LOCAL BREVITIES.

The mercury is slowly climbing up. The Missouri Pacific is now manned by the news agents of Barklow Brothers of this city.

The July appropriation of the State school money for this city is $7,085.03, a great increase over 1887.

Jacob Kaufman will have an opening at his new saloon today on 16th street between California and Webster.

The Saratoga Union Sunday School gives its next concert on the first Sunday in August. Rehearsal today, Saturday evening.

A. H. Sanders' building on the corner of Cumings and Saunders streets, will be completed shortly. It is an ornament to Cumings street.

Mary Kearney is lodged in jail on the charge of assaulting Dora Bernard with an axe. Both parties are from the old den of fifth and Iniquity, the "Bellevue House."

The many friends of Mr. Bertram Hansen will regret to learn that he has been confined to his room for the past ten days by illness. He is in the hands of Dr. Grossman and is somewhat better yesterday.

The Illinois edit ors, about seventy-five of them, will arrive in Omaha next Wednesday en route west for an extended excursion. They will go direct to Salt Lake, in which vicinity they will spend three days.

The B. & M. base ball club will play a return game with the Council Bluffs club today at 4 p. m. on the latter's ground. A good game is expected as the Bluffs have strength neither nine considerably since the games with the B. & M. and U. P's.

The Democratic State Central Committee meets in Omaha next week to arrange a call for the State convention, which will be held at Boyd's opera house some time in October. Omaha will be pretty lively this fall if these honors continue to crowd upon us.

The game today afternoon between the Union Pacifics and the Kansas City Stars, at the association grounds, promises to be one of unusual interest. In the game played in Kansas City on the Fourth of July the Stars defeated the Leavenworth leads by the remarkable score of 2 to 1—ten innings.

Marshall Angell has received circulars offering $800 reward for the recovery of property stolen from Hamlin & Race, Beloit, Wis., on the night of June 20th, and the arrest of the thieves. The property consisted of an immense amount of jewelry, watches and diamond rings and a lot of repair work.

There will be a meeting of property owners on Douglas street held at the Millard Hotel at 4 o'clock sharp Saturday, the 22nd, to ask the city council to pave Douglas street and decide on the kind of material desired for the same. It is proposed to push this matter ahead and have Douglas street in good shape.

The attention of our readers—both citizens and strangers—is called to the fact that the Y. M. C. A. reading room is the only place in the city of the kind that is open from 8 o'clock in the morning to 9:30 in the evening. Their rooms, Farnam and Tenth, are supplied with daily and weekly papers from many states, many of the leading railroad journals, and much reading material with conveniences for writing can be had at any time. We speak of this place because it has become one of the beneficent institutions of the city.

A quiet wedding took place Thursday a few relatives and friends being the only witnesses, at the residence of Clark Woodman, of the lined oil camp. The contracting parties were Rev. J. A. Fiehrer, of Madison, Neb., and Miss Helen A. Woodman, sister of Clark and D. W. Woodman, of this city. The ceremony was performed by a brother of the groom, Rev. J. J. Fiehrer, of Fullerton, Neb., assisted by Fiehrer and Preston. The happy couple left for Madison on the noon train.

Miss M. H. McMillen gave a very pleasant card party at her home on South 11th street Wednesday evening, which was attended by quite a number of her friends. A delightful evening was passed during which an elegant lunch was served. Among those present were Mr. Charley Blomdoff; Mr. C. W. Tomley and Miss Jennie Patrick; Mr. Louis Partell and Miss Emma Partell; Mr. Louis Littlefield and Miss Mollie Monroe, and Mary Johnson.

The examination of S. C. Hollander, the man accused of setting fire to Turner Hall, in which his restaurant was located, was concluded late Thursday and he was held over in the sum of $1,000 bonds which could not give and consequently went to jail. The prosecution was conducted by N. J. Burnam, Esq., assisted by Judge Thurston and the defense by Judge Baldwin and E. M. Bartlett. There were some strong protests against the prisoner but his counsel think they can clear him when it comes to trial in the District Court.

UNITED AGAIN.

The Blooping Couple of Des Moines Come Out Victorious.

They Return to Omaha to Dwell in Peace.

The case of the alleged runaway lovers, Osborn and Mrs. Hartwell, of Des Moines, has been pretty thoroughly aired in all the papers of this city and the closing act in the melodrama left the entire party bathed in tears and speeding home by the old reliable Rock Island road, in charge of Marshal Smith. It was supposed that there would be a reconciliation and that Osborn would be adopted as a member of the family, either in the role of the long lost father or the prodigal son.

There was universal surprise yesterday that the incoming train had brought among its passengers Osborn, Mrs. Hartwell and the child, who proceeded to the hotel and again located themselves as if nothing had happened.

From the Des Moines Register it is learned that the case was called Tuesday, that it was believed that the defendant would be discharged, as there was no witness by either the prosecution or defense but Dr. Hartwell, and by his testimony it seems as if he had meditated somewhat upon the action to be taken in court and was very mum on all leading questions.

The city solicitor asked Dr. Hartwell if he had ever seen anything wrong or improper in the action of his wife while in company with Osborn, and upon his part either, and inasmuch as he did not prove by his testimony the first charge of adultery, Judge Hillis ruled that in the absence of any proof to establish the charge he would dismiss the case, discharge the defendant and tax the costs to the county. Thereupon Mr. Osborn shook Mrs. Hartwell's right hand, while she extended her left hand to her husband. When the parties were gone the city solicitor remarked that if the strange and possible circumstantial evidence might prevail in this case, in the future he would not prosecute the case for Hartwell for $5,000, in view of the manner in which he had acted on the witness stand. Indeed, there was something inspiring in Hartwell's assumed ignorance of improper conduct on the part of his wife and Osborn, and in view of the fact that Hartwell stated to him that he could prove the charge without difficulty. This action of his tended to chagrin the city solicitor.

The Register chronicler called upon Mrs. Hartwell at the Morgan house last evening, and asked her a few leading questions. He first asked her, which is generally asked new widows, as to what she intended to do in the future. She replied that the question of what she would do in the present had so much involved her time that she had entirely ignored the future. The same question about the future was asked the doctor, who by the way, was present, and he remarked that he guessed he would go to the devil if his wife left him. She laughed at him for that, and implied by her look that that was no place to go to, to enjoy life. She said that she married the doctor in Geneva, N. Y., six years ago. The marriage was upon the persistent desire of parents, and not upon the dictate of her affections. They came direct to Des Moines, and there the most of the time lived happily together. This last statement was more urged by the husband than the wife. When asked about the custody of the child, Mrs. Hartwell said she wanted it, and the chronicler interpreted then opportunistly to give his opinions as to who should be the guardian; but neither of them seemed to coincide with him because he did not commit himself on either side. He forgot to remark that maybe Osborn would be pleased to take the child. Mrs. Hartwell leaves today for the West. The doctor leaves soon for the east, and they will both of them visit together at Mrs. Hartwell's sister's in Michigan, and there they will talk about the future, smoke the pipe of peace, and let the events of the past pass away in the blue smoke of forgetfulness. Mrs. Hartwell requests it stated that the Omaha people were friendly and kind to her, that Marshall Smith was a gentleman of proper conduct while there, that her husband loves her as no man who does him; that she intends to keep the child, and that life is not a dream.

Clears out. Mrs. J. J. Fiehrer, of Fullerton, Neb., and her husband, Mr. J. J. Fiehrer, of Fullerton, Neb., are leaving for Fullerton, Neb., on the noon train.

Funeral today at 10 a. m. from the residence, 18th and Decatur streets. All friends invited.

WANTED—A good second-hand bicycle. Address box X, Central City, Neb. 10-31

A BIG MINE. Which Will Furnish Building Material For the State. Omaha men are never satisfied unless they have the world by the ears, and after making a success of his hotel and railroad building, Mr. Geo. Canfield has gone into the stone quarrying business.

On Saturday last he purchased twenty-two acres of land near Louisville, on the B. & M., and only a quarter of a mile from the track. The tract covers a fine quarry of the best lime stone for building and paving purposes in the state, being like that quarried by Contractor Stout, of Lincoln. Twenty thousand car loads could be taken out and never exhausted, and Mr. Canfield proposes to make it a valuable thing for the citizens of Omaha.

OMAHA SAVINGS BANK. A New and Improved Institution in this City. Articles of incorporation of the Omaha Savings bank were filed in county clerk's office at 3 p. m. yesterday.

The incorporators are James E. Boyd, L. M. Bennett, Guy C. Barton, S. H. Clark, C. H. Dewey, J. W. Gannett, G. W. Linniger, Chas. F. Manderson, Max Meyer, John L. McCague, W. A. Paxton, Henry Pundt, E. L. Stone, Geo. C. Towle and L. B. Williams.

The business transacted will be that usual to a savings deposit and safety deposit bank and trust company. The capital stock is $150,000, in shares of $1,000 each, 5 per cent payable on signing the stock subscription, and the balance upon call.

The existence of the company dates from July 20th, 1882, and terminates the first day of July, 1925. The highest indebtedness allowed at one time is $100,000, except for monies deposited by its patrons.

There will be a board of nine directors, a president, vice president and managing director, the latter constituting the managing board. They select a cashier, who acts also as secretary and treasurer, and he need not be a stockholder or director.

No building will be erected at once, though one is contemplated in the early future, and in connection with it will be built a regular "Safety Deposit Vault."

The company is looking for a suitable room and will begin business at once.

A Happy Combination. A practicable plan has been hit upon by W. V. Cole, the popular showman, whereby a great number of acts pertaining to the stage are presented under canvas and in concert with acts in the circus ring. This happy effect is brought about by erecting a portable stage sufficiently large to permit of producing spectacular, dashing, and difficult performances such as could not possibly be presented in the ordinary circus. Cole has a host of novelties which he proposes to, and will produce.

STILL MISSING. On the Trail of the Lost William Aust. The announcement of the finding of William Aust, the Omaha man whose flight during a fit of aberration, from the Deadwood stage is so sad an affair for his family, was a mistake. A despatch has been received to the effect that his tracks were found, and that he was going in an easterly direction, but, although scouts sent out from Sidney have made diligent search it has up to the last accounts been unsuccessful. The only hope of ever finding him alive is that he has been taken in by the men living on some of the many hay ranches in that locality, but had this been done the news would undoubtedly have been sent in ere this.

CONSIDERABLE DOUBT. The reports received late last night as to the fate of William Aust, who jumped from the Deadwood stage at Halfway Hollow and disappeared, were conflicting and unreliable. A message was received by William Harris, of Harris & Fisher, saying: "William Aust's body found near Sidney." It is believed the dispatch was written "not found" and the word "not" was omitted by the transmitting operator. Other dispatches indicated that he had been traced six miles from the place where he jumped off the stage, in the direction of Sidney, but if the body had been so near as that, the Sidney operator would have known something of it, and he sent word that he knew nothing. It would seem likely however that no one remains for the unfortunate man, and the discovery of his remains will only be a matter of time.

and has also secured the services of Miss Fannie Arnold, the brilliant soprano and Mr. Raff, an accomplished tenor. The concert will certainly be of a superior order including the rendering of selections from Bellini, Flotow, Weber, Beethoven, Mozart, Liszt, Abt and others familiar to the musical world. Tickets have been placed at the low figure of fifty cents, and can be procured at Horpe's music parlors, and at Edholm & Erickson's, corner of Dodge and Fifteenth streets. Two grand pianos will be used on the occasion, one of the Emerson and the other of the Steinway & Sons, and will be furnished by Mr. Horpe.

Undoubtedly there will be a large attendance of our best citizens who appreciate fine concert entertainments.

KNIGHTS OF THE ROAD. Two Men Dispute the Right of Way and Slighter War.

Quite a lively discussion occurred Thursday on Mercer avenue just west of the city line. Indeed it looked at one time as if the boundary between "town and gown" would be marked in blood. The particulars, according to hearsay evidence, are that one Mr. Hubbard, of Irvington, and a man named King, who drives a team for the waterworks company, met on the road aforesaid. The former, whose wagon was empty, refused, it is said to make room for the latter who was driving a team attached to a heavily loaded wagon. Some words ensued and as King attempted to pass he alleges that Hubbard struck his horses across the heads with a whip. King retaliated by striking Hubbard with a whip, which caused the blood to flow.

Then the witnesses of the meeting of the roadsters say that Hubbard drew a knife and threatened to make a mince pie out of King. It looked like war and had there been no knife drawn in all probability a slugging encounter after the Wilson-Sullivan meeting would have resulted. As it was, however, some hard words passed with threats of hostilities in the future and the warriors separated.

OMAHA MERCHANTS. Their Petition for an Equalization of Rates Up for Consideration.

A meeting of the general managers and general freight agents of the roads leading to Omaha and other Missouri points was held Wednesday, in Chicago, for the purpose of considering rates to points east and west of the Missouri river. Heretofore the rates to Omaha were higher than to Council Bluffs, on account of the bridge toll being added. Since the completion of the Missouri Pacific road to Omaha the latter has made the same rates to Omaha as the roads running to Council Bluffs made to the latter point. This, of course, caused much complaint on the part of Omaha shippers who did business with the Chicago lines. They claimed that they were not able to compete with Council Bluffs shippers on west-bound business.

To settle this matter and also take action regarding the proposition to make Kansas City rates the same as the rates to Omaha was the principal topic of discussion.

The following roads were represented at the meeting: Northwest, Burlington, Alton, Rock Island, Missouri Pacific and Wabash. None of those present seemed to be well pleased regarding the proposal, and it was claimed that the Omaha bridge company had lately issued a schedule of new rates, but no notice had been given to any of the roads of such a change. There was a general feeling that the merchants of Council Bluffs and other points on the east side of the Missouri river should be placed on the same basis as those in the cities on the west side, and also that the Kansas City and Omaha rates should be made alike. But sufficient facts upon which to base definite action were not on hand, and it was therefore agreed to refer the matter to the general freight agents of the various roads for further consideration, and an adjournment was then had.

Union Catholic Library. An interesting meeting of the managers of the association was held at the rooms of the library last evening. Mr. O'Donoghue, the dry goods merchant, was unanimously elected treasurer, and subsequently, Mr. John Rush being assigned the office.

The content for the prize painting, offered by ex-President Gibbon to the city who secures the largest list of new members, will close next Wednesday evening, for which event a charming social programme is being prepared.

The rooms of the library have been rendered very attractive by recent contributions of oil paintings and steel engravings from generous members. Among the latter is a magnificent picture of St. Patrick's cathedral, in New York, the grandeur of which, on the continent, is only equaled by the dome of the dome. Another handsome engraving, "The Return," was donated by McCarthy & Burke. Several equally elegant pictures are being framed, and will grace the walls by Wednesday evening.

The Early Closing Question. This is a very earnest desire on the part of the lady clerks in the dry goods stores to have their employers close their places of business at 6:30 o'clock in the evening. It is certainly an unreasonable burden to keep these clerks on their feet from 7 or 8 o'clock in the morning until 9 or 10 at night, with hardly spare time in which to take their midday meal and supper. Many of them are of delicate constitutions and the terrific strain is having them to premature graves. Twelve hours of incessant labor at the desk, or on their feet behind the counter, is at least four hours more than any woman can long endure and maintain her health.

Let the public understand that these stores are to be closed at 6:30 o'clock and they could just as well have their trading all done before that hour, and no doubt would gladly accommodate themselves to that condition of things. One says he will close if the others will, and the others say the same. Now wouldn't it be well for some charitable and humane firm to set the example, as an experiment. The others would certainly do likewise. Give the girls a chance to rest after supper, that their nervous systems may be in condition to enjoy refreshing slumber when the hour comes. We have a society for the prevention of cruelty to animals, but don't this come a little nearer home?

Justice.

CITY JOTS. The Omaha Protective Labor union will hold an open meeting on Tuesday evening next at Kuony's hall, which will be made interesting by addresses from good speakers. The public is invited to attend.

The board of education held an adjourned session at 6 p. m. yesterday and opened the bids for the construction of three new school buildings. They then adjourned until 5 p. m. of Wednesday next.

Among the freight passing through Omaha lately were two S. P. of engines, one on No. 7, July 20th; two cars of horses on No. 5 yesterday for Norfolk, Neb., and seven cars of stock in from the west yesterday, all by the U. P.

It is reported that the dogs killed the deer in Hanson park a few days ago. If there are ordinances to protect the animals there and forbidding the admittance of dogs, they should be enforced, and if there is no ordinance, one should be made.

A young woman was last evening reported to have attempted suicide by the morphine route at her boarding house, on Jackson street, between Thirtieth and Fourteenth. Her name is Mrs. Binckley. She is about 28 years old and quite good looking. The people of the house denied that there was any attempt to suicide, but claimed that she had taken an overdose of pills given her by a physician, but the story is worth doubting. She had kept house for the proprietor of one of the road houses in Saratoga, and is said to have been discouraged and depressed in spirits for some time.

Home Again. J. W. Jacobs, the well known turfman, arrived at home yesterday, from Lexington, Kentucky, and Indianapolis, Indiana, where his stable of running horses were entered against the flyers of the blue grass regions. He informs us that he got a large slice of the pie in each place. Crickett Still, a six-year-old mare, who rode Resumption and Rowett; in the ten mile race at both places, took first money. Resumption also took first money in Lexington, in a mile and repeat race, and Rowett first money in a two mile race at Indianapolis. He informs us that the two horses are entered for races in Minnesota, and that they are in fine trim, and will make very fast time.

A DECLARATION. The Circular Issued by the North American Turners' Union. Mr. Philip Andros, president of the Omaha Turners' Society, hands us the following communication for publication, which will explain itself: "Any attempt of the restriction of personal liberty is an encroachment upon those doctrines whereon the Declaration of Independence of our republic is founded, and a direct violation of the principles embodied in the platform of our North American Turners' Union. The contract now waged by narrow-minded hypocrites in many sections of this country we cannot but consider a more revival of the conflict brought on some thirty years since through nativistic prejudice against naturalized citizens, in which conflict the Turners took a decisive and manly stand against the attempt to curtail every attack upon the personal right and liberty of an American citizen as not only unwise, but unrepugnant and to the last degree dangerous and degrading to our form of government, and they hereby impose upon every member of this union the duty of opposing by word and deed every machination of hypocrites and temperance fanatics, and, irrespective of political party, to labor and to vote against any candidate for public office whose character in itself is not a sufficient guaranty that he will at all times advocate and labor for the retention of the most unrestricted personal liberty. By order of the national executive committee of the North American Turners' union. H. M. STARKOFF, Chairman.
