

LANGTRY AND NILSSON.

The Actress and the Singer whom Mr. Abbey is to Bring Across the Atlantic.

New York Sun. Mr. Henry E. Abbey, the theatrical manager, arrived from England yesterday. He has engaged Mrs. Langtry, the London professional beauty, and Mme. Christine Nilsson, the prima donna, for American tours next season, and Mr. Henry Irving for the season after that, besides leasing Mr. Irving's Lyceum Theatre for the period of the actor's absence from London.

"What is your own opinion of Mrs. Langtry as an actress?" Mr. Abbey was asked.

"She is not a great one," he replied, "and could not stand criticism as such; but she is perfectly at ease on the stage, notably ladylike, and so unassuming that she gets the good will of an audience right away. At least that has been the case in England, and she has drawn tremendously during her provincial tour in that country. Of course, there's no foretelling the result of her venture here. She will sail for New York, September 30, and probably open October 23, but at what theater has not been decided. After her season in this city she will make a round of the large cities, playing in 'She Stoops to Conquer,' 'The Unequal Match,' 'Rosalind' and 'The Honeymoon.' The supporting company will come over with her. I should have preferred an American organization, but, aside from the difficulty of getting one together at this late day, it is better for Mrs. Langtry to be surrounded by a company which she is familiar. She is little more than an amateur, you know, and must be given every possible help in theatrical of facing a strange people."

"What is your opinion of Mrs. Langtry as a beauty?"

"I do not think she will disappoint reasonable expectations, though some of her charms are of no practical value on the stage. Her wonderfully clear complexion, for instance, has to be painted over, and her beautiful hair might as well be a wig. If she is greatly admired by American audiences—as I hope and expect—it will not be because she is the most beautiful woman on our stage, for she is not, but because she is the most beautiful and winsome. She all the while has a manner of winning you to like her, and of doing her best to please. I think she is the most unaffected lady-like woman I ever saw, on or off the stage."

"I suppose her husband will not accompany her?"

"No. Her traveling companion will be a lady distinguished in London polite society, but I am not at liberty to divulge her name."

"Possibly Mrs. Labouchere, wife of the editor of Truth?"

"My lips are sealed, positively. But I'll tell you the name of a celebrity who is to come along. Kate Pattison, the juvenile actress of the company, is a protegee of Emily Faithful, who will make the tour with her."

"How much do you really pay Mrs. Langtry?"

"A high price. It is easy to believe that much, when it is considered that she is a great financial success in England, and has by no means exhausted her popularity there. But people would have no reason to credit the figures if I gave them, and I would have to multiply them by two in anticipation of your readers dividing them by two."

"What is Nilsson?"

"She sails October 14, and is to sing fifty times through the country in concerts and oratorios. The company is not completed. A young Swedish nobleman, who has sung with Nilsson in Paris, will probably be the tenor, and Del Puente the baritone; and the Boston Quintette club will be the instrumentalists."

"How is Nilsson's voice?"

"Not as girlish as it was ten years ago, of course, but rounder and fuller. I heard her in London. She appeared in deep mourning on account of the recent death of her husband, and will do the same here. The black was exceedingly becoming, along with her light hair and delicate face."

"And Irving?"

"He doesn't come until the fall of 1883. He has given up his contemplated trip to New York this summer. I have taken the Lyceum Theatre, London, to manage while he is here, and during his subsequent tour in the English provinces. My plan is to introduce American stars and companies to London. That is about the riskiest of my proposed ventures. Don't you think so?"

Viewing His Treasures.

I went with a friend to the vaults of the Safety Deposit company on Thursday to help clip off some coupons. You know what these vaults are. Places where bloated bondholders keep their stocks and bonds and other valuables in little safes with combination locks, that no thief nor burglar could open, nor thieves break through and steal. While we were sitting there I looked up and saw the strangest and most forbidding-looking person coming down the aisle. He wore a high-pointed fur cap and a coat buttoned up to his chin. A short thick beard and mustache almost hid his face from view. As he came nearer to me I recognized Captain Catechism, the tattooed man. We could not help staring at him, it seemed so queer for one of Barnum's curiosities to be looking after his stocks and bonds. He did not seem to object, and so my friend made some pleasant remark to him in Italian. He was quite ready to talk, though he does not speak fluently either French, Italian or English, but he speaks the two former better than the latter. His entire conversation was about money, showing that he had a keen eye for the almighty dollar. He has been in this country for six years, and receives, when on exhibition, $100 a week and his expenses. Then he sells his photographs and a life of himself, from which he makes a good percentage. In the six years he has managed to save a good deal more than his salary, and he has invested money judiciously. The only investment he has that does not pay in diamonds. He is passionately fond of this precious stone, and has some fine specimens in his safe. He seems to have a savage's fondness for ornament, for he was loaded down with jewelry. Around his neck he wore a long, massive gold chain, fastened at the throat with a jeweled slide. There was evidently a watch on the end of the chain in his pocket. Then he wore another heavy gold chain across his blue flannel shirt, on which several twenty dollar gold pieces were hung. On his wrists were gold bracelets of curious workmanship, and he wore twelve plain gold rings on his hands, two on each third and little finger and two on each thumb. His hands are very well shaped, and the dark tattooing set off the bright gold of the rings. A silk scarf of many colors was tied around his waist. Altogether, he looked like a pirate.

WHERE IS OLIVE?

He has Disappeared and it is Thought Has Been Killed.

Special Correspondence of the Bee. PLUM CREEK, Neb., July 29.—I. P. Olive, the well known ranchman, is missing. He has not been seen for some time and no one seems to know what has become of him. His wife has left Plum Creek. It is surmised that some of his enemies have secretly made way with him. It would be nothing surprising if he has fallen at the hands of an assassin, as a bitter feud existed between him and other parties.

BINKELMAN.

Features of a Prominent Little Center in the Republican Valley.

Correspondence of THE BEE. BINKELMAN, Neb., July 28.—Binkelman, Nebraska, formerly known as Collinsville, is located in Dundy county. It can hardly be called a town as there are only two stores, a hotel and postoffice besides the railroad buildings. At the same time it is a very important trading point, and is a center around which are located some of the most prosperous live stock men in the state. Thus far no settlers have attempted to take possession of the land, and cattle are allowed to roam at their pleasure and feed on the abundance of grass. As might be expected the stock men will make strong effort as possible to keep the homesteaders out, and it will be to the advantage of all concerned if they are kept out. There is too little rain fall and too much hot wind to make farming productive. The soil is not as well adapted to farming as grazing. There will perhaps be a time when this part of the country can be made very productive. It will be better for the settlers to occupy it first. Hot winds have become less frequent and less destructive in the Republican Valley, the farther you go east. As the prairie becomes covered with foliage the soil does not become so heated by the sun, as when protected only by the buffalo grass, and as a matter of course the atmosphere remains cooler.

Binkelman promises to grow in importance as a shipping point for live stock. Stock yards are being built, having four shoots. The town derives its name from George Binkelman of Denver, who owns large herds in the vicinity. Prominent among the ranchmen whose herds feed in the valley and along the creeks that flow into it, are Binkelman, Vail, Davenport, Buck, Hugler, Van Slyke, Woodards, Olive, Wilson, Smith, Nelson and Bird.

John King owns a grocery and general merchandise store at Binkelman and does an extensive business. The fact office is located in his building. J. C. Taylor, a brother of County Clerk Taylor of Culbertson, is a clerk in the store and in Mr. King's absence has charge of the business.

F. Scott is proprietor of the hotel, a commodious three story building. At present he has a large number of regular boarders besides accommodating a great many transient visitors.

The railroad station is under the efficient management of C. E. Haskin, who possesses the confidence of the company or he never would have been placed in such a difficult and responsible position.

So far as can be learned at present stock has done exceedingly well this season, and if the markets will only keep up the profits will be large. Speaking of markets calls to mind the fact that Denver is rapidly losing its reputation as being a first class market for horses. Only a few days ago a man returned from there bringing back his head of ponies, as they would not bring anywhere near their real value. He reported that a car load of Missouri horses arrived there about the same time as he did, and the owner was obliged to sell them for less than they were worth in Missouri. The horses were as fine as any that could be found in the market.

A Rotary Hammer That Strikes 400 Blows a Minute.

Stockton (Cal.) Herald. Dr. W. T. Browne, of Stockton, Cal., has recently perfected a rotary hammer that promises to revolutionize those branches of industry in which the hammer plays an important part. It consists of a series of hammers arranged so that their faces extend beyond the periphery of a wheel and strike a sliding rod, to which is adjusted a drill, a hammer or a quartz crusher, or whatever device is needed to accomplish the desired work. When these hammers strike the drill—the machine now on exhibition is fixed to drill rock—they slide off out of the way in the most remarkable manner, without perceptibly decreasing the velocity of the wheel. They spring into position again and never miss one stroke.

The machine now in operation contains eight hammers, and one man turning it can deliver 400 powerful blows a minute. Two pieces of rock show the work that the machine does drilling. In freestone a man drills an inch a minute, turning the machine leisurely. A ratchet turns the drill a small fraction of an inch at each stroke, and all the drill has to do is to turn the crank. In granite rock from half an inch to an inch can be drilled in a minute. The individual hammers each weigh eleven pounds. Turning the wheel forty revolutions a minute the machine delivers 320 blows of sixty-six pounds each; fifty revolutions give 400 blows of eighty-two pounds each, and sixty revolutions give 480 blows of ninety-one pounds each, aggregating over twenty a second.

Supplanting Ohio.

Referring to the nomination to-day of Hon. Merritt L. Joslyn, of Illinois, for assistant secretary of the interior department, a western republican said he thought Illinois was faring pretty well in the distribution of the more important offices of the executive department. In this connection, this gentleman named the following: Hon. Robert T. Lincoln, secretary of war; Hon. Merritt L. Joslyn, assistant secretary of the interior; Hon. H. C. Smith, director of the United States mint; Gen. J. C. Hamilton, surgeon general of the United States marine hospital service; Hon. Green B. Raum, commissioner of internal revenue; Hon. S. P. Rounds, public printer; Hon. James S. Delano, deputy second comptroller of the treasury—all residents of and appointed from the prairie state.

Of this last, he said, Mr. Rounds was appointed not solely or chiefly because he was from Illinois, but was strongly backed by the solid delegation in congress from that state, but for the reason that his administrative talents and thirty years' experience in all departments of business pertaining to an immense printing house pre-eminently fitted him for the position, and that Mr. Joslyn owes his appointment in a large measure to the fact that he is an old and intimate personal friend of Secretary Teller.
