPANKING SPAN.

Arrival of Two Beautiful and Lively Roadsters in Town.

Omaha has always stood at the top of the ladder of fame in the matter of possessing superior horse-flesh. This fact has been acknowledged by all visitors who have enjoyed an evening's trip out Sherman avenue, and indeed eastern sporting papers have deemed the subject worthy of notice, and have given the names of the blooded horses possessed by private parties here.

Lately Charles S. Higgins has added to the meritorious list by the introduction of one of the finest teams of roadsters that ever raised the dust in Omaha or vicinity. They are bay and could not be more perfectly mated in color, gait, carriage, size and style. Both are blooded steppers and rejoice in the names of "Kitty H." and "Billy S." Since Col. Higgins has appeared on the road with his noble team, his outfit has been admired by all horsemen, and of course envied by many. One of Snyder's famous light running and feather weight buggies was made expressly for this team, and it is to be hoped that the arm may not be broken, and prove less seriously hurt than is feared.

A SAVAGE SURPRISE.

A Silver Souvenir for a Justice.

Interesting Episode in the District Court Room.

One of the pleasantest features of the term of the district court just ended was the little surprise party given its presiding officer, Judge Savage, on Saturday afternoon. It has been generally known for some time past that this was his last term as district judge, his failing health compelling a reluctant retirement from a place which he has filled in such a manner as to win the respect and esteem of the bar and the public generally. In view of his anticipated move, his friends combined together to present him with an appropriate souvenir, which was found at Max Meyer & Bro.'s in the shape of a magnificent solid silver water pitcher, and goblet, of antique Roman design and inscribed as follows: "Hon. Jas. W. Savage. Upon his retiring from the bench. By the bar and the officers of his court. The goblet is inscribed 'J. W. S.'" Both pitcher and goblet are encased in velvet cases. This magnificent service was carried out by the bailiffs about 3 o'clock in the afternoon during the argument in some civil case, which was temporarily suspended upon the request of Col. E. F. Smythe, who was the prime mover in the matter, that Judge Wakely be heard upon the court upon an important matter which he desired to present. Judge Wakely said: "My brethren of the bar here, without warning, and without a moment for preparation, charged me with a duty which they should take precedence of the business of the court."

Some years ago, sir, it fell to my lot in a little convention held within these walls, to present your name as a candidate for the office of justice for this district. I took occasion then to depict, in my imperfect way, some of the chief qualifications which should be possessed by a good and just judge. And I then promised, that if the nomination of that convention should be ratified by the people, they should see cause to regret their choice. They did ratify it, and, four years later, they reaffirmed their choice, and continued you in your judgment seat by an unprecedented majority of their votes.

And now, sir, as you are about, no long time hence, to relinquish the high trust with which you were invested, I take occasion to say that you do so after years of service performed with the universal confidence and approval of the people, not of this judicial district only, but of the whole state—an approval not qualified by distinction of party, of creed or condition. I speak the general voice when I say, that during your incumbency, this seat has been filled with uncommon ability, courtesy and frankness, with an integrity and purity never even questioned.

I know that when you shall lay aside your high and noble judicial duties—whether you shall be in public or private life, you will have the people's confidence, their respect and their wishes for your success and good fortune.

As a slight token of the regard of this bar, I now present to you and ask you to accept their gift of this silver pitcher and cup.

Judge Savage was deeply moved by the unexpected gift and the expressions which accompanied it, but he responded as follows:

It is with inexpressible pain that I approach the close of my duties—a pain which your kind words and this exquisite gift can hardly alleviate.

I remember well your words seven years ago, and the reception given me and the retreating judge, and the kind words spoken, and remember the promise I made to the bar that however inefficient I
