A BROOKLYN HEROINE.

How Miss Tillie Trimble Caught and Held a Burglar Until a Policeman Arrived.

New York W. r. d. Miss Tillie Trimble, who lives with her parents at No. 92 Fourth place, became known as a heroine in that part of Brooklyn yesterday. On Monday afternoon she caught a burglar in the house. After giving an alarm she grabbed him around the neck and held him, with the assistance of her mother, till a policeman arrived.

"Is that the first man you ever hugged?" asked the father. Her two big brothers giggled, but she paid no attention. "In a moment," she continued, "mother had him by the collar, and he tried to break away, but we held on and he dragged us into the front court yard. He asked me what I would take to settle it and let him go, and I said that nothing but a policeman would settle him with me. Several men came to our rescue, and finally Officer Cassidy arrived and took charge of him. There were $60 in money and several gold watches in one of the bureau drawers that he had tried to rob."

Evils to be Avoided. Over-eating is in one sense as productive of ill as intemperance drinking. Avoid both, and keep the blood purified with BUNDOL BLOOD BITTERS, and you will be rewarded with robust health and an invigorated system.

Love and Buckskins. "I had rather an amusing love affair myself in Texas, which I should like to tell you, if you will not feel bored with my long anecdotes," said the New York man, throwing away his stump of cigar. "I was staying at a ranch on the Rio Grande, and fell in love, or thought I had fallen in love, with a beautiful little damsel who resided with her father at a small hacienda twenty miles away. I was the possessor of a new pair of buckskin breeches which I had purchased in New Orleans, but had hitherto never worn. They fitted perfectly, and I was so delighted with the appearance of my mother limb that I determined to pay a visit to Donna Isabella. When half-way on my ride it began to rain in torrents and my breeches began to stretch and the stretching continued until they hung half a dozen inches below my boot heels. I arrived in the young lady's presence in rather a worse looking condition than that of the crowned rat. However, she received me kindly and conducted me to the kitchen where a roaring fire was blazing. I sat talking to her while my clothes were drying, and was too much occupied to think about my new breeches, when my love-making was cut short by the announcement of supper. I gave my arm to the donna and my next room. We were greeted with shouts of laughter from a large company of men and women who were seated at the table. I glanced downward and my eyes fell on the cause of their mirth. My breeches had shrunk with the heat until they had rolled above my knees, leaving a wide space of bare flesh between them and my socks. A love for the aesthetic did not flourish in those days, at least not in Mexico, and I was glad to hide my legs under the table, and for the rest of the evening I wrapped a mantilla around my legs. I was too uncomfortable to resume my love-making to Isabella; besides, she laughed whenever she looked at me. I slept there that night in a room on the second floor overlooking a wide meadow. Thinking the fresh air would restore my breeches to their normal condition I took them off and spread them on the grass, and then jumped back through the window and went to bed. In the morning I arose early and looked for the cherished garments. A dreadful sight met my gaze. Two owls were contentedly breakfasting off them, and only a portion of the seat and the band with the buttons remained. I did not know what to do, and lay in bed waiting for the appearance of one of the inhabitants of the house. Presently Isabella's father went past my window. I hailed him and told him my plight. He laughed and said he would fetch me a pair of his trousers. Now I am tall and spare; my Mexican host was short and enormously fat. The trousers he produced were patched in every direction with cloth of diverse colors. Imagine my appearance when I put them on. The rest of the house had been told of my misfortune; so when I left the room I found all the men and girls in the place, including Isabella, awaiting my debut. I shall never forget the wild galls of laughter which greeted me, and it struck me that Isabella laughed louder than the rest. I made a rush for the stable, hastily saddled my horse, and without a word of farewell rode off as hard as I could. I never went to see Isabella again. Nothing kills love so quick as ridicule."

A Friend in Need. Time over and again THOMAS' ELECTRIC OIL has proved a salutary friend to the distressed. As a reliable curative for croup in children, sore throat and bronchial affections, and as a positive external remedy for pain, it is a never-failing antidote. 17-25-81w

How Many Toes Has a Cat? Patterson Press. This was one of the questions asked a certain class in room No. 3 during examination week, and as simple as the question appears to be, none could answer it. In the emergency the principal, Mr. Brands was applied to for a solution, and he also, with a good natured laugh, gave it up, when one of the teachers, determined not to be beaten by so simple a question, hit on the idea of sending out a delegation of boys to secure the neighborhood for a cat. When this idea was announced the whole class wanted to join in the hunt. Several boys went out, and having been successful, soon returned with a Thomas. A returning board was at once appointed and the toes counted, when to the relief of all it was learned that a cat possesses eighteen toes, ten on the front feet and eight on the hind feet. The board of education should feel proud at having in their employ so determined and practical a teacher. After the question was solved was Thomas allowed to depart, much to his satisfaction.

D. HARTER'S IRON TONIC. A combination of Iron, Potassium, Bark and Phosphorus in a palatable form. The only preparation of Iron that will not color the teeth, so characteristic of other iron preparations. GENTLEMEN: In my practice of 25 years in medicine, I have found nothing to give the results that Dr. Harter's Iron Tonic does. In cases of Nervous Prostration, Female Debility, Dyspepsia, and impoverished condition of the blood, this tonic rarely fails in my hands. In fact, I have never known a patient who has used some of our most eminent physicians have yielded to this great and incomparable remedy. I prescribe it in preference to any iron preparation made. In fact, such a compound as Dr. Harter's Iron Tonic is a necessity in my practice. THE HIGHEST MEDICAL OPINION. CHICAGO, ILL., St. Louis, Mo., New York, N.Y.
